Sorenson team takes election

Bob Sorenson and Clay Collier were elected ASUM President and Vice President, respectively, in yesterday's election by 59.4 per cent of the vote. The total votes cast for Sorenson and Collier was 1,021.

New Frontier candidates, Dan Norman and John Cote received 384 votes; Tom Mozer and Chris Serhveen, Coalition candidates, got 313.

Blake Johnson running unopposed as Business Manager received 1,139.

Leroy Berven tallied the most votes for off-campus delegates for Central Board with 421, followed by Randy Gray, 346; Christine Anderson, 316; Judy Gilbert, 297; Steve Sorenson, 279; Bruce Swenson, 267; Richard Madsen, 264; Mary Ann Galt, 257; Manassets Kigame, 257; Jane Fouty, 252; Pat Madison, 248. In 12th place is Bruce Nelson with 240.

Berven, Madsen, Galt and Madison listed no party affiliation, Anderson, Gilbert, Swenson and Fouty ran for the Coalition party; Gray and Sorenson for the Independent party.

Taking office as on-campus delegates for CB are Brian Flaherty, with 225; Tim Ragen, 341, and Matt Tennis, 170. Organized off-campus delegates are Clark Hanson, 79 votes and Linda Gohrick with 55. Hanson and Gohrick ran on the Independent Party ticket.

George Kolokotronis, New Frontier Party, was the only candidate for CB from married student housing, where 12 votes were cast.

Tom Shaughnessy took top count for the Store Board with 673, followed by Kevin Campana, 658, and Wesley Winkler, 480.

About 20 per cent of the student body voted in what Raynee Bretherton, ASUM Secretary, said was the best run election she has seen in seven years.

Woodahl orders architect to correct Complex flaws

HELENA (AP) — Atty. Gen. Robert Woodahl said yesterday the project architect for the Science Complex at the University of Montana has been instructed to remedy problems in the new structure by May 31.

Woodahl said "the heating system as presently functioning is inadequate to properly heat the exterior rooms of the complex, and the exhaust and ventilation systems are not properly clearing the noxious odors and fumes from the building area."

Knight and Co., Great Falls, is the project architect. Woodahl said his examination showed that the general contractor, Pew Construction, Missoula, as well as the electrical contractor, Electric Smith, Spokane, Wash., successfully completed their jobs on the structure in Missoula.

"Their commendable work has been accepted by the Division of Architecture and Engineering and approved by the University," Woodahl said in a prepared statement.

Several of the problems were neither design nor construction errors, the attorney general said, "but were due to changes by university personnel in the use of previously designed facilities."

He said, however, that the primary problems involve the heating, exhaust and ventilation systems of the Science Complex, and added: "If the major problems are not remedied to the satisfaction of the state, then I intend to do everything necessary to protect the state's interests."

Faculty women to sue UM

An ad hoc committee of faculty women is bringing suit against the University of Montana for discriminatory salary, hiring and promotion practices, Mary Cummings, instructor in social welfare, said yesterday.

Thirty of the forty-nine full-time UM faculty women attended the Tuesday night meeting, but only fifteen were still present when the decision was made to file the suit.

In a March 16 letter to President Robert Pantzer, the committee requested that the University administration "as of April 1, 1972, in addition to whatever back pay is deserved, eliminate differences in salaries by making the appropriate alignments for women faculty members and insure that no further discrepancies occur."

The letter also stated that unless the deadline was met, "legal action can be taken against the University to bring about compliance with the law." The law comes from a national executive order prohibiting discrimination of any kind in projects using federal funds.

Late in March Pantzer said it was not possible to meet the April 1 deadline given by the committee. He said that he would charge various committees with the responsibility of reviewing the situation and that he would begin to prepare an appeal to the State legislature calling for special allocations.

A spokeswoman for the committee claimed that the money does not have to come from the legislature. She said that it is in the budget and needs only to be rebudgeted.

The committee, composed of Maureen Ullrich, assistant professor of business administration, Sara Steensland, associate professor of home economics and Cummings, claims to represent all faculty women.

