Description:

This course studies fiction and nonfiction texts—mostly contemporary—that explore the current spectrum of genders and sexualities. To these primary texts, we will apply the critical approaches of feminist, queer, trans*, and men’s studies in conjunction with our reading of theoretical essays.

- The course begins by queering or deconstructing, if you will, the received notions of gender and sex, in part through the study of expanding field of trans* studies. (from Winterson to Nelson)
- The second part of the course focuses on what Rubin has called “the traffic in women,” reading books about gender violence in regard to race (Morrison) as well as international (Clement) and local (Krakauer) cultures.
- We shift in the third part to contemporary fiction that represents portraits of gender: men (Horack), women (Moshfegh), and family (Kruse).
- Finally, we study the queer spectrum through Bechdel’s lesbian graphic novel, Greenwell’s gay novel, and Blanchfield’s queer essays.

Three of the authors (Clement, Blanchfield, and Kruse) have agreed to visit the class through Skype, so we will have an opportunity to talk to these authors about the sex/gender system.

Required Texts:

- Bechdel, Fun Home (2006)
- Blanchfield, Proxies, selections (2016)
- Clement, Prayers for the Stolen (2015)
- Greenwell, What Belongs to You (2016)
• Morrison, Paradise (1997)
• Winterson, Written on the Body (1992)

Work:

• Weekly quizzes are open-book but time-sensitive. Sometimes we will do threads instead, sometimes write short in-class essays. Students will also prepare questions for the writers who visit the course on Skype (33%)
• Three Response Papers (3-5 pages each) (33%)
• A final essay (12-15 pages) which includes a rough draft and short report to the class (33%)
• Attendance and participation: students are expected to come to class ready to ask and answer questions. More than three unexcused absences during the semester may result in a failing grade. Excellent participation will allow students with a grade point average on the cusp to have their grade rounded upward.

Ground Rules:

• I do not accept late papers unless the student contacts me with a reasonable excuse before the beginning of the class on the day the paper is due.
• There are no make-up quizzes.
• Students must attend at least one conference with the teacher during the semester.
• Students with disabilities will be accommodated.
• Plagiarism (the stealing of another’s words or ideas) will result in a recommendation of expulsion from the university. See the Student Conduct Code.
• http://www.umt.edu/umallies This classroom is a safe space for diverse populations and adheres to the principles of nondiscrimination based on ethnicity, gender, and sexual orientation as set forth by UM Allies.

Outcomes:
- Acquisition of skills in analyzing literature through close reading informed by the critical tradition of gender studies
- Familiarity with the vocabulary and discourse of feminism, gender studies, and queer theory
- Production of writing that demonstrates the ability to create coherent arguments about literature through the application of critical theory to text
