Nixon Appears Winner

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Richard M. Nixon's second attempt at the presidency appeared to have been successful about 8:30 a.m. Wednesday when a Columbia Broadcasting System declared victory Wednesday morning.

Vice President Humphrey, who had 166 electoral votes, appeared to be leading in two vote-rich states—Texas and Missouri.

The two states would give the Vice President 203 electoral votes.

In the popular vote, Nixon had 28,883,426 to Humphrey's 28,739,118 with 92 per cent of the vote tallied.

Former Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace apparently scored wins in four southern states, but ran a poor third nationwide.

Wallace appeared to have won in Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, and Mississippi with a total of 39 electoral votes. He trailed far behind in the popular vote with 9,016,879.

Nixon and Humphrey each had 43 per cent of the popular vote at 7:30 a.m. Wallace was getting about 14 per cent of the vote.

The lead changed hands repeatedly during the night. In Pennsylvania, for example, Humphrey held an early lead, was overtaken by Nixon but then surged ahead again.

Just the opposite happened in Illinois. Nixon led there at first, Humphrey bolted ahead for awhile and then Nixon regained the lead.

Nixon was ahead in early returns from New York, but Humphrey apparently won the big state's 43 electoral votes.

Early returns indicated no major shift in the makeup of the House of Representatives, which will elect the president in the event of an Electoral College deadlock. Democratic candidates in the East were ahead in most marginal congressional districts.

Humphrey's main strength was built around New York, Pennsylvania and Texas, all heavy electoral vote states, with support in the northeastern states.

Nixon fashioned his electoral vote strength largely from mid-western and western areas as well as a fringe of states around the Deep South and New Jersey.

How much President Johnson's Thursday decision to halt attacks on North Vietnam affected the outcome remained problematical.

Nixon's advisers thought Johnson's action may have added a percentage point to Humphrey's support. But they also thought refusal of South Vietnam to send a delegation to the Paris peace talks might have subtracted this.

The Vietnam issue seemed to have no overriding effect on Senate races, where doves and hawks registered victories and defeats.

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee and a leading critic of the Johnson administration's Asian policies, won re-election. But Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., apothor dove, was defeated. Barry Goldwater of Arizona and Edward Gurney of Florida, regarded as hawks, won Republican seats.

projection gave him 287 electoral votes.

Illinois' 26 electoral votes apparently put Nixon over the 270 needed for victory, making him the 37th president of the United States.

Nixon, however, had not de-

Referendum 65 Approved

HELENA (AP)—Referendum 65 won a resounding "yes" vote Tuesday, allowing for renewal of the six-mill levy for the Montana University System.

It was the only one of five special measures on the Montana ballot assured of victory with 72,836 voters favoring the measure and 46,380 voting against it with 701 of 1,037 precincts counted.

Passage of Referendum 65 would renew for 10 years the six-mill statewide tax on property to help support the six units of the Montana University System and its affiliated agricultural services.

The measure, first authorized by voters in 1948, was approved again in 1958. It has provided about one-fifth of the total budget of the University System, raising about $10 million in each biennium.

Leading the opposition to the referendum was a group known as Montanans for Constitutional Action. The group opposed the measure because of the use of allegedly obscene literature in a class at the University of Montana in Missoula.

Initiative 66 was behind 83,737 to 35,333. All constitutional amendments were trailing, 73,088 to 44,013 on the pay raise measure; 68,498-45,895 on the legislative length proposal, and 55,508-53,903 on amendment limitations.

Battin Wins In Eastern District

Olsen Outdistances Smiley To Win 5th Term In House

HELENA (AP)—Montana voters gave their incumbent congressman, Republican Rep. James F. Battin and Democratic Rep. Arnold Olsen, his fifth term in Tuesday's general election.

Battin drew 62,897 votes in the eastern congressional district to 30,821 for Democratic challenger Robert Kelleher of Billings with 411 of the district's 577 precincts counted unofficially.

Olsen polled 51,133 in the western district to 42,756 for Dick Smiley of Bozeman with 305 of 460 precincts reported unofficially.

It was Smiley's second loss to Olsen, the first coming in 1966.

The trend in the eastern district developed early in the evening and continued about the same for hours, Battin holding 68 per cent of the vote to Kelleher's 32 well into Wednesday morning.