Charline Smith, assistant professor of anthropology, disclaimed any connection with the committee.

"At no time have I given consent to being represented by you," Smith wrote in a letter to the committee yesterday.

The committee is now consulting with local attorneys on the most effective way to take legal action. Cummings said.

John Lawry, chairman of the Missoula chapter of the American Federation of Teachers, said the union will help the committee in dealing with the administration.

The spokeswoman for the committee said she expects the suit to be filed within the next two weeks.

MontPIRG to form speakers' bureau

A speakers' bureau and petition drive will be initiated and completed at the University of Montana and on three additional Montana campuses before the end of May, Jim Betty, graduate student in forestry and co-organizer of MontPIRG, said yesterday.

The campuses involved, Betty explained, are Eastern Montana, Montana State University and Carroll College.

"These are the campuses that have shown the most interest, and they are the core groups that have been working on organization of their campuses for the last several months," Betty said.

Eastern's petition, according to

Betty, has resulted in 50 per cent of the students signing in favor of collecting $1 from each student for MontPIRG funding.

MSU and Carroll are just getting their petition drives underway, he said, and no substantial results have been determined.

Betty said a Ralph Nader visit, which is tentatively scheduled for May, will climax the petition drives on all of the Montana campuses. The dates for Nader's visit will be confirmed within a week.

The speakers' bureau will be organized on the UM campus for the purpose of informing community groups on the MontPIRG concept, Betty said.

This bureau, he explained, will be organized from the 228 students that want to become active in the organization. The purpose of the bureau will be to define the role of MontPIRG in the state of Montana.

"The residents of Montana must understand that MontPIRG will not be a group of malcontents or radicals with an ax to grind. The organization provides a vehicle for responsible and accountable student participation in state wide public interest issues," Betty said.

Issues that MontPIRG will be handling, Betty said are areas of corporate responsibility, industrial health and safety, accountability in marketing consumer products by area merchants and landlord-tenant relationships.

MontPIRG's role will be to act as a citizen's representative to federal and state agencies responsible to Montana residents. In addition, it will be capable of drafting model legislation and taking test cases to court on behalf of Montana citizens, Betty said.

"MontPIRG will be a student-funded and student-directed group responsive to all residents of Montana," Betty said, "and it will be incumbent on the local chapters to actively solicit problem areas in their local community."

A state board of directors, comprised of students and elected by student members of MontPIRG, will be established, after all chapters have organized, Betty said. Each state director will represent about 2,000 students active on the college level.

"The student funds from all participating local chapters will be governed by the state board. The money will be used to pay a full-time professional staff comprised of two lawyers and two experienced researchers and will be allocated toward researching and acting upon statewide public interest issues," Betty said.

The professional staff will also be available to students on the UM campus for guidance in research efforts concerning MontPIRG projects, he said.

Organized citizen's groups have already contacted the steering committee, Betty said, because they are interested in involving students on the UM campus in community issues they are presently researching.

MontPIRG offices will be separate from the University. All services to or from the campus will be on a contract basis, he said.

Betty also said that MontPIRG will be able to offer summer internships, work-study funds, and research grants to students actively researching issues for MontPIRG.

A table will be in the University Center beginning next week to offer further information to students interested in the program, Betty said.

FBI, State approach end of athletic work-study probe

By Dee McNamer
Montana Kaimin Reporter

Federal and state investigators are in the last stages of a lengthy probe of alleged misuse of work-study funds by the University of Montana athletic department.

While on the UM campus the state attorney general's staff and the FBI reviewed departmental ledgers and interviewed officials, athletes and administrative personnel. Legislative Auditor Morris Brusett, who heads the state team, said that the books of 18 other departments have been audited since the beginning of the investigation as part of a survey of work-study operations in all the departments.

Recently, however, interest in the investigation shifted to Billings, where a federal grand jury finished two and one-half days of closed-door deliberations by issuing 16 secret indictments. Two of the indictments are from the Missoula judicial district.

U.S. Atty. Otis Packwood, head of the team of government lawyers presenting cases to the grand jury, has repeatedly refused to discuss the possibility that the grand jury was called specifically to consider the alleged misuse of federal work study funds within the UM athletic department.

