Historical Archaeology uses physical (archaeological) remains, primary and secondary sources, and a range of multidisciplinary techniques to study the human condition. Historical archaeologists are trained in the fields of anthropology, history, and related fields; practitioners tend to focus on the migrations, contacts, and changes of various cultures throughout the world over the past 500 years. A text-aided field of archaeology, Historical Archaeology has been referred to as “Historic Sites Archaeology” and “Archaeology of the Modern World.”

The purpose of this course is to demonstrate how archaeological remains, methods, and theories can be integrated with oral and historical sources to understand and interpret cultural heritage from the relatively recent past. The course is intended to prepare students for senior research and/or graduate projects by providing opportunities to develop new or ongoing research topics, create bibliographies, cultivate critical reviewing skills, and become comfortable speaking in public. Such opportunities are also applicable to students bound for—or are already working in—careers related to the management and interpretation of cultural and natural resources, including environmental planning, education, historic preservation, public history, land management, law, etc. A series of projects will be assigned throughout the semester; these projects will be tailored to the class’ needs and interests and will be dedicated to having students cultivate and improve ethically- and sustainably-minded, (applied and academic) research skills. Students will be challenged to consider the ways in which their research projects might make contributions to respectful and sustainable decision-making related to cultural and natural heritage management.

The course bibliography may appear biased toward research in the American West. This is a result of your instructor’s bias and many students’ interests in finding careers in this region; nevertheless, Historical Archaeology is inherently a transnational field and we will consistently explore the connections of local or regional topics with issues in international cultural heritage, as well as the ways in which regional studies can contribute to matters relevant to global change and sustainability. After attending and participating in class—and after doing “A” work on all of their assignments—students will depart with a toolkit of information and experiences to make them competitive for careers, research opportunities, and advanced degree programs and that will inspire them to contribute to responsible, educated stewardship of the world’s natural and cultural heritage.

REQUIRED TEXTBOOK

OPTIONAL/RECOMMENDED TEXTBOOKS (GRADUATE STUDENTS May want to use these for review projects):

COURSE BIBLIOGRAPHY (ATTACHED):
Additional readings listed in the course bibliography will be assigned and discussed throughout the semester.

COURSE STRUCTURE:
This course meets for 80 minutes, two days a week, throughout the semester. Class meetings will include lectures, in-class exercises, documentaries, and visits to lab, archive, and library facilities. Students may be asked to participate in class by sharing their ideas with the rest of the class in informal discussions and/or in brief written assignments. We will examine various archaeological investigations and related data analyses.

GRADING POLICY:
Course grades will be based upon student performance on assignments, or examinations, and a series of in-class exercises. Graduate students will be responsible for all of these tasks as well as selected book reviews (e.g., can choose from optional readings) and projects tailored to their own research.

ATTENDANCE:
I pay attention to student attendance, and, you should know that, if I see you in class all the time, dedicated and eager, this will be considered when I make decisions about your final grade in borderline cases. Similarly, if you rarely come to class, that, too will be considered.

DISABILITY ACCOMMODATIONS:
The Department of Anthropology is committed to equal opportunity in education for all students, including those with documented physical disabilities or documented learning disabilities. University policy states that it is the responsibility of students with documented disabilities to contact instructors DURING THE FIRST WEEK OF THE SEMESTER to discuss appropriate accommodations to ensure equity in grading, classroom experiences, and outside assignments. The instructor will meet with the student and/or the staff of the Disability Services for Students (DSS) (http://www.umt.edu/dss/) to formulate a plan for accommodations. Please contact DSS directly for more information: 406.243.2243, dss@umontana.edu.