It was slower in coming in the western district. At first Smiley stayed close to Olsen, but after midnight the gap widened and then settled down to about 55 per cent for Olsen to Smiley's 45 per cent.

The Smiley-Olsen campaign centered on their counter-claims about voting records along liberal-conservative lines.

Smiley, 42, a Bozeman broadcaster, focused his speeches on Vietnam, inflation and gun control. He repeatedly said he made no pledges because he felt people are fed up with the stereotype political promiser.

Olsen, 51, emphasized his record of aid to the western district in such areas as highways, model cities, and education. But he also charged Smiley with distortion of his record.

While Battin, 43, urged change on the national level, opposing Democratic farm policies, gun control measures and inflation, Kelleher, 40, called for change in congressional representation. He centered on such issues as wheat certificate reinstatement, freight rates, loans for agricultural cooperatives.

Publications Board at a meeting yesterday discussed whether the list of service organizations now receiving free Sentinel pictures should be expanded or eliminated.

The current constitution, written in 1958, gives free pictures to Spurs, Bearpaws, Mortar Board and Silent Sentinel. Other groups pay $50 for a half page.

Members of Alpha Omega Phi, a Boy Scout group, and Circle K, a Kiwanis sponsored men's organization, have questioned their exclusion. Board members also discussed whether honorary groups should be included.

Betsy Scanlin, publications board commissioner, said representatives from service groups are invited to attend the next board meeting. The board will attempt to clarify and define "service organization" before deciding whether to enlarge or eliminate the list.

In other business Amaretta Jones and Gary Williams were approved as associate editors of the Book. Their appointments will now be submitted to Central Board.

Judge Elected Lt. Governor

Anderson Unseats Babcock

HELENA (AP) — Democratic Atty. Gen. Forrest H. Anderson was elected governor of Montana Tuesday by tax-conscious voters who resoundingly rejected the sales tax vehicle which Republican Gov. Tim Babcock rode to defeat.

It was the first time since 1948, when John W. Bonner was elected to a term in the Governor's Mansion, that a Democrat got public approval to head the state's government.

It has been nearly 16 years since Bonner turned the executive reins over to Republican Gov. J. Hugo Aronson.

To help the 55-year-old Anderson, Montana voters chose State Sen. Thomas L. Judge, 34, also a Democrat, as lieutenant governor.

Judge, a Helena advertising executive, beat Sen. Tom Selstad, Great Falls, for the No. 2 state office currently held by Republican Ted James, a Great Falls lawyer.

Both Anderson and Judge took early leads in unofficial vote counting and rarely faltered in piling up consistently growing margins over their GOP opponents.

With more than three fourths of the state's 1,037 precincts reporting, Anderson had 112,292 votes to Babcock's 85,440 votes.

Trailing with 7,904 votes was the New Reform party's governor nominee, Lima rancher Wayne W. Montgomery, twice the GOP's congressional nominee against Arnold Olsen.

In the lieutenant governor contest, with 750 precincts reporting, Judge counted 94,913 votes to Selstad's 75,576.

Babcock's defeat became apparent just 2 1/4 hours after the polls closed when computers of two major networks predicted Anderson would win by 54-55 per cent of the total vote cast for governor.

Anderson put himself into the governor's race last Dec. 13.

Babcock, who will leave the governor's office the morning of Jan. 6, has occupied it since Jan. 25, 1962, when Nutter was killed in a plane crash.

Babcock won a four-year term on his own in 1964, beating Roland

FORREST H. ANDERSON

R. Renne, Montana State University president, by 7,251 votes. Two years ago he tried for the U.S. Senate but was defeated by the incumbent, Sen. Lee Metcalf.

The outgoing governor began his political career with service in the House of Representatives from Custer County in the 1953 session and from Yellowstone County in the 1957 and 1959 sessions.

Judge, the lieutenant governor-elect, served three terms in the House before winning a seat in the State Senate.

Selstad, the man he defeated, operates a farm supply and propane business in Great Falls. He served two terms in the House before becoming a senator.

The Judge-Selstad campaign seldom made major headlines but Judge managed to keep himself consistently before the public, probably as well as any other major candidate.

GOP Ahead In 3 Races

HELENA (AP) — Republican Bob Woodahl appeared Wednesday morning to have beaten his Democratic opponent Gene B. Daly.