Frank Kampfe, attorney for UM Athletic Director Jack Swarouth, told the Associated Press he is confident the jury would consider the work-study affair.

Although Swarouth was in Billings during the jury proceedings, he said that he was not one of several Missoula residents who had been subpoenaed to appear before the jury. A sheriff's deputy confirmed that some subpoenas had been delivered in the area, but declined to identify the individuals who received them.

Swarouth and members of his staff have been given strict orders by U.S. District Judge James Battin not to discuss the investigation. Battin also warned the law firm of Sandall-Moses and Cavan and firm member Frank Kampfe not to discuss the work study situation with the news media. Packwood has refused to discuss the jury proceedings or indictments.

If the indictments coming out of this or a future session of the grand jury indicate criminal misuse of work study funds, reaction could take several forms:

- The work study program at the University could be suspended. The University could be forced to reimburse the government for funds that have been paid out incorrectly.
- UM membership in the Big Sky conference and NCAA could be subject to review and possible termination.
- Some University jobs could be endangered.
- The Board of Regents could take some type of disciplinary action.
- Next year's state legislature could react unfavorably to proposed funding increases for the University system.

In the early stages of the investigation State Atty. Gen. Robert Woodahl implied that the matter could turn into "something big." UM President Robert Pantzer agreed and cited possible repercussions on federal, state and conference levels.

It is impossible to know whether or not their fears will be confirmed until the grand jury's indictments are made public.

WASH IN WHITE

Time heals all wounds, it's said, and if so, Jack Swarthout's lost face will be entirely healed and replaced by the time federal, state and local officials get around to deciding what to do about alleged work-study fund misuse by the athletic department.

University of Montana officials were officially aware of the at-best questionable practices indulged in by the department last fall, when Internal Auditor Ray Menier uncovered the discrepancies, which, he said, included poor bookkeeping, dishonest practices and above-the-board payoffs to athletes who questioned consequential discrepancies in their income tax returns.

Atty. Gen. Robert Woodahl became aware of the situation in the latter part of January and immediately began an investigation into the matter. The Federal Bureau of Investigation stepped in Jan. 27 to look for misuse of federal funds.

On the federal level, so far a grand jury investigation has been called. The group talked to, among other people, Swarthout, an athletic department secretary and at least one athlete.

The jury issued 16 indictments after its business was finished recently. Of those, two were for the Missoula division (the jury dealt with other federal matters), and one of the two reportedly was for a murder case nearby.

All of which leaves us hanging as to whether the one indictment—or any of them—is connected with the athletic magilla. Nothing official can be established: grand jury proceedings are not public record as are trials, traffic tickets and state pay-rolls. Our Secret Society.

Government investigation is entering its third month, while UM officials have wallowed in the mire for nigh on all year. What's being done?

"We're looking into the matter" is the collective answer, sifted through, with the rhetoric and bureaucratic prattle removed.

Looking into, indeed, other departments, in an effort to shift the guilt to other, less voter-pleasing, tax money-luring programs: to name a few, the English department, with all the hippies; history, with the readers; art, with the beatniks, and black studies, with the niggers.

It's rather fruitless, though; all that's been found, reportedly, was a time-misrepresentation in one department. Nude models may have been paid double time for posing, since the maximum work-study wage, $3 an hour, doesn't quite make up for those cold hours upon the pedestal. This, and a general administrative sloppiness, is about all that may be found outside athletics.

Foremost in the mess and successive efforts to purge somebody somewhere so that someone someplace might smile, get a raise and a few more votes (forget justice here; they have), remains the question, "how come it's taken so damn long?"

How come it's taken so long to find out if somebody got somebody else's money? How come it's taken so long for any official, UM, state or federal, to admit any more than, "there's a situation"?

Consider the obvious:

Have you ever met a totally honest administrator?

Have you ever met a politician, public official-servant—whatever it is the current specie of governmental castrati call themselves—who is also totally honest?

Have you ever met one of either folk who is effective?

