State should not pay fees for UM Five, Lynch says

By John Kafentzla
Montana Kaimin Reporter

The state should not pay attorney's fees of the five defendants in the work-study trial last spring, Neil Lynch, Montana senate majority leader, said in a Montana Kaimin interview yesterday.

He said he has already received several calls from constituents opposing state payment of the work-study defendants' legal fees.

Lynch, a Butte Democrat, said state payment of the fees would throw open a "Pandora's Box" of problems for Montana.

He said he knows many law enforcement officers who have been sued as agents of the government, and they have not had legal fees paid for them.

He said he might approve of paying attorney's fees for a state employe if the employe "is definitely acting in the line of duty," in accordance with the rules and regulations governing his job. He added that payment would have to be decided on a case-by-case review of suits.

Criminal charges of misuse of work-study funds were dropped last spring against George Mitchell, University of Montana administrative vice president; Earl Martell, UM athletic department business manager and John Elway, former UM assistant football coach. Elway is now at Washington State University in Pullman, Wash. Jack Swarthout, UM athletic director and head football coach, and William Betcher, assistant UM football coach, were tried and acquitted.

Ted James, Board of Regents chairman, said last week he is in favor of the state paying the work-study defendants' legal fees and defense fees of state employes sued as a result of their jobs with the state.

James said the question of whether to ask the legislature to pay fees for the defendants will be discussed at the Regents' Dec. 10 meeting in Helena.

He said he is in favor of the state paying legal fees of all employes who are defendants in civil suits against the state. But he said certain guidelines would have to be set up to determine whether the state will pay fees in criminal suits.

The work-study trial was a criminal trial.

James, a Great Falls attorney, said unless the state provides some kind of defense for its employes, qualified individuals will be deterred from seeking state employment.

He said that although the matter will be discussed at the Regents' meeting he doubts if the board will come to any conclusion until it meets with a legislative committee on the subject.

He said yesterday that state employes have been subject to suit in the past for their actions as state employes. But he said the elimination of the state's sovereign immunity in the new Montana Constitution, effective July 1, 1973, will increase the number of suits filed against state employes.

Robert Campbell, a Constitutional Convention delegate and Missoula attorney, said last week the new constitution put state employes on an equal footing with "the man in the street" who would have to pay his own legal fees if sued.

James said state employes are different from employes of private industry because the risk of some activities such as law enforcement and fire control are so high that private industry does not engage in them.

Faculty Senate to consider pay raise

Faculty salaries for the Montana University System rank near the lowest in the nation for state universities and the Faculty Senate is moving to ask for pay raises. Faculty Senate Chairman Keith McDuffie said yesterday.

The Senate will vote Thursday on a recommendation by its executive committee to ask University of Montana President Robert Pantzer to seek a salary raise of 10 per cent for the 1974-75 academic year.

McDuffie, professor of foreign languages, said the proposed raise would enable faculty to keep pace with increasing costs of living. He noted the cost-of-living index rose 8.7 per cent through September of this year, while faculty raises totaled only five per cent.

McDuffie named three possible sources of revenue for the raise.

• Pantzer could ask the Board of Regents, which must approve any raises, to make faculty salary raises its first priority. This might mean the Board would have to cut back other university programs, McDuffie said.

• State Commissioner of Higher Education Larry Pettit might be persuaded to revise upward his planned request for an increase in funding for the university system.

• Money could be allocated from the $10 million surplus from this past year's state budget.

McDuffie emphasized the request was being made by the faculties of the entire university system. He said the Montana State University faculty had already made a similar request of MSU President Carl McIntosh.

At the Thursday meeting the Faculty Senate will also vote on an executive committee recommendation urging the U. S. House of Representatives to begin impeachment proceedings against President Nixon.

Dean Solberg comments on Black Studies funding

No simple system exists for making funding priorities of Black Studies or any other department at the University of Montana, Richard Solberg, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said yesterday.

Solberg said he cannot cut the budgets in other departments because Black Studies thinks it has a funding priority. He said persons who attend Black Studies classes also attend classes in departments where the budget cuts would have to be made to give more funding to Black Studies.

Solberg said there was a $916 overdraft in the Black Studies budget last year but that this overdraft was covered.

