Program Council loses on concerts

Cold Blood and Fanny, who gave two concerts Saturday night, were termed "very uncooperative" groups by Program Council Director Dave Gorton Monday.

The council lost about $1,500 on the concerts. Only 400 people went to the first concert, while 1,283 attended the second.

"This is the first concert this year," Gorton said, "with such a bad public response."

After the concert a University technician accidentally gathered up one of Cold Blood's electrical cords with those that belonged to the University Center, Gorton said.

"A guy with Cold Blood saw it and blew up," he said. "He delivered a five-minute tirade full of the worst language one could hear anywhere."

"It was a very unprofessional group, and displayed total disregard for the terms of its contract."

Chairs for the concerts were arranged in a v-shape, leaving room to sit on the floor at the sides. Gorton said the arrangement did not work because the crowd at the second concert asked for more chairs and then started stacking them, unused, on the sides after the second song.

Gorton complained about the amount of smoking. He said cigarette smoking increases the fire hazard.

The concert brought in $4,500. Fanny and Cold Blood cost $2,500 and $3,000 respectively; and workers, ballroom rent, advertising and ticket costs totaled about $1,000, Gorton said. After the groups repay expenses, including transportation expenses, Gorton said, he anticipated a $1,500 loss.

It's a Beautiful Day and the Elvin Bishop Group will perform Feb. 5. Gorton said Bishop is a blues guitarist who used to play in the Butterfield Blues Band. He said the Feb. 5 concert will be the first one held in the Field House since renovation work began.

Committee criticized

The ASUM Academic Affairs Committee was labelled a "garbage committee" by Jim Hotvedt, new chairman of the committee, in a Montana Kaimin interview Thursday.

Hotvedt said the purpose of the committee was to investigate academic problems. However, he said, some problems the other committees do not want have been referred to his committee in the past.

Hotvedt explained that because some committees' duties are not well defined, the problems one committee has to deal with may actually be under the jurisdiction of another committee. He said a great deal of confusion has occurred between his committee and the Curriculum Committee.

Hotvedt said the committee is planning to consider two major proposals this quarter. One concerns faculty members on Central Board. The other will deal with students on Faculty Senate.

Hotvedt said his committee is being reorganized because several committee members are working at the Montana Constitutional Convention and some others have lost interest.

Anyone interested in being a committee member should apply at the ASUM offices in the University Center.

Coach satisfied with poll

Athletic Director Jack Swarthout said yesterday the results of the poll taken on student funding of athletics were indicative of strong student support for athletics.

"The results weren't exactly what I'd hoped for," Swarthout said, "because I'd like to see a majority of students supporting our program. However, since the tally was so close, I think we fared pretty well."

The poll, tabulated last Wednesday by Central Board members, indicated 44.6 per cent of students voting in the poll either favor the present athletic expenditure or wish to see it increased. A total of 45.8 per cent of the students voted to decrease the budget, while 8.9 per cent expressed no opinion. CB voided 37 ballots.

"I think more students would have supported the program if they understood our side of the story," Swarthout said, "but I have no way of reaching the students. The Kaimin refuses to print our side."

Swarthout said one portion of the ballot was misleading. He said the library book fund should not have been mentioned on the ballot because student funds cannot be used for building or furnishing classroom-type structures. According to Swarthout, student monies directly used to purchase library books would be illegal under state law.

"I think few students realize this," he said. "All students can do is to use their money to raise money for a library fund; they can't buy the books directly."

Concerning the new student admission charge at home basketball games, Swarthout said, "I don't want to charge students for admission because it's their team and I don't want to alienate their support. Students shouldn't be treated like common spectators, but it's out of my control."

Watt discusses Con-Con

by Cindy Samuelson
Montana Kaimin Reporter

Robert Watt, lobbyist for the Montana Student Presidents' Association (MSPA), said Thursday he thinks he will be able to communicate better with the Montana Constitutional Convention delegates than a student could.

Watt, a former state legislator and retired superintendent of schools for Missoula County, was chosen by the MSPA to represent all Montana universities and colleges. The average age of the convention delegates is 50.

Students want a good government, one in which they have some say without running into blank walls, he said in a Montana Kaimin interview.

Watt said he will not lobby for or against an issue until he refers it to the MSPA. In case of a disagreement among MSPA members, he said, he will not lobby on that issue.

