

University of Montana

ScholarWorks at University of Montana

University of Montana Course Syllabi

Open Educational Resources (OER)

Fall 9-1-2012

PSCI 391.01: ST - International Political Economy

Abhishek Chatterjee

University of Montana - Missoula, abhishek.chatterjee@umontana.edu

Follow this and additional works at: <https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi>

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation

Chatterjee, Abhishek, "PSCI 391.01: ST - International Political Economy" (2012). University of Montana Course Syllabi. 5921.

<https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi/5921>

This Syllabus is brought to you for free and open access by the Open Educational Resources (OER) at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in University of Montana Course Syllabi by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.

University of Montana
Department of political science
International Political Economy
PSCI 391

Tuesdays and Thursdays 11:00-12:30
LA 306

Abhishek Chatterjee

Abhishek.chatterjee@umontana.edu

Fall 2012

Office hours: Wednesdays, 10-1pm and by appointment

Office: LA 355

This course is an introduction to some basic concepts, tools, and problems in international political economy. Particularly, it seeks to examine the implications of the ‘economic’ relations among ‘states’ (the terms are in quotes because we will further examine these concepts in some depth throughout the class). Since political economy is a vast field (once upon a time it included what is now known as economics) course such as this can only briefly sample the many issues and problems it deals with. Those interested in further study should consider taking various political economy related courses offered in the Political science department that interrogate issues introduced here in some detail. That being said, the course does force you to think a little bit about the issues that we do address. To that end it would be a good idea to do the readings carefully and spend some time thinking about them. Be forewarned: This is not solely a lecture course. Though I will be doing some lecturing, I will also expect active student participation.

In addition to building your knowledge about theories and concepts of political economy, this course also aims to develop several types of skills. First is your critical reading ability - i.e., being able to read and understand what authors are arguing and the strengths and weaknesses of their views. The second is your ability to write clearly - an extremely difficult task that can only be mastered through practice. Virtually no one is a born writer. Virtually everyone can be a good - even outstanding - writer. Focused papers will help to develop your skills. Third the course encourages you to develop your “public” speaking skills – albeit a very accepting and public. There is a heavy emphasis on student participation and discussion in each class, along with more structured presentations and debates. Finally some of the work is accomplished in small groups. Working in groups is a developed skill and hopefully the discussions and projects we do will contribute to it. Be assured that your grade in the course will be based overwhelmingly on your individual performance.

Readings: There are no textbooks for the course and all readings are available on blackboard/moodle

Course requirements

1. 15%: First paper
2. 20% Second paper
3. 20%: Critical Review of article (s)

4. 15%: Informed, quality participation in class discussions, including 1) Presentation of critical review of article to which the rest of the class will then respond. Your critical review will consist of well-thought answers to, at the minimum, the following three questions about readings of your choice:

- a. What is a major strength or one most significant theoretical/conceptual contribution of the Reading? Why?
- b. What is one major weakness or one most significant theoretical/conceptual weak point of the reading? Why?
- c. How can the author improve his or her article?

Procedure for selecting your “Critical Assessment/Review”

Select a weekly topic that is of interest to you and then browse through that week’s readings to determine if you want to select particular readings for your “Critical Assessments”

To select class readings for your “Critical Assessments”

- In your email, please specify your 1st and 2nd choices for your “Critical Assessment”
- If your requested reading is too easy or too short, other readings from the same week will be added to your assignment.
- Reading assignments will be made on a “first come, first choice” basis, according to the time and date of your email.
- Do not wait too long before selecting your readings, or else there will be no readings available for you.

4. 30%: Take home final exam

Assignments must be handed in at the beginning of class on the date assigned (except for the take home final; see below). Late papers will be marked down by 1/3 a grade (e.g., B goes to B-) per day (or any part thereof).

Attendance: More than two unexcused absences will negatively affect your participation grade.

How to Read an Article or Book in Political Science

When analyzing any topic in political science (or any other social science for that matter) it is important to keep methodological issues in mind. When approaching theory, be it IR theory or otherwise, always ask yourself: What is at stake in this article or book? Specifically, you should ask:

- ❖ What is the central question of this book/article? What puzzle is the author trying to explain?
- ❖ What is the central argument? (cause and effect or independent and dependent variables, important intervening variables or scope conditions)

- ❖ What are the competing arguments?
- ❖ What are the strengths and weaknesses of this argument versus the competing arguments?
- ❖ What evidence does that author present that is convincing...or not?
- ❖ So what? Why does this matter? What are the policy implications? What are the theoretical implications?