He said that at the end of each year some departments have a deficit and some do not. The money not spent in some departments at the end of each year is used to cover the overdrafts of other departments.

Solberg said letters he receives show that some people are under the misconception that Black Studies receives little or no state funding. He said Black Studies is "basically" funded through the University.

Solberg said that Black Studies is currently having financial problems because of a misunderstanding on the part of Black Studies about receiving special funding. He said Black Studies' current financial problems stem from the hiring of new faculty members last summer on the assumption that there would be more funding this fall.

He said Black Studies received a budget increase for 1973-74 over what they received for 1972-73.

The following Black Studies budget information was supplied by Solberg.

• Salaries and wages for 1972-73 were $26,261, and for 1973-74, $27,888.

• Secretarial wages for 1972-73 were $5,076 and in 1973-74, $5,757.

• Part-time help wages for 1972-73 were $2,489 and for 1973-74, $3,500.

• Supplies and expenses for 1972-73 were $1,327 and in 1973-74, $1,750 was allotted.

• Out of state travel allowance for 1972-73 was $1,205 and for 1973-74, $1,100. The total budget for 1972-73 was approximately $36,360 and for 1973-74, approximately $40,000.

Solberg said Black Studies thinks ending racism in the United States will solve all of this nation's problems, just as the "alumni think football will solve all the country's problems."

McGovern does not rule out running again for President

Editor's note: The following was written by Shaun Thompson, senior in Journalism and history, who attended a Democratic convention in Lewistown. Thompson was a Montana delegate to the 1972 Democratic National Convention, the state vice-chairman of the Montana McGovern for President committee and head of the Ravalli, Mineral and Missoula counties McGovern for President organizations.

Sen. George McGovern, D-S.D., said Friday he will not completely rule out another campaign for the presidency.

"If we could do it over, it would be easy now," McGovern told the Montana Kaimin at the Democratic officers' convention in Lewistown.

Jim Webster, McGovern's press secretary, told the Kaimin the senator's more immediate concern is his reelection bid in South Dakota.

Webster said McGovern is getting campaign contributions from supporters all over the nation for his Dakota campaign and will not have to rely on financial backing from labor unions—a traditional source of Democratic campaign funds.

According to Webster, McGovern spends a lot of time reading books about the 1972 election. McGovern dislikes Theodore White's The Making of the President 1972. Webster said, and his favorite work on the subject is Hunter Thompson's Fear Loathing: On The Campaign Trail 1972.

At a banquet, McGovern told conventioners that President Richard Nixon should be impeached.

McGovern denied that the Watergate scandals are typical of American politics. "We (the McGovern organization) did not commit any crime," he contended.

In reference to the Eagleton, (Sen. Thomas Eagleton, D-Mo.) affair, McGovern said, "Apparently, four-and-a-half years is not enough time to make a vice-presidential selection."

Eagleton was McGovern's first vice presidential choice in the 1972 election, but pressure was put on McGovern to ask Eagleton to drop off the ticket when questions surfaced concerning Eagleton's mental stability.

In other remarks McGovern said:

- The Committee to Reelect the President extorted funds from businesses.
- Archibald Cox was fired as special prosecutor because he got too close to the top.

• The U.S. Constitution should be used as the basis for the unification of America since it is common to every citizen.

Rep. John Melcher, D-Mont., who was also at the convention, told the Kaimin Nixon was late in instituting an energy program.

"Better now than never, but it could have been introduced 10 months ago," Melcher said.

At the banquet, Melcher apologized for the incident in which he was arrested for drunken driving in Maryland. "I pledge to you that I am going to do all my hell-raising in an honorable way," Melcher said.

McQuirk's lawyers admit violation

By Dave Stenerson
Montana Kaimin Reporter

Attorneys representing Bill McQuirk, Missoula bar and restaurant owner, admitted at a pre-trial hearing Friday that the Heidelberg, owned by McQuirk, violated the Fair Labor Standards Act.

Bill Jones and Gary Graham, from the Missoula firm of Garlington, Lohn & Robinson, agreed that the Heidelberg is governed by the act, and does not have records of employes work schedules, as required by the act.