Watt said he thinks fewer "hard-driving" lobbyists will be present at the convention than are present at legislative sessions because money-interest groups will not be represented at the convention.

Issues that concern students and for which he will be lobbying include a stronger bill of rights, a better judicial system, shortened residency requirements for voting and better organization of the university system, he said.

According to Watt, the secret executive session used for committee voting is one area of state government that needs revision. The issue concerns whether secret sessions should be held and whether the public has a right to know how the legislators vote.

He said students must use foresight when voicing an opinion on an issue.

"Something that doesn't seem important now can have a great effect on the students' later life," he said. "For example, we have to retain the referendum and initiative because this gives us a chance."

He said he will inform students about convention issues through student government and papers. If more money is available, flyers will be distributed at the campuses.

As a legislator, Watt said, he backed student causes.

"Students aren't leaving the establishment, they're working within it to make it right," he said.

No permanent lines of communication exist between the convention and the Montana colleges and universities. Watt can be reached in Helena at 800 Flowerree. His phone number is 443-3593.

Indians to help hire director

University of Montana Indian students will be part of the decision-making process when the new UM Indian Studies director is chosen in February.

Five students and seven faculty members comprise the search and screening committee, which recommends applicants for the position. Applicants then are interviewed by the administration, the faculty, the committee and students involved in the Indian Studies program.

The duties of the director include formulating programs, teaching, handling public relations and counseling. Judy Abell, president of the Kyi-Yo Indian Club and junior in social welfare, said the director "works so closely with students and student programs that it is important students have a say in who he is."

One of the major incentives for Indian enrollment at the University is the Indian studies program, Harold Gray, acting director of the program, said. Indian enrollment has increased from 100 students in 1969 to more than 150 this year.

With the increased enrollment it is even more important to have a director who can get along with and guide the Indian student, Gray said.

In a letter to Richard Solberg, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, Alonzo Spang, former Indian Studies director, recommended that students take part in choosing a new director.

The Kyi-Yo club will interview applicants and by consensus of the members, recommend first, second and third choices, Gray said.

CB election may be early

A proposed rescheduling of the Central Board elections from late April to March 8 is being considered by Planning Board.

Leroy Berven, Planning Board commissioner and junior in chemistry, said the proposed change would provide a smoother transition between the outgoing and incoming student governments. Berven said scheduling the elections prior to the two dead days before finals would give new officers and CB delegates time to organize their programs during test week and spring break.

John Christensen, ASUM president, said he approves the proposed change. Christensen said the change would give the new president more time to prepare his two most critical programs—budgeting and program council.

"I was elected on April 19 last year," Christensen said, "and was really pressed for time in organizing and submitting my programs."

If a primary is necessary it could be held March 1, Berven said. Seventeen CB delegates and three director positions will be up for election.

Planning Board wants to have the date change approved and information distributed to potential candidates by January 26, Berven said.

Athletic poll results tabulated

To the Editor:

For the benefit of anyone who was left slightly uncertain about the athletic poll results by last Thursday's Kaimin story, I have prepared a FULL tabulation.

Each question can be computed from two or more bases. This depends on whether one counts "no opinion" votes and voided ballots as percentages of the totals. I've done it both ways.

base totals:

Alternative posed to 'rip-off' artists

To the Editor:

Anyone interested in an alternative to the rip-off artists (alias Associated Students' Store)?

I am. I've got a few ideas and would like to get in contact with people who are tired of spending more money than is necessary for the glorious education we're receiving at UM.

I'd like to have interested people contact me to set up a meeting for kicking around some ideas of action we can take. Anyone—professors, students, staff—who desires to pay less for the same stuff and is willing to implement mouth work with regular work contact me at 243-5483 during the day or 549-8775 during the evening. If I'm not there, leave a name and number where I can reach you. We need some action. Thanks.

Student disturbed by lack of interest

To the Editor:

On Jan. 11, James Farmer presented a lecture encompassing many of the issues we are faced with today. He pointed out problems in the field of education; he raised the question of how does one speak to power in this country today, and he brought up one of the gravest problems facing our country today — racism.

Here is a man who has worked inside and outside of the system, a man who has contact with many of the revolutionary groups existent today. And a man whose experience and knowledge can help us answer many of the problems facing us today. He is probably one of the most relevant speakers on today's issues that we will have all year. Yet only a handful of people were interested enough to attend.

