South says he will not go to meeting with open mind

ASUM President Garry South said yesterday that he will meet with the committee studying intercollegiate funding on University of Montana and Montana State University campuses, but he will not go into the meetings "with an open mind."

The committee, appointed by Larry Pettit, the Montana commissioner of higher education, includes the presidents, faculty senate chairmen, athletic directors and student body presidents from both institutions. Pettit also appointed the heads of two University auxiliary groups, Century Club and the Alumni Association, to the committee.

South said he believes Century Club "bought its way into a policy-making role at the University," although the club cut its contributions to UM more than $14,000 last year.

South said the Alumni Association has a much more legitimate role on campus than Century Club, but they are both primarily oriented toward athletics.

"People talk about ASUM being irresponsible . . . with our money," South said, "but we have to consider the total academic community—not just Jack Swarthout and men's athletics."

South believes that athletic spending is "leveling off."

South said that the last three ASUM presidents have been elected with reduced athletic spending on their platforms.

Student Employment Center proposal submitted in summer

A preliminary proposal for a Student Employment Center was drafted this summer by the new Student Affairs Office, a spokesman for the office announced Wednesday.

Monte Beck, administrative assistant to the student office, said the proposal was submitted to the Missoula Chamber of Commerce, the University of Montana administration and various academic departments.

"Students today have an extreme need for more assistance in paying for their education," Beck said.

He added that the proposed center is not connected with the work-study program or the University Placement Center, which handles job openings for graduates.

The funding for the center and its location are still undecided. Beck said financial help will be solicited from sources including local businessmen, ASUM, the UM administration and possibly the State of Montana.

The center would serve as a clearing-house and centralized information source for job hunters and employers. Beck said the center would try to place job applicants in positions relative to their talents and interests.

KUFM, KYSS radios erect tower

University of Montana radio station KUFM and Missoula radio station KYSS-FM have teamed together to erect a unique radio transmission facility at the top of Big Sky Mountain, 11 miles north of Missoula. Construction on the facility began Sept. 6 and, according to UM Radio-

TV Department Chairman Philip Hess, is estimated to be completed and in operation by Nov. 1. The cooperative installation is the only instance of its kind in Montana in which a commercial broadcaster and a noncommercial radio station will share transmitter building and tower.

LOSER TIPS OFF POLICE

Local men charged in gambling raid

Missoula AP
Four Missoula men were charged yesterday with conducting gambling games, bringing to six the total charged following a gambling raid Sept. 14 on a tip by an apparent loser in the games.

The four who were charged in district court were William McCracken, Einar Assheim, Stanford Smith and Bruce Hensley. Hensley is the son of Riley Hensley, charged Wednesday with grand larceny and two counts of operating a gambling house. Riley Hensley, 53, 1202 Lincolnwood, owns the Oxford, a downtown Missoula bar-restaurant. He has posted a $500 bond.

In addition, a warrant was issued Wednesday for a man identified as Virgil Olson on two counts of operating a gambling house. Olson was reported as being still at large.

South says CB delegates' resignations were voluntary

ASUM President Garry South said yesterday that he was not responsible for the resignations of Monte Beck, junior in psychology, and Matt Tennis, junior in economics, from Central Board. Beck and Tennis submitted their resignations at the CB meeting Wednesday.

South's statement was in reference to accusations by other CB members that Beck and Tennis were forced to resign.

Beck and Tennis have accepted positions as student affairs assistants in the Lodge. They are responsible for filling the gaps created by the redistribution of the Dean of Students' duties to other committees.

Tennis said his and Beck's job includes "having coffee with Carson Vehrs and Tom Hayes and . . . talking to parents who can't find their little Johnny."

"Never before has there been a situation at the University where students have served as administrators," South said.

South said he thought there would be a conflict of interest if Beck and Tennis retained their positions as voting delegates on Central Board. South said he had not asked either Beck or Tennis to resign.

"We discussed options from merely abstaining to vote at CB meetings to resigning," South said.

South said they talked to other people and ultimately "made their own decision."

Missoula County Atty. Robert Deschamps said 12 other persons were in the building, and were listed as possible witnesses. He said the dozen were not at the gambling tables when the raid was made.

The raid was made by city policemen at 1342 Toole Ave.

Police were informed of the games when a citizen reported to police that he had lost $220 in the game, officials said. After an initial investigation of the report, police obtained a search warrant and conducted the raid.

The charge of grand larceny against Hensley stems from the fact that under Montana law money lost in a gambling game is regarded as stolen.

Deschamps said the $1,291 taken by officers will be turned over to the County poor fund as stipulated by law.

Curnow says five-college plan has top-heavy administration

Some faculty members agree with University of Montana Vice President Richard Landini's proposal to reorganize the university structure into five colleges. However, they think that it includes a top-heavy administration the University cannot afford, Maureen Curnow, chairman of the University Library, said today in a Montana Kaimin interview.

Curnow said, "The supporting structure of the plan should be re-worked carefully."

The five colleges proposed are Arts and Humanities, Social and Behavioral Sciences, Natural Sciences and Resources, Health Sciences and Professions and Graduate Studies.

"The faculty-student ratio is getting worse," Curnow said. "We need more instructors but not more administrators."

She said she approves of the five-college structure, because, for example, the present College of Arts and Sciences covers too many disciplines and is unwieldy.

The new structure will allow exchanges, prevent course duplication and make it possible for the departments to cooperate in buying library books, Curnow said.