The hearing, conducted by U.S. District Judge Russell Smith of Missoula, concerned a federal suit filed in July by three of McQuirk's former employes.

Peggy Lynam, Nanci Lauth and Sharon Loomis contend in the suit that McQuirk did not pay them wages they earned while working at the Heidelberg.

Smith gave McQuirk's attorneys until next Monday to either answer or object to interrogatories introduced at the hearing by Dan Shea, Missoula attorney representing the plaintiffs.

Interrogatories are formal questions plaintiffs request defendants to answer in court cases. Defendants may object to all or part of the questions, in which case another hearing is called.

Shea said the trial for McQuirk

Nixon cannot locate third tape

Washington AP The White House agreed in the federal court that it will deliver by Nov. 20 subpoenaed Watergate tape recordings and the other material promised by Nixon. It also agreed to allow the tapes to be inspected by court-appointed technicians for alterations.

The dictation belt is the third piece of subpoenaed Watergate evidence the White House said does not exist.

Earlier, it announced that two key conversations went unrecorded by a presidential taping system.

Nixon also announced he will give a federal judge subpoenaed White House tape recordings and portions of his personal diary file, in what he called an effort to "clear up... once and for all" the controversy about the Watergate conversations.

The White House agreed in the federal court that it will deliver by Nov. 20 subpoenaed Watergate tape recordings and the other material promised by Nixon. It also agreed to allow the tapes to be inspected by court-appointed technicians for alterations.

In other Watergate-related developments yesterday Braniff Airways Inc. and its board chairman, Harding Lawrence, pleaded guilty in federal court in Washington, D.C. to charges of making an illegal $40,000 corporate contribution to the 1972 Nixon re-election campaign. The airline was fined $5,000 and Lawrence was fined $1,000.

probably will be in March or April and probably will last about three or four days.

A pre-trial hearing is an informal meeting of the presiding judge and attorneys for both sides of a pending action. It is called to determine possible length of trial, evidence to be presented and other pertinent data concerning the trial.

McQuirk is also the object of three state suits and a complaint to the U.S. Dept. of Labor. These actions are the result of complaints filed by more than 125 former employes of the Heidelberg, of the Trading Post Saloon, which is held in trust for McQuirk's children, and of the Fairway Lounge and Liquor Store, owned by McQuirk's wife, Betty.

Where are you ladies?

During the recent ASUM appointing session it was interesting to note that only one woman applied for a position on Publications Board, no women applied for the position on Student Union Board and no women applied for the five vacant Central Board seats. Student representatives had to seek out competent women to fill some of the positions.

Now there is another position available. Yesterday, Garry South, ASUM president, received word from Ted James, chairman of the Board of Regents, that students will be allowed to place another student (a woman) on the Presidential Search Committee. It makes one wonder if there are any concerned, intelligent women available for the job.

One year ago this campus was endowed with a very vocal women's movement but it folded. The faculty women also became active with the result of raising their salaries to the same level of their male counterparts. Now we hear nothing from either group.

The time is ripe for both groups to once again become active. The upcoming legislative session promises one of the hardest fights women of this state have ever seen (the ERA).

A strong women's movement is needed on this campus. The opportunities are there.

Ski budget impoundment explained

In an attempt to clear up some of the misunderstanding regarding the Ski Team budget it is necessary to point out some things that have either been ignored or forgotten.

Before the vote on the budget, I explained to Central Board members that a vote in support of an allocation to the Ski Team with an equal amount of money withheld from transfer to the general Men's Intercollegiate Sports account would be an explicit statement that Central Board's allocation to Men's Intercollegiate Sports last Spring was given with the understanding that no programs would be cut entirely from the budget. On the tall side of the coin, a vote in support of an allocation of $0 would state that no such understanding existed, and that the athletic department could slash programs at will. The passage of the $1,348 allocation to the Ski Team was proof that Central Board allocated $95,000 to Men's Intercollegiate Sports last spring with the intent that all programs on the proposed budget be granted enough athletic department funds to survive at a competitive level.

