Implications of strip mining major topic of UM seminar

The economic and social implications of projected coalfield development in eastern Montana will be the major topic of discussion in an environmental seminar being held at the University of Montana this quarter. The seminar is directed by Robert McKelvey, professor of mathematics, and will be held each Thursday in LA 11 from 7 to 9 p.m.

The possible scope of coalfield development has been outlined in the Bureau of Reclamation's "North Central Power Study." According to that report nearly half the nation's recoverable coal is located in eastern Montana, Wyoming and the western Dakotas. This area constitutes the Northern Plains coalfield.

The study estimates that mine-mouth generating plants could produce 53,000 megawatts of power by 1990. This is more than the total current output of Germany, England or Japan.

As possible dimensions of the development have become known, public reaction has been intense and divergent, McKelvey remarked in a report prepared for his environmental studies seminar.

His report describes problems involving land reclamation, pollution and water usage which Montanans may encounter because of the world-wide "energy crisis."

McKelvey said there seems to be no agreement about what successful land reclamation is or how much it will cost. Genuine reclamation is often not possible to obtain or enforce, he added.

If the contemplated generating complex is built, air pollution from sulfur and nitrogen oxides would become a problem that could be relieved only by future improvements in the technology of control devices, McKelvey said in his report.

Other problems mentioned in McKelvey's report involve water development, aqueducts and expanded storage reservoirs to service the coalfields.

If the high plains and mountain states had to supply the Great Lakes and West Coast states with power, transmission lines would have to be built across our plains and down our river valleys, McKelvey said. Alternatives would be very costly.

Student admission fees alone will not make up the $42,000 Central Board cut from the athletic budget if student turnout at the first home game is an indication. But ticket sales from other sources should more than make up the funds cut.

Gary Hughes of the Ticket Office estimated that a little more than $2,000 came from student ticket sales for the University of Montana-Northern Arizona University game played September 23.

Other sources of revenue for that first game according to Hughes' figures were: $2,184 from 1,400 Century Club tickets; $900 from 300 faculty-staff season tickets, and $3,500 from 700 regular season tickets; $2,000 from the sale of 400 reserved-seat tickets at $5 each, and $1,800 from 600 general admission tickets.

Based on these estimates, total receipts amounted to $12,548.

The Grizzlies play four home games this year. If attendance remains the same or increases, revenues from home games should bring $50,192 or more.

McGovern voter drive underway in Missoula

By Robert Gibson
Staff Writer

The McGovern for president canvassing campaign in Missoula is in full swing, according to Shaun Thompson, chairman of the McGovern for President Club of Missoula.

"The campaign in Missoula is going to be the most thorough in the state," Thompson said.

"Due to lack of funds, we cannot run an expensive, mass-media campaign like the Republicans plan to," Thompson noted. "Therefore, our campaign is entirely a grassroots operation," he said.

The campaign is being run in five stages. The first two entailed registration drives.

The first stage was aimed at registering students. Efforts included placing deputy registrars on campus while students registered for classes. Several concerts and dances also were held in which students who had already registered to vote could get in free. Deputy registrars were at the doors of the dances and concerts to register students not already registered.

Thompson said 1,194 students were put on the voter rolls as students were registered at the dances and concerts.

The second stage of the canvassing was aimed at registering townspeople in Missoula, Mineral and Ravalli counties. Thompson said his group campaigned door-to-door rather than by telephone.

Each voter was asked to fill out a questionnaire stating to what degree he was for or against McGovern. With those, Thompson said, the amount of time put into the campaign can be cut, because campaigners will not have to contact voters who are either strongly for or strongly against McGovern. Attention can be focused on voters who are undecided or not so strongly committed that their vote cannot be changed.

Any person who was not registered to vote was registered in this phase of the campaign.

As of October 8, the first two phases of the campaign will be complete because voter registration will close. Democrats will then launch what Thompson called a "three-pronged attack."

