SOCIAL WELFARE
COURSE BEGINS
THURSDAY AT UM

MISSOULA---

A course dealing with the sociology of impoverished life styles will be offered at the University of Montana beginning Thursday night under the UM Extension Division.

The three-credit course--entitled Sociology 400, Problems in Social Organization-- is under the direction of Robert L. Deaton, an assistant professor of social welfare at UM. Classes will be from 7-10 p.m. Thursdays beginning this week in room 104 of the Liberal Arts Building. Deaton will teach the course.

Deaton said material for the course was recently developed by Morton L. Arkava, an associate professor of social welfare at UM, for the Office of Education.

School teachers, social workers, nurses and other social agency personnel are invited to register for the course at the first class meeting. Regular University students must secure Deaton's permission in order to take the program.

Those interested may contact Deaton by phoning 243-5533 on campus.