Nixon challenger wants mail

Editor: Hi. While the parole board decides the result of my Feb. 8 hearing, I'd like some mail.

I am a serious candidate for the President of the United States of America.

Three senators have written the Parole Board concerning me.

Maybe some Montana State students would take a minute and drop me a line.

I'd sure appreciate it.

Unofficial candidate denounced

Editor: Bill Vaughn is mocking a decent democratic election with his nihilistic campaign for write-in votes for ASUM President. If Vaughn thinks he's funny, he has got another thing coming.

DAN McINTYRE

EDITOR'S NOTE: Vaughn, who has expended next to no effort to get elected, said he plans to get his campaign in full swing after the election.

What do you mean, 'we'?

Editor:

To the ad hoc committee representing full-time faculty women:

Dear Ms's:

At no time have I given consent to being represented by you. This is to make clear that I was not, and did not wish to be, represented in an ultimatum presented to the University of Montana administration, or in any legal action against the administration.

Further, I request that, in any future action, statements, etc., you clearly specify that you do not represent all full-time faculty women.

Christensen apologizes for non-turnout

Editor: I apologize to the Missoula County commissioners for the lackadaisical turnout in Precinct 52. I feel I must share some of the blame for not getting publicity out to the students concerning the election and getting them to vote absentee for those, like myself, who were out of town. It is sad to become so tied up in campus politics and student matters to forget such an important issue as the school elections, the basis of education.

I wish to thank Ken Wolff for all the help he has given us and am sorry that we failed him. It won't happen again. If we are to become part of the Missoula community, we are going to have to become involved in our community. I haven't become involved enough in the past, but I will in the future. We have no excuse for not voting.

More fruit trees suggested

Editor: There have been many predictions about the future concerning droughts, famines and such. Predictions such as these have always existed, though usually never finding themselves coming into being. But now, more than ever, one could imagine a revolt by nature, trying to tell us the need for balance and harmony.

Last summer I was invited to share in the harvesting of some fruit trees. I was amazed to see the vast quantity of food that was given from these four trees. The pears, apples and peaches picked that day would have been enough to last a family for many months in a needed situation.

I think about the many families in our country having to receive welfare to help in their living; and I think that for about two or three dollars apiece, fruit trees could be given to them through their welfare payments or some government help; in a few years not only would these trees be an excellent source of food and nutrition, but they would also add some beauty to the sometimes very coarse surroundings.

Some friends of mine in college are planning to ask their student senate if, for one year, they could use their class money for planting a small fruit orchard to be used to help the needy of their town, while also giving the students something good and free to eat. Churches could do something similar, in either giving certain families these kinds of trees or in planting their own.

I spoke to my father about planting some trees on our property, and he groused out something about fruit rotting and the lawn mower, extra expense and care . . . but ya see, Dad, they are very strong trees and almost completely self-sustaining, and agencies do exist that would readily take whatever fruit we couldn't use to give away fresh or to preserve: for still most of the world is hungry.

Group to hear Only McGovern, McCarthy complaints have Montana organizations

Students will soon have a means to voice their complaints about faculty members through a Faculty Ethics Committee, to be composed of two students and three faculty members.

Chris Servheen, senior in zoology and wildlife biology and Bryan Thornton, junior in psychology, were appointed in January by ASUM as student representatives to the committee. Representatives must be either upper-class or graduate students.

The committee will be operative after Faculty Senate elects two of the three faculty members and President Pantzer appoints the third, according to organizational chairman, Larry Elson, professor of law.

Proposed by ASUM to Faculty Senate, the committee has been in organizational stages since October. It provides a means for any student or faculty member to bring a grievance against any faculty member.

If the committee decides there is sufficient cause, a hearing will be held. The committee then has the power to dismiss the faculty member, issue a reprimand or refer the case to President Pantzer.

ASUM President John Christensen said that previously students have had to air complaints to either department heads or the academic vice president.

Though the campaign for the Democratic Presidential nomination is now in high gear, most of the candidates are ignoring Montana.

Only former Sen. Eugene McCarthy, of Minnesota, and Sen. George McGovern, South Dakota, have organizations in Montana according to Tim Seastadt, chairman of the University of Montana Students for McCarthy.