The first part will entail telephoning every registered voter in the telephone book. These people will be asked what campaign issues most concern them. If they say they would like more information on the subject, they will be mailed literature explaining McGovern's views on the subject.

The second part will entail more door-to-door canvassing. Campaigners will contact the people who said they are undecided or not strongly for either candidate. These voters will be asked what issues most concern them, and then will be given information about that issue.

The final part is being run for Thompson by Duane Johnson, chairman of Labor for McGovern in Montana. Johnson and a crew of laborers will go through the factories and mills in the Missoula area soliciting votes for McGovern. Men also will be posted at plant gates at quitting time to make sure every worker has plenty of information, Thompson said.

Field House rental disputed

Jim Scott, Program Council director, said last week he thinks it unfair that the athletic department is not required to pay a set fee for rental of the Field House.

As alternatives, he proposes that either the rental charge to Program Council be dropped, or that the athletic teams pay a set fee for rental of the Field House.

Earl Martell, field house manager and athletic business manager, said field house administrators and the athletic department each get 50 per cent of the gate receipts from athletic events.

Martell said field house administrators pay most of the basketball expenses except for the game officials' salaries, the erection and removal of practice baskets and the guarantees between schools. The guarantees are money which the home team

CB athletic cut made up by ticket sales

- Reserved seats at football games went from $1 to $5; high school-grade school and general admission tickets were raised from 50 cents to $2.50 and $3 respectively.

- In basketball, reserved seat prices were raised 50 cents, to $2.50; a $2 general admission fee was begun, and high school-grade school tickets went from 50 cents to $1.50.

- The fee for using the field house was raised from $250 to $300, and the athletic department has sold 42 cushioned seats to the Century Club at $500 a pair, for a total of $10,500.

University President Robert Pantzer said Thursday he was a little disappointed in the budget situation, because he had thought last spring there was valid agreement about the matter since student office campaigns were heavily built around reductions; but in reality it may have been the result of individual actions by a few students. "At least we'll be able to test it," he said. "I'd like to see how it does come out."

In the last ASUM election Student Body President Robert Sorenson ran on an election platform that advocated a 25 per cent reduction in the student funding of athletics. Following the election Central Board reduced the athletic budget from $147,000 to $105,000 for the current fiscal year.

Pantzer said perhaps there should be a committee of administration officials and students to study the situation, because changes in athletic funding policies in the Big Sky Conference may come in the next couple of years.

According to an article by sports writer Don Brunell in The Missoulian September 22, conference presidents have taken action to limit the number of scholarships given by each Big Sky school to 110, have put controls on federal work-study and economic opportunity grants for both off- and on-campus jobs, and are attempting to stabilize and equalize athletic spending.

Pantzer said he was hopeful that combined revenues from basketball and football would cover the $42,000 cut. According to figures provided by Earl Martell, field house director, total attendance at basketball games last year was about 39,000, and total income was about $29,000. The athletic department estimates total income this year, with the increased fees, to be about $32,000.

HENRY S. 'NON-SEQUITUR' HIBBARD

Probably the first man to take issue with Democratic Sen. Lee Metcalf these days is his Republican challenger, Henry Hibbard. Hibbard, who in an early campaign press release vowed to run a "clean" campaign, has wasted no opportunities to attack both Metcalf's record and his philosophy. Indeed, wome of the attacks have merit, depending on your political philosophy and economic interests. On the other hand, some seem somewhat irrational.

For example, the following quotes are from a Hibbard press release dated August 28:

"At the Montana Press Association meeting held in Miles City, August 19th, Senator Lee Metcalf publicly endorsed wholeheartedly the candidacy of Democratic nominee for President, George McGovern. In his address to the group, Metcalf pointed out that he had voted with McGovern in the Senate 82% of the time and had worked closely with McGovern through his government career.

"It must be assumed that Senator Metcalf also endorses the amnesty statement as written in the Democratic platform considering his wholehearted support of George McGovern.