Contrary to what has been printed in the Kaimin, the action chosen by Central Board will not entail a return of any funds from the athletic department. All that is involved is a change of line items. Rather than transferring all $95,000 to the general Men's Intercollegiate Sports budget, $93,652 will be transferred to this general account and $1,348 will be transferred to the Ski Team account. (Central Board has the power to change line items in its allocations as was demonstrated when line items for the Jubileers and the Off-Campus Housing Service were changed.)

Central Board has not "changed their minds." Central Board has merely reaffirmed its original intention that the Ski Team be a funded portion of the athletic department budget and that the entire athletic department be allocated a total of $95,000 of ASUM funds.

Ethnic studies defended

Editor: It will be a sad day for Montana if the Black Studies and Indian Studies programs are discontinued. Their value to the University and to the state in helping us understand other cultures is immeasurable. All of us—students, faculty, administration, residents and Montanans—should steadfastly work for their continuance. Otherwise we will be retreating into our shells.

Graham should stay

Editor: RE: The news article on page one of Wednesday's Kaimin concerning the replacement to CRCS.

Over the past several years, it has been my pleasure to know and be in close working contact with Phil Graham. Phil is a cautious, conscientious, hard working person. Moreover, in positions of responsibility he manages to remain very objective to problems confronting him. I was therefore astounded to read that Phil is in danger of losing his position on CRCS simply because he did not vote in accordance with ASUM President Garry South's wishes concerning faculty fees to help operate the recreation facilities at UM.

Phil Graham did his homework before voting the way he did. He compiled stacks of data on the issue and logged hours of research. When the matter came to a vote, Phil was prepared with concise, logical, objective reasons why the faculty fees should be rescinded. On the other hand, the opposition had little more to go on than the fact that Garry South had different views. But this is merely the background. The point I'm grasping for is this: It does not seem right to me that anyone on any board headed by an influential person on campus should be coerced into voting against his or her personal beliefs, or threatened with the loss of his or her position after casting such a vote.

Maybe I'm an idealist.

However, I must protest the immaturity and rashness of Garry South on this point. It appears to me that this is merely one more incident. (Remember his attempted railroad of CB appointees?) In South's quest for absolute control over the decisions of the representatives of the student body.

Black and Indian Studies backed

Editor: How many programs on the University of Montana campus allow their students a break from the usual academia in order to question their basic values, their roles as persons in a confused and complex world? And isn't this too an integral part of the learning process? If ethnic studies lose the University's financial support, we will be denied a great degree of this important aspect of our education.

Even more importantly, haven't we raped the minorities in this country long enough? Certainly the funding for some programs must be cut under the presently limited and inadequate budget. But the Black and Indian Studies programs are fighting for survival, for a continued representation on this campus, rather than for further development of new educational equipment. The University cannot afford to give these programs only secondary consideration in its priorities for funding if this University is to remain a well-rounded educational institution.

Diabetes association formed

Editor: We would like to extend an invitation to all students, faculty and those interested to join the Missoula Area Diabetes Association which has been recently formed in Missoula.

One of the main purposes of our organization is to keep abreast of the research being done in diabetes. We hope to increase our understanding of diabetes and to enable ourselves to make a healthy and successful adjustment in life. We have hoped to set up a Diabetic Detection Center at Missoula General Hospital. Also we are hosting the 1973 State Diabetic Convention on February 9.

Our meetings are held the last Tuesday of every month at 8 p.m. at the First Methodist Church, 300 East Main. Membership fees are $6 and $3 for each associate member. You need not be a diabetic to join.

We need and welcome any new members. If interested please call Laura Norman at 543-7914 or Tym Rhoades at 549-0196.

Big Sky is almost finished

Editor's note: This is the first in a series of four articles about Chet Huntley. The first two articles deal with his Big Sky resort and the last two deal with his views of the press and education.

By Liann Bjelland
Montana Kaimin reporter

Chet Huntley has a new home and a dream that has almost come true. The new home is Montana. The dream is Big Sky, a 15 million-acre recreational development located at the base of 11,168-foot Lone Mountain in the Gallatin Canyon. Huntley, former NBC news commentator, is chairman of the Board of Big Sky of Montana, Inc.

