This Syllabus is brought to you for free and open access by the Course Syllabi at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in Syllabi by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
Course objectives and student outcomes: The focus of this course will be the developments of Roman art in Roman society from the Republic through the Empire. Through class lecture, class discussion, readings, and written assignments, the student will learn to:

1) locate chronologically the three main periods of Roman history and identify the events within each period which were of significance to its artistic development;
2) identify the various forms in which Roman art remains to us;
3) describe the social world in which Roman art was produced;
4) describe the social context in which various works and genres of Roman art were commissioned, produced, and viewed;
5) understand and describe some of the varied influences on Roman art and its development;
6) begin to understand and articulate the “rhetoric” of myth, politics, and social and economic standing in which Roman art participated.

Assessment: Classroom attendance is required. You may take 3 “free” absences during the semester without automatic effect on your final grade. For every unexcused absence beyond those 3, I will drop your final grade 2%. Whether an absence is excused or unexcused will be my call. If possible, contact me before the absence. Do not assume that an absence will be excused. If you must go to the doctor or health center, please bring a note which confirms that your presence there was necessary.

The course is constructed in such a way that you will be receiving constant feedback about your progress through weekly written assignments and mid-term exams.

Class participation: 10%
Mid-term average: 20%
Weekly written response average: 20% [1 page, double-spaced, typed; due on Monday at class time]
Final essay: 20% [3 pages, double-spaced, typed; utilizing one outside source]
Final exam: 30%

Grading scale: 90-100=A; 80-89=B; 70-79=C, etc. In accordance with new UM policy, if you are taking this course P/NP, you must have a final average of 70% (C) to receive a P.