"McCarthy has decided to bypass Montana and concentrate on Oregon and California," Seastadt said.

McCarthy knows he is not going to win the nomination, Seastadt said, but he wants to keep his name in the news in case he decides to run a splinter party movement.

"If the Democrats nominate Hubert Humphrey, or a person of similar views, McCarthy will try to put together his own party," Seastadt said.

Seastadt said McCarthy will probably be hurt financially because of McGovern's victory in the Wisconsin primary last Tuesday.

"Most liberals will probably give their money to McGovern because of his Wisconsin showing," Seastadt said.

Shaun Thompson, state vice chairman of Montanans for McGovern and chairman of UM Students for McGovern, said McGovern has a good chance of capturing the Montana delegation to the Democratic National Convention.

"We will run large precinct captain slates in Billings, Great Falls and Missoula," Thompson said, "and partial slates in Bozeman, Butte and Helena." Thompson said he expects most rural counties to send uncommitted delegates to the state convention.

Thompson said that citizens' indifference to the Montana primary structure has been his main organizational obstacle.

Student thefts discouraged

Larry Hansen, manager of the University Bookstore, said Monday that seven people have been reported to the Dean of Students Office for shoplifting during the first week of classes.

He warned that this can be very harmful to a student's record as the infraction remains in the student's personal files for five years after leaving the University. He said that often prospective employers request the student's personal records and nobody hires a shop-lifter.

Hansen explained that the bookstore runs on a low profit margin and that shoplifting hurts the students. He said that any excess profits go into a special reserve fund, which are spent for the benefit of the students.

Science Fair begins Friday

About 280 projects will compete for awards at the 17th annual Montana Science Fair in the Men's Gymnasium on Friday and Saturday, April 7 and 8. Two of the participating 7 through 12th grade students will win an all-expense paid trip to the International Science and Engineering Fair in New Orleans this year.

The entries are divided into nine categories for grades 9 through 12 and two categories each for the 7th and 8th grades. Projects explaining "The Effects of Carbonated Beverages on Animal Tissues" and the "Wonders of Activated Charcoal", as well as others demonstrating "Cigarette Smoke Pollution" and the "Conditioning of Plants with Voice and Music," are among those entered in the fair.

The fair will be open to the public from 6 to 12 p.m. April 7 and from 8 a.m. to noon April 8.

An hour long program emceed by John Christensen, ASUM president, will begin at 3 p.m. on April 7. Richard Landini, UM academic vice president, will also address the participants Hellegate Chevaliers, a vocal group from Hellgate High School, will entertain.

Albert Finley, a science teacher at Joel Ferris High School in Spokane, Wash., will speak to the entrants at the awards program on April 8 at 12:30 p.m. Awards will be presented by John Taylor, a UM microbiology professor and Reuben Diettert, botany professor and organizer of the fair. In addition to the two grand prizes, a scholarship to the UM will be awarded through the Exchange Club of Missoula.

Indian Studies plans growth

The University of Montana Indian Studies Program is currently holding a series of curriculum meetings to plan for eventual expansion to departmental status.

Harold Gray, Indian Studies director, said he would probably submit the plans for Indian Studies expansion to the UM administration this summer after consultation with other departments.

Although Gray said he hoped that Indian Studies could offer a degree by next Fall Quarter, he admitted that the current moratorium on UM funds might cause a delay. Gray said he was able to get funds to hold the curriculum meetings from Richard Solberg, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences.

Student apathy kills Sentinel

There will be no yearbook next year Rick Hall, Sentinel business manager said in an interview yesterday.

Hall listed lack of student interest as the main cause for the discontinuation of the Sentinel.

"People just don't care what goes into the yearbook or even if there is a yearbook," he said.

According to Hall, about 1,200 yearbooks were sold this year and only about 40 per cent of them have been picked up. Last year only about 50 percent of the 1,550 yearbooks sold were ever picked up.

"We know that the students are not happy about the Sentinel, but we don't know what they want. Of the questionnaires that we put in this year's yearbook, and only half of them were filled out seriously," Hall said.