Keith McDuffie, president of the Faculty Senate, said now is the best time to work on this reorganization.

If a new president is elected before the reorganization is accomplished, McDuffie added, he will want to wait until he knows the job better. By the time he has been president for a few years he will be afraid to rock the boat.

McDuffie refused to comment on Landini's memorandum, but said that the University badly needed a reorganization.

Federal suit filed against Bill McQuirk

Bill McQuirk, Missoula bar and restaurant owner, was the object of a suit filed in U.S. District Court in Butte last July. The federal suit charges that McQuirk did not pay wages due three employees which is a violation of the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Peggy Lynam, Nanci Lauth, and Sharon Loomis, former employees of the Heidelberg, a Missoula establishment owned by McQuirk, claim they were not paid wages due them.

In separate action, five other persons drafted a letter to the U.S. Department of Labor, Wage and Labor Administration at Salt Lake City, Utah, also claiming violations of the Fair Labor Standards Act by McQuirk.

The letter expressed concern over the delay in court action and asked that the situation be looked into immediately by the Department of Labor.

Previous to these actions, McQuirk had three state suits pending.

Fall enrollment down two per cent

The women are slowly catching up to the men at the University of Montana, according to enrollment figures released yesterday by Vice President Richard Landini's office.

As of Wednesday, there were 5,045 men registered and 3,120 women.

These numbers represent a decrease from last year of 169 men and nine women.

Total enrollment for Fall Quarter now stands at 8,165, which is 2 per cent less than the 8,343 students who made up the University's population a year ago.

NOT RAIN NOR SNOW nor dark of night . . . or so goes the saying. The KUFM radio antenna seen here will soon be completed and ready for use. The antenna is on top of Big Sky Mountain, 11 miles north of Missoula. (Photo by Joe Stark)

"We had three alternatives," Hess said. "We could have shielded all the equipment at the university to protect it from the transmitter signal, we could have taken the station off the air or we could move the transmitter." Hess discounted the first option as being too expensive and said moving the transmitter was the only realistic choice.

KYSS-FM was looking for a mountain-top location to increase its radio coverage area at the same time. Chester Murphy, president of KYSS-FM, said the cooperative effort made the move both technically and financially attractive.

The cost of the project will be shared jointly by the two radio stations. KUFM will foot the bill for the tower and the cost of moving it up to the mountain. KYSS-FM will pay for the building to house the transmitters with both stations paying rent on the land.

Hess said the tower was erected yesterday and mounting the antennas would begin today.

The new transmitter location will increase KUFM's listening audience from last year's 57,000 listeners to an estimated 150,000 with coverage area from Kalispell to Darby. The station will be used for training students in Radio-TV broadcasting and, through the Department of Continuing Education, for instructional programming.

The stations' signals from the mountain top will cover several areas, such as Thompson Falls, which do not now receive any Montana radio stations in the daytime.

Maybe next time

The United States has obviously been graced with a latter-day Laurel-and-Hardy-style comedy team. The Nixon-Agnew coalition is a phenomenon we probably will not be seeing again soon (we should hope).

Richard Nixon's first reaction last March to the possibility that he would be investigated by a special Senate committee was the request to let the courts handle the matter. The request was based on the assumption that Congress and the administration had more important things to do than worry about alleged criminal activity involving the nation's Executive Branch.

Obviously Dick and Spiro have not gotten it together, even after five years of sharing the same mistakes.

Tuesday, Agnew turned around and asked the House of Representatives to begin a full investigation of the allegations that he had accepted bribes during his years as a state and local official in Maryland. House Speaker Carl Albert turned down the request. Evidently, the House has better things to do than defend Ted Agnew.

The right decision

Wednesday night Matt Tennis and Monte Beck resigned from Central Board in order to assume positions in the newly formed Student Affairs Office. Their decision was well thought out and painful. Both men have served well during their terms in office.

It should be pointed out that several different options were made available to them and they were not forced out of office as Larry Shore stated after the meeting. (See story page one of the September 27, 1973 Montana Kaimin.)

Because of the nature of their new office a conflict of interest could arise. They will be dealing with a number of student oriented problems, but they will be working in an administrative capacity. The conflict between trying to decide on these issues while serving as a student representative and administrative spokesman is quite obvious.

We wish both men well and sincerely hope they will be able to fulfill the potential of their new jobs.

Laughter is coming harder

Editor: Shall we herald Joe Jennings as our campus prophet or must we be content to merely distinguish him as a man with extraordinary insight? I am referring to his letter which appeared in Wednesday's Montana Kaimin.

For those of us who have frequently read the editorial page, Jennings is no stranger. His letters, filled with criticisms, censures, condemnations and warnings, center on striking truths that are becoming less easy to laugh at. Students new to the University should not scoff at the quantity of prevalent problems. Not every student will face every problem and if an overcrowded classroom is your biggest complaint, be thankful that that is all you face.

There is, however, at least one issue that Joe Jennings overlooked in his most recent letter. The library. Any student who has planned to use the library on holidays remembers the devastation he felt when faced with locked library doors or a shortened schedule. Whether or not our warehouse for books will continue its present policy of ignoring the needs of students, I do not know. Perhaps Joe Jennings, our brave seer among wolves, has the answer.

How about it?

ASUM PROGRAM COUNCIL PRESENTS

HARRY ADAMS FIELD HOUSE U of M

WASHINGTON MERRY-GO-ROUND by Jack Anderson

The Senate Watergate Committee has obtained a White House document which complains of my access to secret intelligence digests. It's true I see secret intelligence reports, which often contain some fascinating items. Here are a few examples:

- The latest intelligence reports warn that trouble may flare up along the Chinese-Mongolian border. There is evidence, according to the reports, that the Soviets may be instigating an incident.