By approaching your readings with these questions in mind you will be able to extract the relevant information from the reading, remember it better, and be able to utilize the ideas more effectively in your papers and exams.

Tips on close reading

Close reading entails reflecting on the text as you are reading, and evaluating the author's argument. Here are a few suggestions for close reading:

Look for the author's argument and the evidence she uses to support it: What is the main claim she makes? With whom is she disagreeing? Then consider your reactions to the author's work: Does this make sense to you? Why or why not? What are the weaknesses of the argument?

- Always read with pencil in hand. Jot down thoughts you want to raise in class. Write your reactions to the text in the margins. Above all, think about what you are reading; if you find yourself turning pages numbly, stop, take a pause, and then refocus on the author's chain of thought.
- Plan your readings to be spaced out in reasonable increments. Thoughtful reading takes time and energy. It is more pleasant and more productive to read over several days than to try and compress all the reading into a couple of nights.
- Don't use a highlighter. Writing comments (e.g., "good counterpoint to Karl Marx") helps a reader engage with the text, whereas highlighting encourages passivity and torpor— READING IS NOT A SPECTATOR SPORT.
- Keep track of the parts of the text where you had questions, objections, or fierce agreement with the author's points. Note page numbers on a separate sheet of paper. You may also want to use post-it flags for quick reference to key passages.
- When you are done reading, check to see that you can summarize the author's argument in a few sentences. You may want to take 5 minutes and write down this summary, particularly if you are reading several different texts in given week.
- Remember that the goal of close reading is not just to have touched the pages, but to be able to say something about the material and evaluate it.

These tips may seem unfamiliar at first, but can become useful habits when practiced over time.

Additional Info:

- Some of the readings in this course could be difficult. Please do not hesitate to see me in office hours or make an appointment if you feeling like you are having difficulties.
 - Some issues generate a substantial clash of ideas. It is important to remember that vigorously debating ideas is NOT incompatible with respecting the people with whom you disagree. Decorum and respect are expected.
 - It should go without saying that the Honor Code will be strictly enforced. Ignorance of the Honor Code is not an excuse. The code can be found at http://life.umt.edu/vpsa/student_conduct.php If you have any question(s) please see me.
-

Course Schedule (this is subject to change)

Tuesday August, 28, Thursday August 30
---	--

No readings

Tuesday Sept. 4	What are social explanations?
----------------------------	--------------------------------------

- Robin Dunbar, The Trouble with Science, “What is this Thing Called Science?”
How do we study “reality”? Answer: through necessarily drastic simplification. But how do we do this?
How does the subject matter of political economy simplify the world?
What does it mean to “explain in the social sciences?”

Thurs, Sept. 6	More on Social Explanations
---------------------------	------------------------------------

- Jon Elster, “Nuts and Bolts for the Social Sciences,” Chapter II, 13-21

Tuesday, Sept. 11	Microfoundations of political economy
------------------------------	--

Are people “rational”? If so, how rational? Individually rational or collectively rational?

- Jon Elster, “Nuts and Bolts for the Social Sciences,” Chapter III, 22-39, Chapter IV, 30-41

Thursday, Sept.13	Microfoundations continued
------------------------------	-----------------------------------

- Mark Granovetter, “Economic Action and Social Structure: The Problem of Embeddedness,” The American Journal of Sociology, 91:3 (1985), 481-510

Tuesday, Sept. 18	Markets: what are they (and in history)?
------------------------------	---

- Karl Polanyi, The Great Transformation, pp. 43-85
- Charles Lindblom, “The Market as a Prison”

Thursday, Sept. 20	Markets in History (continued)
-------------------------------	---------------------------------------

- Neil Fligstein, “Markets as Politics: A Political-Cultural Approach to Market Institutions”

Plus go back to Granovetter above. What does he say about the implication of human behavior for markets?

Tuesday, Sept. 25	More about markets First Paper Questions Posted
------------------------------	--

Was Polanyi wrong? If so about what and to what extent? What was he right about?

- Santhi Hejeebu and Deirdre McCloskey, “The Reproving of Karl Polanyi”
- Fernand Braudel, Civilization and Capitalism: The Wheels of Commerce, pp. 223-230

Thursday, Sept. 27	The State
-------------------------------	------------------

You might have noticed sporadic references to states and their role in the origin and functioning of markets (or detected an implied role of the state in the articles above). But what are states and how did these political entities come into being?

