

Fall 9-1-2000

HIST 107.00: European Civilization from its Origins to 1715 - Honors

John A. Eglin

University of Montana - Missoula, john.eglin@umontana.edu

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi>

---

Recommended Citation

Eglin, John A., "HIST 107.00: European Civilization from its Origins to 1715 - Honors" (2000). Syllabi. 5220.
<https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi/5220>

This Syllabus is brought to you for free and open access by the Course Syllabi at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in Syllabi by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

HISTORY 107: HONORS COURSE, EUROPEAN CIVILIZATION TO 1715

History 107 is open to students seeking a more reading and writing intensive experience than is normally available in the standard 104 survey. Welcome! I look forward to working with each of you this semester. Let me call your attention to the following variations from the main course syllabus.

Course Requirements In addition to attending lectures and discussion sections and completing the 104 textbook and packet readings, students in 107 will write two 1500 word book reviews, the first to be written on James Davidson's Courtesans and Fishcakes and handed in Monday 2 October, and the second to be written on Steven Ozment's The Burgermeister's Daughter, due on Monday 13 November. Each of these essays will count toward 15% of the final grade, as will the midterms The final will count 20%. Attendance at and participation in section will count for 10%, as will the reading responses given in section (300 words for 107).

The only other variation from the 104 syllabus is that 107 students should read and complete responses for the Colloquies of Erasmus for the 2 November meeting.