- Intelligence reports from the Middle East claim that Soviet missile technicians have refused to operate the new antiaircraft missiles that they have installed in Syria. The Soviets reportedly have been ordered to keep out of direct combat. The Syrians, therefore, have gone to Hanoi to recruit North Vietnamese veterans who have had experience operating the Soviet missiles.

- Colonel Qaddafi, the Libyan strongman, is preparing a little green book of his sayings, patterned after the little red book of Mao Tse-tung's thoughts. Arrangements have been made to distribute the green book throughout the world. It will teach Islamic socialism, which Qaddafi claims is the middle course between Communism and Capitalism.

- Perhaps the most surprising intelligence reports tell of fighting between North Vietnamese troops and Cambodian insurgents in Cambodia. They had been fighting together to overthrow the government of Lon Nol. But just as they appeared to be winning, some units turned their guns on one another in outbreaks over the control of supplies.

Oil Plans: A severe winter could leave the nation critically short of heating oils. Shortages could also develop in propane gas and electrical power. The Northwest is particularly vulnerable to a power shortage.

The new energy czar, John Love, is already drafting emergency plans which would go into effect in case of a bad winter. He is getting help from both the Interior Department and the Office of Emergency Planning.

They will recommend curtailing nonessential activities, such as theatre performances, concerts and sporting events, if the fuel oil shortage gets serious enough. They will also consider closing down schools during extremely cold weather. The lost school days would be added at the end of the academic year when the weather is warmer and the school buildings require less heating.

The emergency measures, of course, will depend upon the weather.

CIA Yes Men: The late President Kennedy blamed the Bay of Pigs blunder on the Central Intelligence Agency. He declared afterward that he "wanted to splinter the CIA in a thousand pieces and scatter it to the winds."

When he cooled down, he called in White House adviser Clark Clifford who had drafted the legislation establishing the CIA. As Clifford remembers it, Kennedy said: "I made some bad decisions on the Bay of Pigs. I made these bad decisions because I had bad information."

Kennedy appointed Clifford to head a civilian advisory board, which recommended a great many reforms. To make sure the President got good information, a board of estimates was established.

However, its estimates angered President Nixon and his foreign policy czar, Henry Kissinger. They complained that the board was dominated by doves. My White House sources say Kissinger got so upset that he refused to read the estimates from the CIA.

The new CIA chief, William Colby, is now preparing to abolish the board of estimates. In its place, he intends to choose a dozen experts from the different divisions of the CIA. They will be known as national intelligence officers.

Kissinger, meanwhile, has told the CIA that he wants his intelligence straight without any ideological slant. He also wants to see the minority views.

My CIA sources claim this is exactly what the board of estimates was sending the White House. The elimination of the board, they say, is a signal that the White House really wants estimates which always support the President's policies.

Condemnation Rip-Offs: One of the most controversial practices of government is condemnation. The government has the power to condemn property supposedly for the public good. But the way it works, owners are often forced to sell their property to government agencies or corporations at rockbottom prices.

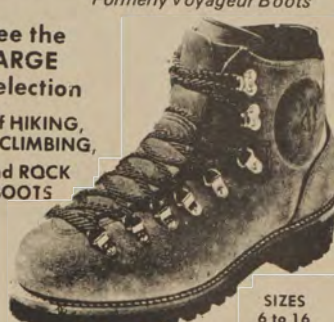

Here are some recent examples: In New York City, an old neighborhood was torn down to make way for a factory expansion. The residents, mostly elderly people who had lived there all their lives, were given token sums for their property. Now they have no homes and no place to go.

AP in brief

A special grand jury investigating alleged political graft of Vice President Spiro Agnew met for more than seven hours yesterday and then adjourned until next week. The first witness, William Muth, refused to testify before the proceeding, terming the investigation a "fishing expedition." Muth was convicted in 1954 of unlawfully obtaining $2,400 in Baltimore city funds. Lawyers for Agnew have filed a brief seeking a temporary restraining order, and also seeking an answer to the constitutional question of whether a vice president can be indicted while in office.

The man who was tried twice but never convicted in the 1963 murder of civil rights leader Medgar Evers was arrested Thursday as he allegedly drove into New Orleans with an armed time bomb and several other weapons. Police said that Byron De La Beckwith was carrying a bomb in his car that was set to explode later in the day. Police added that the arrest was made following a tip by a special intelligence unit specializing in subversive activities, civil rights and organized crime.

Controversial New Orleans District Attorney Jim Garrison was acquitted yesterday on charges of obstructing law enforcement by taking bribes to protect illegal gambling. Garrison at one time claimed that he had proof of an alleged conspiracy involving the assassination of President Kennedy. His claims were never substantiated.

The U.S. Senate voted yesterday to confirm the Navy's schedule for development and production of a $13 billion fleet of Trident submarines. By a vote of 49 to 47 the Senate killed an amendment that would have slowed the project by two years. White House Deputy Press Secretary Gerald Warren said President Nixon was "extremely gratified" with the rejection. Montana's Mike Mansfield voted for the amendment; Lee Metcalf voted against it. The Senate also rejected attempts to eliminate or reduce military aid to South Vietnam.