"Adding weight to that assumption is the fact that Metcalf voted June 8, 1971, for the Gravel Amendment to the Draft Bill which would let the five year Statute of Limitations on failure to register for the draft run out when the man is 18 rather than 26.

"Senator Metcalf, by lending his support to a proposed program of amnesty for people who have forsaken their country, is doing a disservice to those who did fight and in many cases died. "What about these men that did make the choice to enter military service. I can't help but think many of them devoted many hours of thought to what their choice might involve.

"Unlike Senator Metcalf, I find it impossible to understand why we should grant amnesty to people who have obviously washed their hands of their country and in effect renounced it by leaving it."

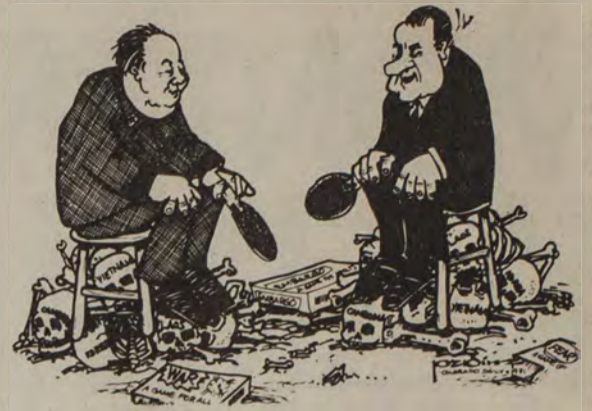

There is more. The above statement is only a partial statement of Mr. Hibbard's feelings, but it reflects his logic. He assumes Metcalf's position on the basis of one vote on an amendment to a bill which failed and on the man's allegiance to George McGovern. Then he trumpets his views on amnesty, which aren't all that considerate.

For instance, nowhere in his release (no. 19 for those who want to read it) does Hibbard consider that there is a draft law which coerced thousands of unwilling young men into the military service or forced them to volunteer for an alternative service to escape a stint in Vietnam.

Quickly Hibbard (or his press writer) assumes because young men have refused to fight in Vietnam they have washed their hands of this country. And nowhere in the release does Hibbard consider the possibility there was not an avenue open to some young men who fled the draft. However, his release states he has facts—"proof that there were other doors open to them. . ."

Hibbard's gut reaction on the amnesty question seems neither considerate of his opponent nor particularly well-thought out. In short, it is not particularly considerate of the feelings many college students hold about a problem which concerns them deeply. One must remember that in November.

"Okay, you're on. Where's the table?"

Go to Freddy's, not Larry's

Editor: Once again, students have been subjected to the usual quarterly ripoff, but this time with a difference: it's worse than ever before. Anyone who has purchased text books at the Associated Students Store knows exactly what I'm talking about.

The only concern this monopoly has shown for the student's pocket book is the blatant pilferage thereof. Even sadder, the gross inflation of text book prices will undoubtedly continue unchecked, since unlike other monopolies, this one has no public service commission to which it must answer. In a like manner, the inefficiency of Store Board in this area is history.

A lengthy boycott of the Store probably would help to rectify the problem, but such a boycott would work only if there were another source to purchase books. Professors, please help halt this University sanctioned brigandage. Order your texts from Freddy's. There, they give students a 15 per cent break when they can, which is most of the time.

By the way, since the Associated Students have nothing to do with the Associated Students Store, it might be in the best interests of their integrity for them to seek to remove their name from it. If the name were changed to "Associated Shylocks" Store, they could keep the same initials, ASS.

pays its opponent to help cover travel and other expenses.

Martell added that in the coming year, a larger portion of the gate returns will go to the athletic department and it, in turn, will pay more of the expenses the field house administrators now pay.

A recreational facilities council which will determine the policy on rental of the Field House is in the process of being formed, George Mitchell, UM administrative vice president, said. He added that the committee's recommendations will be voted on at the October Faculty Senate meeting.