Unofficial totals with 785 of the state's 1,037 precincts counted gave Woodahl 90,040 votes to 84,213 for Daly.

In other state races, Republican Alex B. Stephenson was leading Democrat Paul Cannon, 87,859-77,864, for treasurer; Democrat Henry H. Anderson trailed incumbent Republican Ernest Steel, 87,215-77,114, for railroad and public service commissioner;

Democrat Dolores Colburg was leading Republican Henry Cox, 88,181-77,246, for public instruction superintendent, and incumbent Democrat Frank Murray was the winner over Republican Elizabeth Guffey for secretary of state, 103,692-62,890, with about 780 precincts counted.

State Auditor E. V. "Sonny" Omholt, a Republican running unopposed, had 111,920 votes with 759 precincts counted.

Draft Cuts Benefit Graduate Students

By SUSIE SCHMIDT
College Press Service

WASHINGTON — Although the nation's graduate schools did not face the 70 per cent reduction in fall enrollment some predicted last year because of the draft, the second semester crunch may hurt them badly.

Most universities were taken by surprise this fall, when the 25-50 per cent of their students expecting to be drafted returned to school after all. Some universities, which had accepted more graduated students than they could handle in order to make up for the draft's toll, have been faced with money and housing shortages—and too many students.

They had failed to calculate this fall's election and its ramifications on the draft in their estimates last spring.

If February, when the Selective Service System announced that graduate students would no longer be deferred "in the national interest," both universities and the government predicted that schools might lose up to 70 per cent of their first-year students. They forecast a great increase in female and middle-aged graduate students.

Selective Service officials predicted that students would make up as much as 90 per cent of the draft call-ups in many states. The Defense Department said 63 per cent of the 240,000 draftees predicted for 1969 would be students. Students made up 3.8 per cent this year.

But the crunch failed to materialize this fall. For one thing, draft calls beginning in July were drastically lower than those for previous months. And they will stay that way until January when the elections are well over.

How much calls will rise will depend on the manpower needs of the armed forces, the status of the Vietnam war, and the mood of the new President. But they are sure to rise at least a little, according to Mrs. Betty Vetter, an official of the Scientific Manpower Commission, a private research agency in Washington.

Her prediction is based on the fact that draft calls for the last few years have run in 18-month cycles; the high point of the latest cycle is due in January 1969.

Whatever the increase, it is sure to hit students harder next semester; under present draft regulations, the oldest eligible males are first to go, and graduate students newly classified 1-A are perfect targets. Those who receive induction notices during the present school term are allowed to stay in school to finish the term, but must then report for induction.

But despite the fact that total graduate enrollment has changed very little—in numbers, the edict has not been without effect.

Graduate schools at several universities have reported drops in enrollment from one to 20 per cent. Professional schools seem harder hit than most. At Valparaiso University, 25 of 150 students enrolled in the Law School didn't register in September. Lehigh University reports a 13 per cent decrease in enrollment.

And at many schools, graduate departments found that women and older (over-26) men made up larger portions of their enrollees than ever before. Some schools claimed that their students are of lower ability than they would have been before the draft.

Such intangible evidence as decline in graduate school quality is, of course, almost impossible to document. More obvious and evident, though, is a decline in morale among graduate students. Young men faced with the prospects of being drafted have always been burdened with an overwhelming anxiety few other people experience. And graduate students this year, knowing they are sitting atop the proverbial powder keg and may get the letter any day, are unusually nervous and fearful.

Universities, which opposed the move to end graduate deferments, are reacting to their students' concern in many ways. Several heavily graduate universities, among them Massachusetts Institute of Technology, have announced that students whose education is interrupted by the draft—either for two years of service or for a jail sentence for resistance—will later be able to resume their degree work where they left off, and will stand a good chance of having their fellowships renewed.

Several schools are also investigating new degree programs like MIT's five-year engineering program—in which the student does not officially receive his bachelor's degree until he receives his master's in a fifth year (and so is classed as an undergraduate for five years).

The institutions are understandably vexed. Many of them—like their students—concurred with the 1967 recommendations of the President's Commission on the Draft. The Commission's report suggested a two-pronged attack on the draft's present inequities and injustice: abolition of student deferments and reversal of the present oldest-first system so that 19-year-olds would be drafted first—preferably by lottery.

Fairness and equity required that both those steps be taken; if they had been, the draft, unfairness to the poor and uneducated would have been partially corrected, and at the same time education and technical skills would have been supported.