The Chicago aircraft accident that killed Rep. George Collins, D-Ill., and the wife of convicted Watergate conspirator E. Howard Hunt was declared yesterday to have been caused by pilot error. The ruling, which came down from the National Transportation Safety Board, concerned a jet which crashed Dec. 8, causing 45 deaths.

Muliny and other misconduct charges were dropped yesterday against two former war prisoners. However, Secretary of the Navy John Warner, who dismissed the charges, formally censured the two men for "failing to meet the standards expected of officers."

The Hoerner Waldorf Corp. has followed the Anaconda Co. in dropping a suit protesting rate hikes of electricity and natural gas. Only the City of Helena remains as a plaintiff in the suit, which was filed last year against the Montana Power Co.

Environmental engineers from the Westinghouse Electric Corp. were optimistic concerning the impacts of erecting massive coal-fired electrical generating plants in southeast Montana. Their comments came during a conference yesterday of government and industrial leaders, which was held at Chet Huntley's Big Sky Resort near Bozeman. The conference was scheduled and funded by the Westinghouse corporation.

Anonymous letters inquiry continues

The investigation into the anonymous, death-threat letters sent to Garry South, ASUM president, and Conrad Yunker, Central Board member, is continuing, according to an FBI spokesman at the state bureau in Butte.

The FBI spokesman said there could be no press releases until there had been an arrest.

Yunker and South received letters on May 14 threatening death and castration. The letters also threatened Bill Owen, Montana Kaimin editor, Leroy Berven, Central Board delegate, Matt Tennis, a Central Board delegate at the time, and Steve Forbis, who was then entertainment editor for the Kaimin.

When South and Yunker received the letters, both said they believed they were a result of the controversy over ASUM budgeting of intercollegiate athletics.

Extension classes registration open

Openings are available in fall quarter adult extension classes which began Monday, Anne Dwelle, extension class senior secretary, said yesterday.

The subjects available are in the following areas: anthropology, art, business administration, business communication, management accounting, computer science, education, English, health and physical education, history, home economics, pharmacy and social work.

The extension fee is $16 for each credit hour and each class meets for three hours, one night a week.

Registration deadline is next week during the second class meeting. Dwelle said. The extension class office is in Room 107, Main Hall.

Warm Springs trips open to everyone

The Campus Christian Ministries will sponsor five trips to Warm Springs State Hospital beginning this Saturday, and continuing every other Saturday throughout Fall Quarter. The trips will be open to students and community members.

"We find it a useful kind of human service," said the Rev. David Van Dyke, United Campus Christian Fellowship pastor. "There is a need for people to visit the hospital because the patients are cut off from the outside world."

The Rev. Gayle Sandholm, United Methodist campus pastor, said the visiting students often make new friends among the patients.

"The trip also provides an experience for people who go, Sandholm said." They can see and reflect upon our systems of mental health in the state."

The visits provide an opportunity for students in the introductory social work courses to fulfill part of their course requirements, according to Janet Kovalchik, department assistant in social work. She said students can elect to spend several hours at Warm Springs visiting with the patients instead of doing agency studies or papers for their course projects.

"We feel this is of value to the student in social welfare as is practice teaching to the student in education," said Sandholm. He emphasized the value of a student being at the hospital to meet and talk with the patients.

"We're not going with the idea that we'll go out and change the world," said Van Dyke. "We feel we should relate to groups trying to change mental health institutions. Students can look at our antiquated systems and then help push for changes."

Departure for this week's trip to Warm Springs will be from the Ark, 538 University Ave. at 9 a.m. A 50¢ donation is requested to pay for gas and sandwiches.

Several projects slated for SERC

Research projects on air and water pollution, researching information on the use of wilderness lands and lobbying for environmental bills in the State Legislature are some of the projects developed by the Student Environmental Research Center (SERC).

According to Ken Bovee, one of the SERC coordinators, the center presently has about 10 people working on projects. The research projects vary with student interest. Students who work at SERC decide which projects will be initiated.

SERC studies are almost entirely student funded, according to Bovee. Central Board allocated $4,300 to SERC for the 1973-74 academic year. Bovee said other small grants, such as Environmental Protection Agency grants, are occasionally given to specific projects.

Bovee said he hoped the SERC offices would be moved from the second floor of the Venture Center to the Student Action Center (SAC) in the University Center. He felt this would make SERC more accessible to the students.

SERC continued projects over the summer. An in depth study was made of carbon monoxide levels in Missoula. SERC also monitors sulfur dioxide and hydrogen sulfate levels in the Missoula basin as part of an air pollution study in progress.

Another project to be completed soon is a study of oxygen levels in water after waste materials have been dumped.

'Reefer Madness' shown at state prison

"Reefer Madness," a 1936 film on the "dangers of smoking marijuana," was shown Wednesday night to more than 30 inmates of the Montana State Prison at Deer Lodge.

The film was shown by Bob Campbell, president of the Montana chapter of the American Civil Liberties Union and state organizer for the National Organization for the Reform of Marijuana Laws (NORML).

The trip was one of the weekly visits to the prison by interested people as part of the "Coffee With A Con" program.

Accompanying Campbell was Robin Bishop, a junior in social welfare who has been making the trips for the past five months. Bishop said the program consists of a rap session and social hour from 6:30 to 9:00 every Wednesday night. She said visitors are able to talk with about 10-15 inmates, depending on how many sign up.

According to Campbell, the idea to show the film at the prison came from previous discussions he had with inmates. They seemed interested, he said, in NORML's campaign for reduction of penalties for sale and possession of marijuana.