Another problem that Hall listed was the lack of an editor and business manager for next year.

"No one cares enough about the Sentinel to put in an application, and a Sentinel is impossible without a business manager and editor," Hall said.

"The yearbook's financial situation is not in good shape either," he said. "Not enough people want to buy a yearbook and we did not get any funding from ASUM for this year."

ID card discussion continues

Discussions are continuing on whether to change student ID cards, according to Wayne Woolston, University of Montana registrar.

Woolston said he hoped a decision would be reached by the end of Spring Quarter, so if the ID cards are changed, new ones would be ready for Fall Quarter.

The question of new ID's was raised last quarter by the Student Union Board, Woolston said. The board is looking for a way to limit tickets for university activities at reduced student rates to two per ID card.

An ID card that could be stamped or otherwise validated after the first ticket purchase would prevent additional purchases, Woolston explained.

The UM registrar said if new ID cards are made, it would be a simple matter to combine the ID, Food Service card and Graduate School ID so the student would have only one card to carry.

Feed and Read orders books for UM

Freddy's Feed and Read, one block from campus, received orders from 10 University of Montana professors for class books this quarter.

Linda Holding, part owner of Freddy's, said letters were sent to the departments early this year stating that Freddy's could give students a 20 per cent discount on text books.

"We can offer them cheaper because we're not interested in the profit," Holding said. "Also, we don't get ripped off as much."

Holding said the offer was made to the professors on an experimental basis and hoped that interested students could take over and enlarge the service.

Freddy's, which opened Winter Quarter, is a combination neighborhood grocery store.

New fine arts dean chosen

Robert Kiley, chairman of the Central Michigan University Art department since 1971, has been appointed dean of the School of Fine Arts, effective Aug. 1.

Kiley will replace John Lester, who has been acting dean since the resignation of Charles Bolen on Sept. 1, 1970. Lester will retire on June 30.

Kiley, a free-lance photographer, has taught at the University of Connecticut, Storrs, Conn., the School of Design, Houston, and was a visiting faculty member at Wesleyan University, Middletown, Conn.

A native of Fall River, Mass., Kiley received his B.S. and M.S. from the University of Michigan. He has also studied at the University of New Mexico and Cleveland School of Art.

Kiley has exhibited his photography in several New York galleries. His background includes commercial art, advertising, museum and gallery operations and community theater productions. He is also head of his own photography business.

UM gets grants to aid health work

Awards totaling $110,000 from the Louis W. and Maud Hill Family Foundation of St. Paul, Minn., have been granted to the University of Montana for the study and potential development of an integrated health-professions program.

John Taylor, Hill Foundation executive director, said the first grant of $21,000 was awarded April 1. Succeeding awards will include $20,000 on Oct. 1, 1972, $35,000 on April 1, 1973, and $34,000 on Oct. 1, 1973.

Designed to extend over a two-year period, the study will examine the feasibility of integrating the work of several campus clinics into a single comprehensive unit for the individual patient. The clinics will be conducted by faculty members in medically related programs on the campus.

Richard Landini, UM academic vice-president, said the main objectives of the program are to strengthen existing programs in health related fields and to increase the number of students enrolled in several clinical areas. He cited speech pathology and audiology, clinical psychology, social welfare, chemistry and microbiology as some clinical areas with possible enrollment increase.

Faculty women pick slate

A group of faculty women met Tuesday and drew up a slate of candidates for positions on the Faculty Senate. The group wants to enlist the support of the rest of the faculty, who will be voting soon on Senate nominees, to back these candidates and thus insure better representation of women on the Senate.

Those nominated are:

- From the arts: Gertrude Lack-schewitz (foreign languages), Caroline Wheeler (English), Maureen Curnow (foreign languages) and Sara Steensland (home economics).

- From the sciences: Frances Hill (psychology) and Dana Bunnell (physical education).

- From the schools in general: Maureen Ullrich (business) and Maxine Blackmer (art).

The group of faculty women has been meeting during the past two weeks to discuss discrimination against women on campus and to discuss focusing administrative attention on the subject of alignment of faculty women's salaries.