- Charles Tilly, Selections from Coercion, Capital, and European States

Tuesday, Oct. 2	What do States do in their dealings with other states (or the relation between power and plenty)? First Paper due
----------------------------	--

- Jacob Viner, “Power Versus Plenty as Objectives of Foreign Policy in the Seventeenth and Eighteenth Centuries”

Thursday, Oct.4	Continued
----------------------------	------------------

- Robert Gilpin, “The Politics of Transnational Economic Relations”, International Organization, Vol. 25, No. 3, Transnational Relations and World Politics (Summer, 1971), pp. 398-41

Tuesday, Oct. 9	States and economic interaction: Two Views
----------------------------	---

- Stephen D. Krasner, “State Power and the Structure of International Trade” World Politics, Vol. 28, No. 3 (Apr., 1976), pp. 317-347

Thursday, Oct. 11	The Second view
------------------------------	------------------------

- Jeff Frieden, “Sectoral Conflict and Foreign Economic Policy, 1914-1940”, International Organization, Vol. 42, No. 1, The State and American Foreign Economic Policy (Winter, 1988), pp. 59-90

Tuesday, Oct. 16	Interactions between states and the international system: Three views
-----------------------------	--

- Timothy J. McKeown, “Hegemonic Stability Theory and 19th Century Tariff Levels in Europe,” International Organization, Vol. 37, No. 1 (Winter, 1983), pp. 73-91
- Peter Gourevitch, “The Second Image Reversed: The International Sources of Domestic Politics”, International Organization, Vol. 32, No. 4 (Autumn, 1978), pp. 881-912
- David A. Lake, “The State and American Trade Strategy in the Pre-Hegemonic Era”, International Organization, Vol. 42, No. 1, The State and American Foreign Economic Policy (Winter, 1988), pp. 33-58

Thursday,	The world system?
------------------	--------------------------

Oct. 18
----------------	--

- Immanuel Wallerstein, “The Rise and Future Demise of the World Capitalist System: Concepts for Comparative Analysis”, Comparative Studies in Society and History, Vol. 16, No. 4 (Sep., 1974), pp. 387-415

Tuesday, Oct. 23	Money
-----------------------------	--------------

- Christopher J. Neely, “An Introduction to Capital Controls”

Thursday, Oct. 25	More Money Second Paper Questions Posted
------------------------------	---

- Jeffrey Frieden, “Invested Interests: The Politics of National Economic Policies in a World of Global Finance,” International Organization, Vol. 45, No. 4

Tuesday, October 30	We have already been implicitly talking about globalization. Let us make it explicit by using the term (or what is new about ‘globalization’)?
--------------------------------	---

- Herman Schwartz, “Globalization: the Long View”
- Karl Marx and Friedrich Engels, “The Communist Manifesto”

Thursday, November 1	Is ‘Globalization’ (of the kind we have been talking about) another form of imperialism?
-------------------------------------	---

- Adam Smith, Wealth of Nations, Book IV, Chapter VII, Part III

Tuesday, November 6	No Class-election day
------------------------------------	------------------------------

Thursday, November 8	More on “globalization.” And how did the rich countries get rich?
-------------------------------------	--

- John A. Hobson, Imperialism, a Study, pp. 64-93
- Ha-Joon Chang, Kicking Away the Ladder, selections

Tuesday, Nov.13	Another Historical View
----------------------------	--------------------------------

- Immanuel Wallerstein, “After Developmentalism and Globalization,What”, Social Forces 83:3, March 2005

Thursday, Nov. 15	Globalization: the modern debate
------------------------------	---

- Helen Milner, “Globalization, Development, and International Institutions: Normative and Positive Perspectives,” Perspectives on Politics

Tuesday, November 20	A documentary/some clips about globalization
-------------------------------------	---

	Wednesday Nov 21- Nov 26: Thanksgiving Break
--	---

Tuesday, November 27	A debate on “globalization” Final Exam Posted
-------------------------------------	--

- Martin Wolf, Why Globalization Works (New Haven, CT: Yale University Press, 2005)
- Joseph Stiglitz, Globalization and its Discontents, (New York: WW Norton, 2002) selections

Thursday, December 4	Let us rethink some concepts: Is the distinction between ‘power’ and ‘plenty’ (‘Politics’ and ‘Economics’) clear cut, or what the heck is “capital”?
-------------------------------------	---

- Thorstein Veblen “On the Nature of Capital, I and II” The Place of Science in Modern Civilization and Other Essays, pp. 324-387
- Fernand Braudel, Civilization and Capitalism: the wheels of commerce, pp. 232-249

Tuesday, December 6	Make Up Day and wrap up
------------------------------------	--------------------------------

Final Exam due on the 12th by 5 pm (electronic submission)