Mitchell said the athletic department contributes toward operational costs of the Field House and also toward the retirement of bond obligations of the building, which he said are similar to paying a rental fee.

The rental fee for the Field House was increased $50 this year because it is now larger and more expensive to operate, Martell said. He added that there has not been a rent increase in the last 19 years. The cost is now $300 a day plus the handling of ticket sales.

IN THE UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT FOR THE DISTRICT OF MONTANA MISSOULA DIVISION

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, Plaintiff,

v. GEORGE L. MITCHELL, HAROLD JACK SWARTHOUT, JOHN ELWAY, WILLIAM D. BETCHER, and EARL W. MARTELL, Defendants.

Criminal No. 4469

(18 U.S.C. 371 and 1001)

INDICTMENT

THE GRAND JURY CHARGES:

COUNT I

That at all times material herein, the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, an agency of the United States of America, was responsible for administering student financial aid programs, known as the College Work Study Program, the Educational Opportunity Grants Program, and the National Defense Student Loan Program, pursuant to Parts A and C of Title IV of the Higher Education Act of 1965 (P. L. 89-329), as amended, and Title II of the National Defense Education Act of 1958 (P. L. 85-864), as amended, and the Regulations issued pursuant thereto.

2) That at all times material herein, the University of Montana, Missoula, Montana, was an institution of higher learning approved by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare for participation in such financial aid programs, as evidenced by an annual agreement entered into by the University and the Department of Health, Education and Welfare each year since 1965, thereby permitting eligible members of the student body to benefit thereunder.

3) At all times material herein, the defendants GEORGE L. MITCHELL, Administrative Vice-President, University of Montana, HAROLD JACK SWARTHOUT, Athletic Director, University of Montana, JOHN ELWAY, Assistant Football Coach, University of Montana, WILLIAM D. BETCHER, Assistant Football Coach, University of Montana, and EARL W. MARTELL, Business Manager, Athletic Department, University of Montana, in their aforesaid respective roles, were interested in and involved with the recruitment or maintenance of student athletes under the above financial aid programs.

4) The College Work Study Program, among other things, established criteria of eligibility based upon the financial need of the student and performance of useful work by such student. Participating institutions were required to establish and maintain a proper system for determining the financial need of each student applicant desiring assistance under the Work Study Program as well as maintenance of adequate, true, and complete records of such students' participation in the program, all such records being subject to audit and review by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

5) Among the items required for adequate compliance within the College Work Study Program was the preparation and approval of time sheets reflecting the actual hours of bona fide employment on the part of each participating student, such time sheets being prepared and approved by the department within which the student was to work.

6) The Educational Opportunity Grants Program and the National Defense Student Loan Program, among other things, established criteria of eligibility based upon financial need of the student and a satisfactory level of academic performance by such student.

Participating institutions were required to establish and maintain a proper system for determining the financial need of each student applicant desiring assistance under the financial aid programs, such system and records being subject to audit and review by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

7) From on or about January 1, 1967, and continuously thereafter through on or about April 15, 1972, the exact dates being unknown to the Grand Jury in the District of Montana and elsewhere:

GEORGE L. MITCHELL, HAROLD JACK SWARTHOUT, JOHN ELWAY, WILLIAM D. BETCHER, and EARL W. MARTELL, defendants herein, and Calvin L. Murphy, Harley W. Lewis and George M. Heathcote, co-conspirators, but not defendants, unlawfully, wilfully, and knowingly did agree, combine, conspire, and confederate among themselves and each with the other and with diverse other persons to the Grand Jury co-conspirators did agree, combine, confederate, and conspire to hamper, hinder, frustrate, defeat, impair, and impede by craft, trickery, deceit and dishonest and unlawful means, including the falsification of material facts, the lawful and legitimate functions, operations, and purposes of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare in the administration, implementation and accomplishment of its student financial aid program objectives which required that the program be free from corruption, dishonesty and taint.