The film, which will be shown in the University Center Nov. 7, began by calling marijuana "a violent narcotic, ghastly menace and a frightful assassin of youth," and "soul-destroying."

When the movie was over, Campbell,

Bishop and a group of students from Great Falls talked with the inmates about marijuana and the film they had seen.

Marvin Avery, a prison counselor, said the movie didn't surprise him.

When asked if he believed the movie to be fact or fiction, he termed it "farical."

Marijuana, Avery said, "affects you something like liquor." He added that the liquor problem in this country is much larger than the marijuana problem, but no less dangerous.

The counselor said he thought prohibition didn't work and the present marijuana laws are ridiculous, and not working either.

Rise in food costs triggers board and room increase

The rising cost of food has triggered an increase in room and board rates at the University of Montana, according to George Mitchell, UM administrative vice president.

"Because of a 66 per cent increase in the cost of meat alone, we were forced into adjusting our rate," Mitchell said. The increase was approved Sept. 10 by the Board of Regents and is the first rate hike since 1971, he added.

The room and board rate has increased from $3.08 to $3.31, an increase of 23 cents a day or from $749 to $804 (7.34 per cent) annually he said.

"The Cost of Living Council has issued final regulations for Phase IV of the economic stabilization program and as was true in the proposed rules, tuition and other charges of colleges are exempt from controls," Mitchell said.

Mitchell said the problems faced by colleges and universities was dramatized in a report by the University of Massachusetts.

"Their study showed a 35.9 per cent increase in food prices on the wholesale market, which translated into a 19.3 per cent increase in food service costs," Mitchell said.

UM is experiencing the same price increases, Mitchell said. He noted that the wholesale cost of canned goods has increased 20 per cent over last year and the price of eggs has risen a total of 131 per cent.

'SCARECROW' IS A BRAWLING, BIG-HEARTED MOVIE IN THE GRAND AMERICAN TRADITION OF GRUFF, COMPASSIONATE MOVIES! It is sentimental and rich in humor. Added to that is the pleasure to be had just from watching Gene Hackman and Al Pacino creating a bond of communication that is so powerful the viewer actually feels it.'
—Kathleen Carroll, New York Daily News

"Gene Hackman is superb. Al Pacino is a perfect foil. The two seem to add their own devices to the script and they should be teamed together again."
—Jeffrey Lyons, WPIX-TV

"'SCARECROW' IS SAD AND FUNNY, SORDID AND BEAUTIFUL, SHOCKING AND SENSITIVE—IN ONE WORD, WONDERFUL! A triple triumph because of its outstanding direction, acting and photography. Hackman and Pacino have converted words on a page into flesh and blood people. Hackman gives one of his finest performances."

Plays announced

The schedule of drama productions at the University of Montana fall quarter has been announced by Richard James, chairman of the drama department.

The season begins with the Montana Repertory Theater presentation of "All the King's Men" October 25 through 28, directed by Rolland Meinholtz. The play, written by Robert Penn Warren, is a study of public personalities and corruption.

"Hedda Gabler," Henrik Ibsen's drama, runs November 7 through 11 in the 97-seat Masquer Theater. This play, directed by John Frick, graduate student in drama, examines the unexpected passions and emotions of the cultivated Hedda Gabler.

Alan Cook, Associate Professor in Drama, directs Brendan Behan's "The Hostage", playing Nov. 29 through Dec. 2. "The Hostage" has for its subject the continuing struggle between life and death," said Cook.

The repertory company is beginning its seventh season. Its schedule will include three major productions, plus theater workshop presentations which are available for booking throughout the Rocky Mountain states.

The Company will also provide classes in Shakespeare, children's theater, make-up, and acting that will be available to those sponsors interested in the workshop program. These workshops are geared for high school and elementary level. The MRT Company plans to visit sponsoring schools and engage the students in workshop activities.

The MRT Company consists of a troupe of actors chosen from those of the upper level status from the Department of Drama at the UM and experienced actors from the community. This group works together several hours per day for the entire year, and produces within itself the touring productions and workshop activities.

According to Marjorie Van Halteren, MRT publicity director, the primary concept of the MRT is to produce "well-rounded theater artists." The members of the company produce the shows technically as well as act in them.

Artistic Director Rolland Meinholtz feels that the 1973-74 MRT is a unique, unprecedented concept in the Northwest area. "The most exciting attribute of the company is the prospect of touring live theater," he said. "Our main goal is to bring with us the exciting one-to-one audience contact only found in live performances."

A season ticket to the drama productions is being offered this year with savings of 30%. Student discounts will again be given.

Women's sports

The University of Montana Womens Athletic Department will participate in five intercollegiate sports this year.

The sports are: volleyball, gymnastics, tennis, basketball, and track and field.

Student turnout is encouraged and those wishing to participate are urged to contact the Womens Athletic Department now, even if they do not intend to participate until winter or spring quarters.

Women to contact are: tennis or volleyball—Jodie Leslie FH213, basketball—Pat Mahevic WC116, gymnastics or track—Sharon Dinkel FH208.

The UM women's first intercollegiate contest this year will be a volleyball game at Central Washington State on October 13.

DENVER ROCKETS' Al Smith scores two against Utah as teammate Marvin Roberts and Utah Star Pete Harris look on. The game was played in the Harry Adams Field house before 1,809 fans. The Stars used a tough defense to beat the Rockets 126-113. Utah took the lead at the beginning of the game and fell behind briefly in the third quarter before gaining the win.