The purchase and development of Big Sky was financed by The Chrysler Realty Corporation of Detroit, Mich. (a subsidiary of Chrysler) with 52 per cent ownership. Other capital invested in Big Sky includes Montana Power Co., Burlington Northern, Northwest Orient Airlines, Continental Oil, the Meridian Investing and Development Corp. of Coral Gables, Fla., and the General Pension Fund.

Huntley said in a Montana Kaimin interview Nov. 3, that he ended up with two per cent of the stock for all of his efforts. But he added he works hard at Big Sky, although not quite as frantically as he did for years at daily journalism.

Huntley announced the beginning of Big Sky in January of 1970, about four years after he initially began discussing the development.

Big Sky, which is located about 40 miles south of Bozeman, will include an 18-hole golf course, partially designed by Arnold Palmer Associates; hotel accommodations; condominiums; private home lots; a sprawling trailer court; three alpine ski runs; four ski lifts; two hostels, and a hospital with five doctors. Restaurants, shops, staff quarters, plus facilities for swimming, archery, skeet shooting, fishing, horseback riding and tennis will also be provided.

Huntley said that Big Sky is aiming toward a maximum capacity of 7,500 beds. That is, about 7,500 beds will be distributed in approximately 1,500 condominiums and 1,500 homesites plus a 200-unit hotel. "When it (Big Sky) reaches that size, that's the end of it," he stated.

"We don't want the density here to get out of hand... we don't want people stepping on each other," Huntley said.

About 70 per cent of Big Sky's total acreage will be left as it is, totally untouched and totally undeveloped, in the form of "greenbelt parks," he said.

In a sense, Big Sky will be completed by Dec. 15 because the ski lifts, the last of the "amenities" to become functional, will start operating officially. The recreational development's ski lifts include two double chairs, one triple chair and a four-passenger gondola. The lifts can accommodate 5,200 skiers per hour. Huntley said, "I think we can guarantee no waiting for lifts at Big Sky for a number of years."

The only major building not completed is the hotel which will not open until May. "But after that, it's simply a matter of building more condominiums as people order them, and as people choose to build their own homes up here on private lots," Huntley said.

About 30 per cent of the land at Big Sky will be developed. This includes private home sites, condominiums and two small village centers.

Meadow Village is where Big Sky started. It has its own golf course, restaurant, condominiums and a 42-room hostel.

Mountain Village is located at the base of Lone Mountain and Andesite Mountain. The enclosed village mall houses shops, restaurants, convention facilities and a sports shop. An 88-room hostel is also located at Mountain Village.

Lone Mountain Guest Ranch, a remnant of the Old West, has individual electrically-heated log cabins, each with its own fireplace or Franklin stove.

About 50 per cent of the land has been sold to Montanans, according to Huntley. "Last year it was running about 65 per cent Montana people but now as the word gets out across the United States, more and more people from all over the country are coming here," he said.

Buyers from France, Germany, Japan and Hawaii now own a piece of Big Sky. Huntley said he thinks every state in the U.S. is now represented.

"We set out here with a deliberate attempt to create—here at Big Sky, the finest year-round recreation resort on the North American Continent. We are now convinced that we have achieved it. Big Sky has advantages which other areas do not have. In one way or another, we know that we have more to offer here than any of the other famous resorts in this country... on this continent," Huntley said.

ERA faces opposition

CPS amendment, has now voted to rescind its ratification. According to existing Constitutional authority however, a state lack the power to withdraw its ratification. The matter is as yet unsettled.

ERA, which was initially proposed to Congress in 1923 by the National Woman's Party, has until 1979 to be ratified.

To date, eighteen states have taken negative action on ratification. Arkansas effectively killed the bill by amending it, while Utah, South Carolina, Nevada, Missouri, Maine, Indiana, Illinois, and Florida defeated approval with a floor vote of the legislature.

Arizona, Mississippi and Montana have tabled the issue, and Georgia has recommitted it for further study.

Nebraska, which approved the amendment, has now voted to rescind its ratification. According to existing Constitutional authority however, a state lack the power to withdraw its ratification. The matter is as yet unsettled.

Drive to halt mill expansion to start Wednesday evening

By Gary MacFadden
Montana Kaimin Reporter

The Concerned Citizens for a Quality Environment (CCQE) will start an intensive petition drive tomorrow evening in hopes of postponing a $40 million expansion project of the Hoerner Waldorf pulp mill at Frenchtown.