8) It was a part of the said conspiracy that the defendants and co-conspirators, in contravention of the program's eligibility criteria, would approach students presently participating as well as those applying for participation in the student financial aid program.

9) It was a further part of said conspiracy that the defendants and co-conspirators would misrepresent to some of the aforesaid students who were receiving other educational assistance in the forms of scholarships and grants in aid that such aid was, in fact, a loan, a part of which had to be reimbursed to the Athletic Department through the proceeds received from the student financial aid program payments received by the student.

10) It was a further part of said conspiracy that the defendants and co-conspirators would arrange for a fictitious job classification for the participating student, fully anticipating that no useful services were expected of or would in fact be, performed by said students.

11) It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would be instrumental in the preparation, execution and approval of time sheets purporting to reflect that a participating student had rendered so many hours of work during a preceding period covered by the form.

12) It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would arrange for and continue the issuance of time sheets, as described aforesaid, to students who had theretofore terminated their connection with and attendance at the University of Montana.

13) It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would not provide to the institutional financial aids officer a correct list of students who were receiving athletic grant in aid, which information was necessary to properly evaluate the financial need of any applicant under the financial aid programs.

14) It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants would, upon receipt of checks issued in the names of the participating students, and purporting to be in payment for services rendered by said students, improperly convert the proceeds thereof by redepositing them in the "Athletic Student Fund."

15) It was further a part of said conspiracy that the defendants in certain cases, would without authority and otherwise unlawfully, endorse said payment checks prior to their redeposit.

OVERT ACTS

In furtherance of the aforesaid conspiracy and in order to effect the objects thereof and to prevent its discovery, the defendants and co-conspirators did, in the District of Montana and elsewhere, commit among others, the following overt acts:

1) On or about 1 September 1971, Jay William Baumberger, a student who had been recruited on a "full ride" athletic grant in aid, was advised by WILLIAM D. BETCHER, defendant, that he, Baumberger, had been switched to "work-study" and his job title was tutor.

2) On or about 1 February 1971, Martin Anthony Frustaci, a student in the College Work Study Program, was given $220.00 in cash by defendant WILLIAM D. BETCHER to pay the income tax on the earnings credited to him which he had turned over to the Athletic Department.

3) On or about 1 October 1971, Michael L. Hubbard, a student in the College Work Study Program, was told by defendant HAROLD JACK SWARTHOUT and George M. Heathcote, co-conspirator, that playing basketball was his work.

4) Between September 1970 and May 1971, Richard James Morris, a student on College Work Study, was told by Harley W. Lewis, co-conspirator, that working out and keeping himself in good physical condition was his job under work study.

The said defendants did do and cause to be done the acts set forth in the succeeding counts of this indictment on the dates and at the places and in the manner therein set forth, all of which are incorporated herein by reference as though fully set forth and made a part hereof as overt acts.

In violation of Section 371 of Title 18 of the United States Code.

COUNT II through 32

1) The Grand Jury re-alleges the allegations in paragraphs 1 through 6 in Count I of this indictment, all of which enumerated paragraphs are incorporated herein by reference as though fully set forth and made a part hereof.

2) On or about the dates herein below set forth in the District of Montana in a matter that is, the above described student financial aid programs, within the jurisdiction of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, an agency of the United States, the defendants GEORGE L. MITCHELL, HAROLD JACK SWARTHOUT, JOHN ELWAY, WILLIAM D. BETCHER, and EARL W. MARTELL, did unlawfully, wilfully and knowingly falsify and cause to be falsified material facts, that is to say, the said defendants did execute and approve and cause to be executed and approved, time sheets for the months designated, thereby reflecting that the student athlete whose name appeared thereon for the time indicated herein below, performed work, whereas in truth and in fact as the said defendant then and there well knew, such student athlete did not perform the hours of work indicated.