Harriers travel to Spokane

The young Grizzly cross country team will make its season debut in Spokane tomorrow in the annual Arnie Pelluer Invitational meet.

The University of Montana, Gonzaga, and Idaho will represent the Big Sky Conference in the 14 school meet.

The Grizzly squad consists entirely of underclassmen, but coach Harley

Lewis is impressed with the quality and depth of the team.

Lewis said he is treating the first meet as a work out, but he is eager to see how the Montana squad compares with the Idaho and Gonzaga teams.

Lewis said he feels his group of young grizzlies could develop into the best cross country team he has had at the UM.

Grizzlies play NAU

The University of Montana Grizzlies journey to Flagstaff, Ariz. tomorrow for their conference opener against the Northern Arizona University Lumberjacks.

The game will be the Lumberjacks' Homecoming and they will be out to avenge the 40-17 beating the Grizzlies gave them in Missoula last year.

The Lumberjacks have the best passer in the conference in Dave Mendez according to UM Coach Jack Swarthout.

"He has completed 67% of his passes and that is even better than most pros," Swarthout said.

The Grizzlies have the best defense in the conference, giving up only 237 yards a game total offense and picking off nine passes in the first three games according to Big Sky Conference statistics.

The statistics show that the Grizzlies lead the conference in defense against the rush and that NAU leads in defense against the pass.

Grizzly individuals leading in conference statistics include Mike Ladd in interceptions with three for 13 yards, and Greg Erickson in punt returns with a 21.8 yards per return average. Erickson is second in kickoff returns with a 21.9 yards per return average.

NAU's Mendez leads the Big Sky in passing with 33 completions in 51 attempts for 320 yards and one interception. Mendez is second in total offense with a 135.5 yards per game average.

Swarthout said the Grizzlies had a good scrimmage this week, the boys are in good spirits, and are looking forward to a win.

Grizzly starters will be: (offense) light end—Duane Walker; split end—Greg Anderson; tackles—Eric Manegold and Tim Brick or Richard Border; guards—Kim McReynolds and Bill Grigsby; center—Kit Blue; quarterback—Rock Svenningsen; halfbacks—Jim Olson and Greg Erickson; fullback—Bob Smith or John Parker; kicker—Bob Turnquist.

(defense) ends—Marc Kouzmanoff and Steve Taylor; tackles—Jim Leid and Rick Anderson; middle linebacker—Ron Rosenberg; outside linebackers—Dave Manovich and Curt Donner or John Buxton; cornerbacks—Dave Harrington and Sly Hardy; safeties—Rob Stark and Mike Ladd. Harrington will do the punting.

$100 law fee questioned

The allocation of a special fee initiated by the law school to supplement law faculty salaries and to support the law library has been questioned by Keith McDuffie, Faculty Senate president.

The special fee of $100 for freshmen law students only was charged this quarter for the first time.

McDuffie said in a Montana Kaimin interview Wednesday that the law school would have University funds guaranteed for its own use if the special fee was earmarked for the school's use before it was put into the University operating fund. The operating fund covers funding in all University departments.

Robert Sullivan, dean of the law school, said Wednesday he did not know the mechanics of how the fee goes through the UM operating fund. He said that the fee was approved by UM President Robert Pantzer and was authorized by the Board of Regents.

Sullivan said the added fee is not intended to bypass UM regulations or to separate the school from the University system.

Balloonist Doug Misner didn't get his balloon into the air until late Wednesday evening, so he returned Thursday.

Program Council hired Misner for $700, to appear with his balloon and give "a few free rides," according to Dave Snyder, pop concert coordinator.

Snyder said Misner felt that he had not fulfilled his contract and new arrangements were made. Misner received $300 for the appearance Wednesday and the remaining $400 was allocated yesterday.

Indian Arts Program funding terminated

The Indian Arts Program has been terminated because funds are no longer available to continue the program. Norman Taylor, vice-president for research, said yesterday.

The two-year-old program, under the direction of the art department, was funded its first year by a grant from the National Endowment for the Humanities, and last year by grants from the Bureau of Indian Affairs and the now defunct Office of Economic Opportunity (OEO).

"Funds for the program are no longer available from these sources," Taylor said.

Taylor said that when the OEO went out of existence last year court action was taken to get the money promised to the program by that office.

Five Indian students were involved in the program.

THE ECONOMICS OF GAMBLING

Story and photos by Frank Danichek

Legislators study gambling industry

Forward

Senate Joint Resolution No. 18, enacted during the last days of the 43rd Legislative session, placed a "moratorium" on all gambling legislation until the 1974 legislature convenes.

Montanans voted overwhelmingly last fall to remove the constitutional prohibition against gambling, but state legislators failed to enact a gambling bill because of the ambivalence of the meaning of the 50,000 plus plurality removing the prohibition.

Tomorrow, the Joint Senate and House Select Committee on Gambling will begin deliberation on a committee report to be given to the legislature in January, following a series of three hearings held this summer. Frank Danichek attended the last hearing, held in Great Falls, and brings this report.

Editor's note: Frank Danichek, junior in journalism, has received a B.A. in history from the University of Montana. Danichek has worked at Caesar's Palace in Las Vegas and at the King's Castle on Lake Tahoe, Nev.

By Frank Danichek
Special to the Montana Kaimin

Almost predictably, the Montana gambling controversy evolved this summer from a moral issue to an economic issue.