As it happened, policy-makers decided to implement only part of the recommendations, hoping that their move would be popular with those voters who consider that students are un-American and should be drafted, and would at the same time be lauded as needed reform.

Now the results of their attack on "pointy-headed intellectuals" will be felt, not only by the schools—which cannot help but be weakened—and the Army, which is discovering that it doesn't like "uppity students" in its ranks anyway, but by those elements in the nation which depend on educated (and reasonably contented) men and women for existence and growth.

Frosh Man Invited Into Coeds' Dorms

To the Kaimin:

I fail to see how Mr. McLennon could possibly have misread, or should I say misinterpreted, a letter as plain as Miss Blakemore's. She was not conducting a campaign against freshmen, only trying to bring some campus awareness to the atrocious dormitory facilities available to upperclasswomen. Obviously, Mr. McLennon has not had the opportunity to visit the dorms of North Corbin, Corbin, or Brantly. Believe me the term "rat trap" is putting it mildly.

Women under 21 have no choice but to live on campus. However, Mr. McLennon and the other men may choose where they wish to live—and should they choose to live on campus the oldest men's dorm is a palace compared to North Corbin. As for Miss Blakemore (and the many women who support her action) "working to improve her own situation rather than coveting those of others, "why do you think she wrote a letter to the Kaimin?"

I would have expected letters of complaint from the freshmen women of Jesse but not from a boy who does not even know the situation as it exists in the upperclass women's dorms. If anyone doubts Miss Blakemore's assertions that upperclass women are being given the fuzzy end of the lollipop as far as housing is concerned, I issue an open invitation to them to visit any room in the triangle—perhaps even special privileges can be extended to Mr. McLennon so that he can see just how far off base his complaint is.

UM Runners to Defend League Title Saturday

The defending Big Sky Conference cross country champions, the Montana Grizzlies, will be out to defend the title in the 1968 championships in Pocatello, Idaho, on Saturday.

The Grizzlies will run on Pocatello's Riverside Golf Course at 11 a.m. Coach Harley Lewis said the team was familiar with the course since the Tips ran there earlier this season.

Idaho State rates as the favorite because the Bengals have not lost to a conference opponent this season and will be running on their home course, he said.

Montana will be a top contender, Lewis said, and UM sophomore Wade Jacobsen, undefeated this season, is the individual favorite. Jacobsen has recovered from a leg injury.

Each school will enter seven runners, Lewis said.

Other UM entries besides Jacobsen are Howard Johnson, a freshman from Anaconda; Ray Velez, a junior from San Bernardino, Calif.; Ray Ballew, a sophomore from Sunburst; Steve Linse, a sophomore from Snohomish, Wash.; Mick Harrington, a senior from Missoula, and Tim O'Hare, a freshman from Billings.

"The boys have been training reasonably hard this last week," Lewis said, "but will be tapering off and resting a little towards the end of this week in preparation of the meet on Saturday."

SCHAFFER SCORES — Sophomore tailback Paul Schaffer of Montana State dives over the goal line to score for the Bobcats and narrow UMI's lead to 24-21 in Saturday's game. Schaffer, who carried 58 times, later scored the winning touchdown with 12

U Frosh to End Season in Idaho

Montana's freshman football team will end its season Friday against the University of Idaho frosh in Moscow, Idaho, after dropping a 34-14 decision to Idaho State in Missoula Friday.

The Idaho State freshman team passed its way to victory behind the strong throwing of quarterback Dan Halt, who passed for 341 yards and four touchdowns.

ISU scored first early in the first quarter with a long pass from Halt to 6-5 halfback James Jackson. Larry Rodriguez added the extra point to make the score 7-0.

Coach Mick Delaney's Cubs came right back and in six plays drove down the field for a touchdown with halfback Billy Houghton scoring from the 1-yard line.

Caputo faked the extra point and scored for the two-point conversion, putting the Cubs ahead 8-7.

On the first play in the second quarter, Idaho's Halt outraced the Cub secondary on a bootleg play for a 24-yard touchdown. Rodriguez again made the extra point.

Three minutes later, Halt hit Jackson with a 43-yard scoring bomb. The extra point attempt failed.

With 1:21 left in the half Tom Ude hauled in a pass for a 50-yard scoring play.