Humane society runs big business

In 1971 2,155 cats and 1,075 dogs were put to sleep by the Missoula County Humane Society.

Last February the animal shelter had 102 cats. This number has been the lowest this year for cats brought in each month. June was the highest month with 530 cats.

The low month for dogs so far this year was March when only 221 dogs were admitted. July was the high month with 344 coming in.

About 25 to 30 per cent of the cats and 50 to 60 per cent of the dogs are taken by people, Barbara Dahlgren, secretary of the Missoula Humane Society, told the Montana Kaimin.

When an animal is brought in, the employees of the animal shelter compare it to listings of lost animals and call possible owners if descriptions match. A file of specific breeds of dogs or cats desired by people who have called also is kept. When a desired breed of animal is brought in, the people who wanted it are notified.

Many of the animals brought in are strays, according to employe Jo Sexton. Others are animals that must be given up. Reasons for giving up animals include moving out of town, moving into an apartment where animals are not allowed, having an allergy to an animal or not being able to afford to keep the animal.

About 15 to 18 kittens and 6 cats are kept. The animal shelter has 37 pens for dogs as well as an outside area in which the dogs are allowed to exercise.

The healthiest animals usually are the ones kept. Employees also try to keep a variety of breeds. Cats are given temporary distemper shots and are wormed. Because of lack of space, the rest of the animals brought in must be put to sleep in the shelter's euthanair. The city-county dog pound also has a euthanair.

Dahlgren said, "Many beautiful animals are put to sleep which have done nothing except been born. The big problem is the pet population explosion."

To counteract this, the humane society will refund up to $20 on an adoption fee if the new owner of a cat or dog returns with a receipt from a veterinarian saying the animal has been spayed or neutered. The adoption fee for cats is $1.50. The fee for dogs ranges from $5 to $25, depending on the breed.

Dahlgren said she thinks the ultimate solution to animal overpopulation lies in birth control for animals, an idea which is now in the experimental stage at the University of Colorado.

The cost of running the animal shelter comes to over $1,500 each month. In 1971 expenses totaled $22,000. The shelter receives $1,250 a year from United Givers Fund. The remaining money comes from the adoption fees, humane society membership dues and donations.

AP in brief

The 95-day-old Northwest Airlines strike has ended. A company spokesman said Monday that minimal service to the more than 50 cities served by the airline would be restored within a week. W. J. Usery Jr., assistant secretary of labor who helped negotiate the settlement, said the contract must be submitted to the Federal Pay Board for approval but does not require ratification by the 1,600 pilots. Usery confirmed that pilots' return-to-work provision was the final obstacle. When the pilots walked out June 30, a spokesman—Robert Rezenka—said there were 160 unresolved issues, ranging from a more liberal policy of providing free passes for pilots' families to subsidization of insurance premiums.

Cascade, Yellowstone and Silver Bow counties will be the major recipients of federal revenue sharing funds. Of the $20.6 million tentatively earmarked for Montana, each of the above counties will receive more than $1 million. Missoula County will receive $248,553 and the City of Missoula will receive $286,241, for a total of $534,794.

An American and a Briton were arraigned in U.S. District Court in Billings Monday after attempting to extort $100,000 from the Montana Power Co. The pair had threatened to bomb a company power plant. Dennis Williams, 21, of Billings, and Nigel Mott, 22, of Wilverhampton, England, were charged on two counts, conspiring to obstruct commerce, and attempting to obstruct commerce. The maximum sentence on each count is 20 years in prison, a $10,000 fine, or both.

Sen. George McGovern said yesterday President Nixon has given the United States the worst leadership in American history. In a speech to editors of United Press International in Washington, the Democratic presidential nominee renewed his demands for face-to-face debates and defended his decision to drop Sen. Thomas Eagleton as his running mate. McGovern noted that Eagleton has been campaigning for him and said, "We can ill afford to debate this issue while death continues to stalk the face of Indochina and our own nation deteriorates under the worst leadership in our national history."

