MISSOULA--

Fourteen night courses will be offered during spring quarter at the University of Montana by the UM Extension Division.

Mary Margaret Courtney, Extension Division supervisor, said adults and others who wish to take one or more of the courses should register at the first meeting of each class. Fee is $16 per credit. Classes end June 10.

A course not having a sufficient number of students to pay expenses won't be offered.

Following is a listing of the spring quarter extension courses and the first date or dates of each offering. Courses with (G) in titles may be taken for graduate or undergraduate credit. Names of UM faculty members or others teaching the respective courses also are shown.