According to Ron Erickson, University of Montana professor of chemistry and chairman of CCQE, students, faculty and community members who wish to help in the circulation of the petitions will meet at 7:30 p.m. at the Congregational Church, 401 University Ave.

Erickson said some of the petitions were circulated at the public information meeting last Wednesday evening in the Hellgate High School auditorium. He said that, although the petition drive has not started yet, CCQE has already collected about 500 signatures "without really trying."

Erickson said the petitions, which protest any expansion by the pulp mill until a number of environmental questions have been answered, will have to be sent to the State Department of Health and Environmental Sciences (HES) by the end of November. "If they're going to do any good."

He said CCQE has been sending criticisms of the original Hoerner Waldorf expansion application to HES.

The application was submitted to HES on Aug. 28 along with a 69-page environmental impact statement. The information included was termed inadequate by HES. The expansion permit has not yet been granted to the mill.

Benjamin Wake, director of the Environmental Sciences Division of the Montana State Department of Health and Environmental Sciences, said last Thursday that it may be several weeks before the draft environmental statement which HES must write on the expansion will be completed.

The draft statement will then go before the public with a request for written statements and opinions on the expansion as presented in the draft statement. These statements will be taken under consideration when HES writes a final environmental impact statement.

If the HES decides to grant the permit, the State Board of Health, which meets regularly only every two months, will be asked to concur with the HES decision.

According to CCQE, the group is not opposed to Hoerner Waldorf expanding, but is opposed to the mill expanding when it has not been able to consistently meet state air pollution standards in the past.

The mill, which produces the linerboard used in the manufacture of cardboard boxes, is still operating under a variance granted by the state in 1972.

The CCQE petition reads:

"We strongly request that you use your good offices to ensure that there be at least a two year delay in granting any permit for the proposed expansion of the Hoerner Waldorf facilities in Missoula County. We are very concerned about further potential environmental degradation, (air, water and resources) which could ensue and believe that many questions must be answered before any permit is granted."

Faculty Senate to hear law fee report

A Faculty Senate ad hoc committee investigating a law school fee, which went into effect this fall quarter, will give its report to the Faculty Senate Thursday afternoon.

The purpose of the committee was to investigate "the appropriateness of the new fee," according to Gerry Brenner, associate professor of English and committee chairman.

The committee was formed by the Senate last spring after the Board of Regents approved a request by Robert Sullivan, law school dean, to assess freshman law students an extra $100 fee.

The money from the fee is being used to supplement law school faculty salaries and to support the law school library, according to Sullivan.

Keith McDuffie, Faculty Senate chairman, said he thinks it may be dangerous to set a precedent of allowing one school to collect funds earmarked for its own use, especially to supplement salaries.

Prints exhibited in Turner Hall

Etchings, lithographs and earth prints will be displayed through Friday in the Gallery of Visual Arts in Turner Hall.

The 33 prints in the exhibit represent the work of contemporary North Dakota printmakers Walter Piehl, Floyd Martin, Ronald Schaefer and Robert Schwiager.

Dean Douglas, gallery director, said all but a few of the prints are for sale at prices ranging from $10 to $250.

Douglas said an etching is made from a metal surface that has been grooved, treated with ink and pressed against paper to convey a particular pattern.

A lithograph is a print that has been pressed against a stone to convey a particular image, Douglas said.

The exhibit also contains eight examples of earth prints made by using an asphalt base on canvas. The fresh asphalt on the canvas is then pressed against the ground to convey the texture of the earth, Douglas said.

The gallery is open from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays and 2 to 5 p.m. weekends.

Brenner said the committee met last Thursday with University of Montana President Robert Panter, who approved the assessment of the fee last spring.

Panter discussed the history of the fee and his justification of it, Brenner said.

Brenner said the committee had asked to meet with Sullivan, but Sullivan had replied he would be too busy to meet with them until Thursday. Sullivan said he would send the committee information regarding the fee, according to Brenner.

Brenner said the committee members would probably have enough information to make a report without meeting with Sullivan.

Other committee members are Jack Morton, assistant professor of business, and Milton Reimer, assistant professor of education.