President Nixon and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko prepared yesterday to put into effect a historic arms-limitation agreement. The two leaders will formally exchange instruments of ratification at the White House Tuesday morning.

The United States has pulled its F-111 fighter-bombers out of combat. The action was taken after one of the controversial swing-wing planes mysteriously vanished on its first mission since returning to the Indochina war last Thursday. The two crewmen of the plane are missing. The latest developments stirred a new political and military controversy and appeared to be a repeat of 1968, when six F-111s first arrived at Takhli, Thailand. Two mysteriously vanished then, a third crashed from mechanical failure and the other three were returned to the United States.

UM has woman forestry professor

Nellie Stark, associate professor of soils, is the first woman faculty member of the University of Montana forestry school.

"The Lubrecht study was one of the determining reasons for my coming here," Stark said in an interview last week. The study, conducted northeast of Missoula, concerns the changes of organic matter in the ecosystem.

Stark presently is researching the effects of nutrient cycling in the Lubrecht Ecosystem Project, a study of the ultimate effect of land use on soil and nutrient cycling.

Peanut shells recycled

Recycling is making it big in the peanut industry.

Georgia's peanut producers had been discarding peanut shells at the rate of 150,000 tons a year until recently. Now, the Georgia Tech Waste Utilization Lab has developed a method of turning the shells into valuable products. The shells can be compressed into "Carbon Char" at about one-twentieth the original volume. The char is then used to make either activated carbon filters or charcoal briquettes for home barbecues.

KUFM to begin by election night

University of Montana radio station KUFM should be on the air by election night, Nov. 7, according to Philip Hess, chairman of the radio-television department.

Hess said he had hoped to get KUFM on the air earlier in the quarter; but he has met with delays in obtaining new equipment.

This year KUFM will operate with a $30,000, 4.3-kilowatt transmitter obtained through a grant from the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Since 1965 the station had operated with a 10-watt transmitter. The new transmitter will put KUFM on the same power level as the commercial radio stations in Missoula.

The delivery of the transmitter was delayed about six weeks because of confusion between UM and the state purchasing agency in Helena concerning purchasing procedure.

The Northwest Airlines strike caused another delay. The bolts with which the new 120-foot tower are to be mounted were flown by Frontier Airlines to Billings. From Billings they had to be transported by truck because they were too large to fit in the cargo hatches of Frontier's twin-engine propeller planes that fly into Missoula.

Assembly of the new equipment should take about three weeks, Hess said. After routine testing of the equipment, the station will then be ready to go on the air.

KUFM plans to broadcast the November election returns.

Grizzlies drop non-conference game 24-6

The University of Pacific rode a 3-touchdown performance by halfback Willard Harrell to a 24-6 non-conference football victory over the University of Montana Grizzlies Saturday night at Stockton, California.

The University of Pacific Tigers were on the scoreboard first when kicker Mark Pash connected on a 40-yard field goal attempt with 7:49 remaining in the first quarter. Both teams battled on even terms for the remainder of the first quarter.

What may well have been the turning point of the game came late in the second quarter when a personal foul penalty against Montana put the ball on the UM 36-yard line. The penalty nullified a 56-yard punt by Montana's Dave Harrington that would have put the football back on the U of P 25-yard line.

The Tigers capitalized on the penalty several plays later when Harrell ran the ball from the 7-yard line for the score. Pash made the extra point and the score was 10-0, U of P.

The Tigers scored again three minutes later on a 10-yard spring by Harrell. Pash made the extra point good and it was 17-0 in favor of Pacific.

Montana surged back in the second half with a 78-yard scoring drive that ended when Montana halfback Jim Olson carried the ball into the end zone from the Tiger 7-yard line. Montana kicker Bob Turnquist missed the extra point attempt and the score was 17-6 in favor of the Tigers.