Work study funds to expire in June

All federal and university aid programs, which includes work-study and National Defense Loans, will expire June 30, 1972, Don Mullen, University of Montana financial aid director, said Tuesday.

Mullen said Congress will have to write new legislation to reenact student-aid programs. Legislation is tied up in busing so final action on student-aid programs is not expected until May at the earliest.

Unless supplemental legislation is passed UM does not expect to get as much money from Congress as it did last year, Mullen said. He declined to say how much the University got last year or how much he expected to get this year.

The financial aid application deadline for the 1972 summer session and the 1972-73 academic year has been extended to April 14, 1972.

Okoniewski invited to All-American game

Steve Okoniewski, the outstanding left offensive guard of the University of Montana's 1972 football squad, announced yesterday that he has been invited to play in the coach's All-American football game, June 24 in Lubbock, Tex.

"I was sort of expecting it, but I was happy to receive the invitation," Okoniewski said.

Okoniewski will be the first Grizzly player to participate in the annual contest.

He also announced he was leaving today for Atlanta to resume talks with the Falcon management about his contract. He said he will talk with Norm Van Brocklin, head coach of the Falcons, on Friday.

"I have been talking to the Calgary Stampeders of the Canadian Football League," Okoniewski said. "I was expecting a certain sum of money, and Calgary is very close to that amount. If Atlanta doesn't match their offer I will be going to Canada."

"I will know for sure which club I will be playing for in two weeks. If I don't sign with Atlanta this weekend I will go to Calgary next weekend and sign a contract there," Okoniewski said.

Okoniewski was drafted in the second round of the NFL draft in January and became the highest drafted player in the history of UM.

Jack Swarouth, head coach of the Grizzly football team, said the Silverdale, Wash., native runs the 40-yard dash in 4.9 seconds, and is extremely quick off the ball.

"He helps make the ground game go because of his talent, and because he inspires others to perform well," Swarouth said.

Okoniewski, 6-3 242-pounds, will report to the All-American training camp on June 15. He will be playing on the West squad coached by Chuck Fairbanks of Oklahoma, and Jim Sweeney of Washington State.

"Atlanta is a young ball club," Okoniewski he said. They traded off two of their players to get Detroit's second round pick, and then drafted me."

The trade between Detroit and Atlanta opened up a starting offensive guard position, and this is the position Okoniewski is shooting for.

"I don't think you can be dead confident about making a squad, but you have to have confidence in yourself," Okoniewski said.

Women champs to see action

The University of Montana women's Gymnastics Team, state champions for the last two years, will compete with four other schools in the State Inter-Collegiate Gymnastics Meet in Bozeman

Friday and Saturday. Other colleges entered in the meet are Rocky Mountain, Western Montana College, Eastern Montana College, and Montana State University.

Young rodeo team begins season play

The beginning of Spring Quarter marked the start of the rodeo season at the University of Montana. The men's and women's teams have just returned from three days in Dayton, Wash., where they completed competition against 20 other schools.

Three UM women and one man were in the finals of the competition, including, Kay Fowle and Virginia Pew, barrel racing; Lynette Coller, goat tying, and Bob Jacobsen, ribbon roping.

Blue Mountain Community College won first in the men's all-around, while Montana State University won the women's title.

Montana will be participating in 13 rodeos this year. The national finals will be held in Bozeman during June.

A rodeo at Central Oregon Community College in Bend, Ore., this weekend, will be followed by a rugged schedule which will put the UM team in action every weekend through May. The home rodeo will be held April 28 through 30 in Hamilton.

The team has been practicing in Hamilton's Woodside Arena this season due to construction work being done on the UM Field House and grounds.

The Northwest Region, which Montana is part of, includes eastern Washington, Oregon, and northern Idaho. The regional finals will be held May 25 through 27 in La Grande, Ore. Last year UM hosted the regional rodeo in which the UM women's team placed third. The UM men's team came in fifth. Kay Fowle, a junior from White Sulphur Springs, was the only UM representative at the national competition.