The Joint House and Senate Select Committee on Gambling held hearings the past several months in three Montana cities—Missoula, Miles City and Great Falls—to try to determine what the voters wanted when they approved the lifting of the constitutional prohibition on gambling legislation.

The Missoula and Miles City meetings reflected public support for gambling. The last hearing, however, dealt with the mechanics of gambling, the taxation of the gambling industry and its regulation. Or, quite simply, the economics of gambling.

At the Great Falls hearing, Nevada Deputy Attorney General David Polley told the committee there are two regulatory gaming bodies that he represents. One is the Nevada Gaming Commission, the other is the Nevada Gaming Control Board. Polley stated that the commission was the ultimate authority in granting or revoking gaming licenses, whereas the control board investigates applicants for gaming licenses, enforces laws and regulations, and audits and taxes the casinos.

"When a person applies for a gaming license in the state of Nevada he is thoroughly checked," Polley said. "The investigation a person has to go through to receive a gaming license is probably as rigorous as receiving acute clearance from the Atomic Energy Commission. We go back to the day of birth and investigate your personal background. It is generally through financial arrangements that undesirables will try to work their way into a legitimate organization and one of the best ways to determine whether a person is connected with an undesirable is to look at his business dealings. Sometimes these investigations can go on for months. The statute requires that the Control Board act upon an applicant within 90 days but generally we can get a waiver from the applicant by saying we don't know enough about you; the interests of the state are best served by denying your application. Then we get a waiver."

"The cost of this investigation is born solely by the applicant," Polley continued. "There have been instances where the cost has run between eight and ten thousand dollars for an individual, especially at $12 per hour for the investigator; that is his traveling time and time required to work up a report on the application. The application is not acted upon till that bill is paid."

"In the case of a corporation we have had some investigations that run as high as $50,000. This is the only way you can have effective control. You can make sure who you are dealing with in the first instance. To do this you have to thoroughly investigate them, and most states do not have the money necessary for this type of work. Generally, if an individual cannot handle the investigative fee financially, he cannot bankroll a game either. This is another test."

During the testimony an unidentified legislator asked Polley what might disqualify a prospective gambling concessionaire, other than money.

Any incident of lawbreaking; both misdemeanors or felonies, will bar the applicant from opening a casino, Polley replied. "If you had been picked up three times for driving while intoxicated you might not get a license," he said.

"In Montana," the unidentified legislator said, "it is impossible to apply that rule under our constitution."

FORMER NEVADA DEPUTY Atty. Gen. Frank Daykin advised legislators to strictly control gambling if gambling legislation is approved in the 1974 legislature. He testified at a recent Select Committee on Gambling hearing in Great Falls.

You can be convicted of multiple first degree murders and still be eligible."

"And still be eligible?" said an astonished Polley. "You'd better not have any gambling, then."

The unidentified legislator was referring to Article II Section 28 of the Montana Constitution which is titled Rights Of The Convicted. "Laws for the punishment of crime shall be founded on the principles of prevention and reformation," it states. "Full rights are restored by termination of state supervision for any offense against the state."

Obviously the unidentified legislator confused the term "right" with "privilege." Article II, Section 3 titled Inalienable Rights states, "All persons are born free and have certain inalienable rights. They include the right to a clean and healthful environment and the rights of pursuing life's basic necessities, enjoying and defending their lives and liberties, acquiring, possessing and protecting property, and seeking their safety, health and happiness in all lawful ways. In enjoying these rights, all persons recognize corresponding responsibilities."

To own a business license, however, is a privilege, not a right. For example, if a liquor dealer serves minors or operates after hours, his privilege of a liquor license can be revoked.

"The license must be strictly a revocable privilege."

Senator William Lowe, R-Billings, told the committee he believes it would be important to give the state the right to "arbitrarily" take a gambling license away. He asked former Nevada Deputy Attorney Frank Daykin how the state could protect itself from a lawsuit if it did take away a person's gambling license.

Daykin told the committee that it has been done "quite effectively in the Nevada corporation laws. It could be polished a little in light of your unusually favorable constitutional provision."

"The license must be strictly a revocable privilege," Daykin warned the committee. "It must give rise to no vested rights. Gaming must be treated as a tolerated nuisance. The license can be taken away in Nevada without explanation. This is almost the only way to control gambling. Otherwise some not-so-nice people can get a vested right and you end up fighting with them forever. You must keep control and grow slowly."

Art Palmer, director of the Nevada Legislative Council Bureau, told the senators & representatives that gaming taxes for the general fund are collected by the counties and by the State Gaming Commission. The bulk of the game tax is collected by the State Gaming Commission, he said, while the county collects quarterly licensing fees; twenty-five per cent of which is turned over to the state general fund. In 1972-73, there were revenue receipts of $1.6 million, a relatively small amount when compared to all Nevada tax revenue, Palmer said.

The largest amount of tax money is collected by the State Gaming Commission, in the form of the quarterly state licensing fee, a tax on all gross revenues, he said.

The revenues collected by the Gaming Commission in 1972-73 were around $40 million dollars, he stated.

"There are three ways that gaming is taxed in Nevada by five levels of government," Palmer said at the hearing. "The gross revenue is the big one. The second is the non-restricted or restricted tax on slot machines themselves. Taxes on games of various sorts and a so-called table tax which you might consider to be a tax to operate in the first place. You have a license to operate, you have a taxation on each machine and a taxation on overall revenue. Except for the restricted flat license fee on a person who had fifteen slot machines or less, they pay from general gross revenue.