The Grizzlies threatened U of P again midway through the fourth period, but the drive was stopped on the U of P 26-yard line when quarterback Rock Sennugus failed to reach the first-down marker on a fourth down play.

Pacific took over the football with 8:40 left in the game and started a 71-yard scoring drive that ended when Harrell ran the ball in from the Grizzly two-yard line for his third touchdown of the game.

The Tigers failed to complete one pass.

Montana head football coach Jack Swarouth said, "They outplayed us and deserved to win the ball game," then added, "but we played a real good football team."

The loss has no effect on Montana's conference record. The Grizzlies are currently tied for first place in the Big Sky conference with Montana State and Boise State. Boise beat Weber State 49-16 Saturday and Montana State beat Idaho 17-3 to boost their conference records to 1-0 and place them in the three-way tie for first place with Montana.

Priestly leads UM runners

Junior Wes Priestly turned in the top time for the University of Montana cross country team during time trials held at the UM golf course last weekend.

Priestly finished the five-mile course in a time of 20:35.8 Friday because a class conflict prevented him from running with the remainder of the team on Saturday.

Saturday's trials saw Doug Darko, George Cook and John O'Neil cross the finish line together in a time of 20:37.7, nearly 2 seconds behind Priestly's time.

Cross country Coach Harley Lewis pointed out that it would be unfair to compare Priestly's time with the times recorded Saturday. "They were two different races," Lewis said, "but Wes looked very good."

Boyd Collins finished fourth Saturday with a time of 20:51, while Terry Pitts and Bob Yarborough both were clocked at 22:22. Mike Hotzle was timed at 23:53.

Lewis said having five men run the five-mile course under 20:51 was outstanding. "I think we have an excellent team, and if we get Hans Templeman back we'll have six strong runners," Lewis said. Templeman is out with a knee injury.

Lewis praised Butte freshman John O'Neil for his performance Saturday. "His effort was outstanding for a freshman. He is going to be a fine runner," he said.

The Grizzlies open the 1972 season this Saturday at Moscow, Idaho.

Amateur athletic foundation proposed

Washington AP
A bill designed to boost America's fortunes in future Olympics was introduced in the Senate Wednesday.

The measure, co-sponsored by Sens. Mike Gravel, D-Alaska, and Strom Thurmond, R-S.C., will create a National Amateur Sports Foundation to fund sports facilities and training programs and develop greater cooperation among existing sports organizations.

In introducing the bill on the Senate floor, Thurmond said the Foundation "will work with the present amateur athletic organizations but is in no way an attempt to supplant or assume control over these organizations."

'Black Orpheus' presented tonight

"Black Orpheus," a Brazilian film directed by Marcel Camus, will be shown tonight at 9 in the UC Ballroom. Admission is free.

"Black Orpheus" retells the legend of Orpheus and Eurydice in a modern setting. In the Negro section of Rio de Janeiro, Orpheus, played by Breno Melo, is a street-car conductor and Eurydice, played by Marpessa Dawn, is a country girl fleeing from a man sworn to kill her.

"Black Orpheus" won the Grand Prix award at the 1959 Cannes Film Festival, and the 1959 Academy Award for the best foreign film.

Film Quarterly said, "No doubt this film won its prize at Cannes because, in French terms, it is an unusual item: a giant Technicolor extravaganza, well laced with exoticism."

The New York Times said the film "fills the ears and eyes... it is the music, the movement, the storm of color that goes into the two-day festival."

Nixon peace plan did exist in 1968

College Press Service

Richard Nixon DID have a secret peace plan in 1968.

During the presidential campaign, Nixon told Richard Whalen, one of his speechwriters: "I've come to the conclusion that there's no way to win the war. But we can't say that, of course. In fact, we have to seem to say the opposite, just to keep some degree of bargaining leverage." The quote appears in a new book by Whalen, "Catch the Falling Flag."