Where were all those so-called activists that are supposed to be present on a college campus?

Explosives found in drug raid

BILLINGS — A stolen cache of rifles, grenades and ammunition seized by Yellowstone County authorities last week in a drug raid was apparently bound for the National Guard Armory in Helena, Sheriff James Meeks said yesterday.

Meeks said the explosives were picked up during a drug raid at a Billings address Thursday. A small amount of marijuana and amphetamines was also found at the residence, he said.

Two persons, Tommy Robert Blubaugh, 28, and Angela Saritta Gunch, 20, both of Billings were charged Friday with possession of dangerous drugs in Justice Court, Meeks said. A preliminary hearing was set for tomorrow in District Court.

A total of 200 grenade fuses in eight boxes, about 18 rifle grenades and various types of ammunition was found.

Court to rule on death penalty

WASHINGTON — The Supreme Court agreed yesterday to rule on the constitutionality of the death penalty.

The high court set up the historic confrontation over the Constitution by accepting the appeals of four cases — two for murder and two for rape — in which the defendants were condemned to death.

The Court also set the stage for its first full-scale inquiry into school segregation outside the South.

Acting on an appeal by the NAACP Legal Defense and Educational Fund, the Court announced it would look at the school situation in Denver, a large city with sizable black and Spanish-speaking minorities.

Kennedy drops Florida race

TALLAHASSEE—Sen. Edward Kennedy of Massachusetts removed his name yesterday from the ballot for Florida's Presidential primary, saying "without qualification that I am not now and do not presently intend to become a candidate for President at the upcoming nominating convention."

Kennedy was one of 12 Democrats listed by Florida Secretary of State Richard Stone for the March 14 primary.

Kennedy's fellow senator from Massachusetts, Republican Edward Brooke, said he thinks Kennedy would accept a draft for the nomination.

UM book drive continues

Organizers of the Associated Students of Montana book drive are continuing efforts to solicit donations from parents, faculty and businessmen through letters and newspaper advertisements.

Greg Beck ASUM book drive chairman, said his group is planning its biggest drive next week by appealing to Missoula businesses.

"Western Montana Bank has contributed $1,010 and we hope this donation will serve as an incentive to other businesses," he said.

$26,000 has been donated already, Beck said.

The student fund drive was started last March when the UM library's accreditation was threatened.

Tips take Loggers in 68-61 struggle

The University of Montana Grizzlies overwhelmed the Loggers of Puget Sound University last night in a boisterous, 68 to 61 struggle.

Although unusually slow in the first minutes of play, the Tips, lead by sure-shooter Dale Parker, forged ahead early and kept the lead until the end.

The Loggers struggled to regain the lead, applying an almost devastating press, but UM came back with an elusive offense to hold the boards until the final buzzer.

Montana's Mike Murray was the game's high scorer, with 18 points, followed by sophomore Robin Selvig, with 16 points.

High scorer for the Loggers was senior Dan Bogrand, with 13 points.

Mitchell calls for incorporation study

Associated Students of the University of Montana should investigate incorporation of its organization, George Mitchell, administrative vice president, said yesterday in an interview with the Montana Kaimin.

He said that while, at present, each student can be sued individually in any action against ASUM, under the laws dealing with incorporation, the student body as a whole would be liable. The corporation would also have the power to sue other parties and to own property, Mitchell said.

If ASUM were incorporated, it could invest student funds, Mitchell said. The profits from that investment could not be returned to the students in the form of direct refund, he said, but could be used in the interests of students as a whole.

Mitchell said an attorney should be hired to study the legal aspects and to clear up the "gray areas" concerning incorporation. He estimated the cost of incorporation for ASUM at $500.

No antibiotics for flu patients

Students coming down with flu this winter should not expect to receive antibiotics from the University Health Service.

The University of Montana Health Service will not dispense antibiotics to flu patients, Dr. Robert Curry, health service director, said Wednesday.

Dr. Robert Curry, health service, director, said antibiotics have no substantial effect on the flu virus.

"Students who have the flu should stay in bed, drink plenty of fluids and take aspirin as needed," Curry said. "Flu is a virus, and drugs such as penicillin don't effect it very much. Rest is probably the best medicine."

Curry said the Health Service already has treated many students for the virus this quarter, although the exact flu strain involved is not known.

"We're having several specimens tested and we should know the strain in two or three weeks," he said.
