MISSOULA--

The University of Montana track team will be at near full strength when the University of Idaho thinclads come to Missoula Saturday.

The Saturday meet, which begins at 1:15 p.m. at Dornblaser Field, is the first conference action for the Grizzlies and the first time this season that the UM team will be at ninety-eight per cent full strength.

Montana coach Harley Lewis said the only one missing for the Tip lineup this Saturday is Wade Jacobson. "Actually, Wade could run," Lewis said, "but there is a change that he could pull some muscles." Jacobson will be ready for the following week.

Lewis will have Dave Gustafson and Rob Andrews competing for the first time this year. Gustafson has pegged the javelin over 200 ft. and Andrews is an outstanding discus thrower.

The addition of Andrews will give the Tips extra strength in the weights, Lewis said. As a prep athlete he threw the plate near 180 ft. and could develop into a good shotputter. Andrews has been hampered with pulled ligaments in his knee.

The UM coach plans to juggle the lineup. He is going to run Bob Zins in the 440-yard dash and mile relay and Bill Zins in the 220-yard dash and 440-yard relay. Neither Zins will compete in the 100-yard dash as they have previously.

Lewis also plans to mix his distance runners up. "We are going to run our distance men in races that are not their specialities," he said.

The Montana coach said he will not run Roy Robinson in the high hurdles. He will wait until warmer weather so Robinson can have a chance to practice without chancing a pulled muscle. Last spring he won the 120-yard high hurdles at the Big Sky meet.

Lewis concluded, "This wasn't too bad a week for training, but we must have some more warmer weather; however, I am pleased with the team's progress thus far."