The second half saw the out-manned Cubs fight back from a 27-8 disadvantage. Caputo engineered a 75-yard scoring drive that culminated when he scored from the 14-yard line. The PAT failed.

The final score of the game came when Halt hit reserve quarterback Tom Lee with a 36-yard scoring pass. Rodriguez converted for the final point of the game.

Many of the Cubs played both ways. Mick Dennehy, defensive back from Butte, was injured in the contest.

Paper Plant Might Be Hit With Air Pollution Charges

The Missoula chapter of the Environmental Defense Fund plans to initiate legal proceedings against the Hoerner-Waldorf corporation for alleged air pollution, Paul Alexander, UM professor of geography, said recently.

The Environmental Defense Fund is a national, non-profit organization of scientists, engineers and interested persons.

The group will file suit in U.S. District Court in Missoula in about two weeks, charging that the corporation "is releasing toxic substances into the air which are detrimental to human health," Mr. Alexander said.

The chief lawyer for the National Environmental Defense Fund, Victor J. Yannacone, from New York City, will act as lawyer for the group. He has been the plaintiff's lawyer in several court tests over pesticide use in Long Island and Michigan.

Finances for the proceedings will be handled through the local unit of the Rachel Carson Trust, a national organization which helps to finance programs to improve the environment, Mr. Alexander said. The Rachel Carson Trust Fund is being used so that people may deduct their contributions.

The money will be under local control and will be used to defer court expenses. Out of town lawyers and special witnesses will be given travel expenses only and will stay in private homes while in Missoula, he said.

"We need $15,000 to carry out the suit," Mr. Alexander told a meeting Monday night. He said he did not foresee any problem in raising the money.

"We now have about $3,000 and, in my opinion, we should have the $15,000 in the bank within three weeks," he said.

He said the organization has received numerous anonymous contributions, and the average donation has been about $85.

"We should get help from several eastern conservation groups, once we're under way," he said.

He emphasized that close records of contributions are being kept and that all solicited money would be returned in the event that the suit did not materialize.

Clarence C. Gordon, UM professor of botany, said "Montana is a unique state in regard to air pollution; industry has stepped on many ties here, and we'll be guilty of allowing them to continue to pollute the air if we don't do something."

The suit is necessary, he said, to make the people of Missoula fully aware of the problems of air pollution.

The group agreed that it must solicit enough money to enlist the best possible expert support.

A steering committee was formed at Monday's meeting to begin group action. Committee members are Ross Toole, UM professor of history; Gardner Cromwell, UM professor of law and Charles Parker, UM chairman of speech pathology and audiology.

Missoula residents also will participate on the committee, but they have not yet been named.

The Montana group plans to meet with Mr. Yannacone next Monday night to discuss further plans.

• Charlene Barlow, a freshman from Stevensville, has been elected president of Angel Flight pledges. Other officers are Debbie Morgan of Helena, vice president; Betty Francisco of Missoula, secretary, and Beth Lucking of Helena, treasurer, according to Sue Mast, Angel Flight commander.

Angel Flight members worked at the Missoula Crippled Children's Benefit at Greenough Mansion on Friday and Sunday. They served as hostesses and conducted tours of the recently remodeled mansion.

• UM President Robert Pantzer will leave Sunday to attend the National Association of State Universities and Land Grant Colleges meeting in Washington, D.C.

Mr. Pantzer said he and other UM administrators would participate in meetings and confer with federal agencies about University programs.

During the week-long trip, Mr. Pantzer also will stop in Nutley, N.J., at the Hoffman-LaRoche Corp., which is one of the foundations sponsoring the University's research units at Deer Lodge.

• Sheldon Margen, professor of human nutrition at the University of California at Berkeley, will discuss recent developments in clinical nutrition at 8 p.m. Thursday in the Music Recital Hall.

His speech, "Adaptation of Man to Nutritional Stress: Responses to Maximum and Minimum Protein Intake," which is open to the public, is sponsored by the home economics department.

Dr. Margen is co-author of two medical books, "Handbook for Medical Treatment" and "Current Diagnosis and Treatment."

• Members of Mortar Board, senior women's honorary, are trying to find job opportunities for women.

Bev St. Cyr, president, said the members will visit the various University departments and schools to find prospective employment for women in various fields.

The results will be printed, and Mortar Board will act as a counseling service.