"Generally, if an individual cannot handle the investigative fee financially, he cannot bankroll a game either."

"There are two relatively new taxes to Nevada. There is the federal slot tax credit. Eighty per cent of that comes back to Nevada. This is a new federal provision. It goes to two entities, the first $5 million goes to higher education capital construction; anything over that goes to the state distributive school fund. The casino entertainment tax which only applies where there is live entertainment in a licensed establishment. This is running around $8 million for 1972-73."

Warren Nelson, a co-owner of the Cal-Neva Club in Reno, Nev., President of the Northern Nevada Gaming Assn., and former Great Falls resident, told the Select Committee on Gambling, "I don't condone gambling; I don't think gambling is the best thing in the world, but I know it can't be stopped."

"I think Nevada is very unique in comparison to Montana," Nelson said. "It has grown very slowly. When I first went down to Reno, it was about 10,000 people, now it's 80-90,000. The business has become very complex. It has taken us so long to get where we're at—forty years."

"I think the key to all gambling is control. Control is something you don't learn over night."

"I don't condone gambling; I don't think gambling is the best thing in the world, but I know it can't be stopped."

"Right now, I believe that gambling in the state of Nevada is conducted as well as it could be. I believe that the people get a fair shake and that the government gets a fair shake. Regardless of what you hear, the state has gathered that knowledge, they know what's going on, they know how to do it.

"There's one aspect that you have to look at—you're going to have to contend with the federal government. They don't understand it and they don't pretend to understand it. They believe that all gamblers skim. They don't believe that they pay their taxes. I can honestly say, in a place of any size at all, I don't see how anybody could skim. The government has it down that fine.

There are many forms of gambling could take, he said, but the ambivalence of the issue hinders any recommendations.

Nelson emphasized that Nevadans will not discourage Montana from adopting wide-open gambling, which some people have speculated might draw business from Nevada.

"I am president of the Gaming Association in Northern Nevada," he said.

"Right now, in my place of business I cannot count the money without two employees, these two have to be sanctioned by the state. Somebody has to sign the paper. should keep of the total drop as well as I do. They know what is going on."

Nelson said he was unsure about Montana's gambling intentions.

THE NUMBER ONE KILLER OF YOUNG AMERICANS IS YOUNG AMERICANS.

You march against war. You fight for clean air and clean water. You eat natural foods. You practice yoga. You are so much for life. And you are so much against killing.

It would be unthinkable for you to kill another human being on purpose.

So then, why is this happening?

You don't mean to be. But you are. The numbers are simple.

Latest available figures show that 8,000 American people between the ages of 15 and 25 died in alcohol related crashes. And almost all the drunk drivers who caused those crashes were also under 25.

1,380 died in combat. 3,420 committed suicide. 2,731 died of cancer.

It's incredible, but one of the most dangerous things you can do is to have a few bottles of wine with friends and drive home.

You can change it. You have to.

said, "and at a meeting awhile back somebody said something about gambling in Montana and somebody also said, 'Gee, that's great.' I want to emphasize, I am absolutely sure that nobody in Nevada has spent one penny in Montana to stop gambling here. We have no reason to, in fact of another state would come along and conduct it correctly it would improve our image. Gambling is a business."

The image of the gambling industry had changed, Nelson testified. He told the committee members that he had just returned from Canada.

"They know I was a gambler and it didn't matter. The climate of the entire thing has changed.

"There are so many things to look at. I say go slowly. But as for what the state should do, I have no idea. I have many definite ideas of my own, but my ideas aren't always right. But I do know this, it takes a tremendous amount of expertise, it also takes a tremendous amount of money. For instance, a week ago today, a man came in from Oregon and beat me out of $44,000 playing 21. That same day I had a $12,500 casino ticket and another one for $36,000. I quit about a $40,000 loser for the day. I'm not saying that with tears in my eyes because I'm sure we are going to make that up but it is going to drop our receipts down considerably. It's going to change our percentage and we live by percentage.

"In the gambling business we live by computer. Every slot machine of mine is connected with a computer, every day it's taken off. That information is fed into the computer. The slot machines supposed to hold twelve per cent—if it holds eleven and a half per cent that's fine with me, but if it holds five per cent, I want to find out why. So, I have to look at six hundred slot machines every day if I do my job right, or else delegate my responsibilities.

"I'm one of the smaller places. I own fourteen per cent of it and I have six partners. We have a growing operation. We have some land that we want to build a 600 room hotel on. The financing for that hotel is about $40 million. Now, you're talking big money. Montana can't do this at first, or maybe never.

"We'll go back to the economy. When I worked here we had wide open gambling in Butte. They weren't doing any where near the amount of business that they're doing in the small town of Hawthorne, Nevada. The gambling there, had it been taxed, would have generated a lot of revenue, and it was wide open like Reno. Again, I have many fixed ideas, and I'm going to tell what I think. I wouldn't spend a nickel here, I'm happy where I am."

This testimony proved one point. The Select Committee now has facts and information from experts. Deputy Atty. Gen. Polley told the committee how to create a regulatory gaming body. Frank Daykin described processes with which to eliminate undesirables. Art Palmer's figures showed that gambling is profitable both for the state as well as the private sector. Warren Nelson testified that gaming is a legitimate business.

Thus, the question in many minds is, what kind of gambling will this state create? Casino type gaming means a new industry, which in turn means jobs for the state's young people. Lotteries and bingo do not create a job market; they amount to nothing more than a voluntary tax. And legislators like to tax, as it is easier than creating a new industry.
