OFFICERS, WIVES VISIT 'THEIR' CAMPUS FOR FIRST TIME

By Dennis Sale
UM Information Services

MISSOULA, Mont.--

Their comments ranged from "This certainly is a beautiful building!" to "What a beautiful place!" But whatever went through the minds of the University of Montana students from Malmstrom Air Force Base, one thing is certain. They'll remember their campus for a long time.

The quotes were heard as the missile launch control officers and their wives and sweethearts toured the new University Center at the University of Montana, Missoula, on Saturday, Nov. 15.

For most of the 50 men and the 30 women along with them, the guided tours, the University Center luncheon and the football game at new Dornblaser Field between the Grizzlies and the South Dakota State University Jackrabbits represented their first visit to the University. Through UM the men are enrolled as graduate students in the UM Minuteman Education Program at the air base near Great Falls.

A total of 109 Air Force launch control officers are studying for their Master of Business Administration degrees 165 miles from Missoula at the Great Falls facility under the direction of Dr. Bernard J. Bowlen, Great Falls, who is a UM faculty member and the resident administrator for the MBA program at the air base.

The MBA program was established by the UM School of Business Administration in June 1968 to help the men utilize to the maximum the time they have off as Minuteman Missile launch control officers.