Proposed consumer credit legislation topic of meeting

The Uniform Consumer Credit Code (UCCC) bill, HB584, was discussed in Great Falls Saturday before legislators from the Business and Industry Committee. The UCCC bill will be introduced in the 1974 Montana legislature.

The program was designed to familiarize the legislators with the contents of the 145-page bill, Robert Sullivan, dean of the University of Montana law school, said.

The topics discussed included administration of the proposed law, credit abuses, rate ceilings and the need for enactment of such legislation, Sullivan said.

One of the speakers explained how the interest rates were computed and their potential effect, Sullivan added.

The UCCC was formulated in 1968 to meet increasing demands for legislation in the field of consumer credit. The UCCC was drafted by the National Conference of Commissioners on Uniform State Laws and has been introduced in all 50 states. Seven states have already adopted the code.

Sullivan said the drafting committee headed by Alfred Burger of Buffalo, N.Y., based the code on several premises in order to insure competitive pricing of money and credit:

- creditors should have relatively easy entry into the market to avoid monopoly.
- knowledgeable and sophisticated credit recipients should have to face few, if any, credit restrictions.
- less knowledgeable and sophisticated credit recipients should be protected.

Those who have questions about the proposed bill should contact Sullivan at the UM law school.

Benjamin Franklin signed the Declaration of Independence, the Constitution, the Treaty of Alliance with France and the Treaty of Peace with England.

VanDyck says Black Studies is invaluable to white students

The value of the Black Studies program at the University of Montana is that white students can gain a better understanding of how to deal with the racism and oppression of blacks in the United States, the Rev. David VanDyck said Thursday.

VanDyck, pastor for the United Campus Christian Fellowship, said that through Black Studies at UM "a lot of students have been able to apply this phenomenon of oppression of black people to their own interior lives and that they have found personal freedom and kinds of new directions and new life styles through it." He said he thinks Black Studies has been a valuable program at UM and should be retained.

He said he thinks all ethnic studies are important. Both Indian and black students benefit from the education they receive at UM, he said, "but the primary beneficiaries in the case of Black Studies are you know, the white students." He said he thinks Black Studies is an important part in the total university experience of any student.

VanDyck, a member of the board of directors of the Community for the Support of Black Studies at the University of Montana (CSBSUM), said the primary purpose of CSBSUM is to help Black Studies through its current financial funding problems. He said it is the responsibility of the University to maintain the funding of Black Studies at UM. CSBSUM, a non-profit corporation, takes donations from persons who want to help Black Studies at UM and uses the money collected to supplement the current funding inadequacies of Black Studies, he said.

VanDyck said he hopes CSBSUM will help to raise the question among both the faculty and students as to what the importance of ethnic studies is to UM. He said he thinks it is an important function of the University to introduce students to the history and current problems faced by ethnic minorities in dealing with the institutional biases minorities face in the United States.

Debate concerning union qualifications termed stall tactic

The Montana Public Employees Association (MPEA) believes the questioning of its qualifications as a valid labor organization is a "stalling tactic" by the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees.

Since both organizations are campaigning for representation by University of Montana clerical personnel, the MPEA believes the action is an attempt at "creating doubt in the employees' minds," Tom Synder, MPEA executive president, said yesterday.

Synder said because of the action the clerical staff may lose its confidence in the MPEA as a possible representative of the employees.

The cost for the hike is $3 and reservations can be made now at the Campus Recreation Office in WC 109.

Cast is complete for Behan play

CASTING has been completed for the drama department's production of The Hostage, to be presented Nov. 29 through Dec. 2.

The Hostage, a contemporary comedy written by Brendan Behan, is the story of a young English soldier held captive in an Irish brothel by the Irish Republican Army (IRA).

Dick Grady, senior in drama, and Peggy O'Connell, senior in drama, play the leading roles, the proprietors of the brothel who are living together under common law.

Leslie, the hostage, is played by Bill Tilton, freshman in drama. Marjorie Van Halteren, graduate in drama, is the girl who falls in love with him.

Other leading cast members include Arlynn Fishbaugh, senior in drama, Doug Marney, junior in drama, and Jim Russell, freshman in drama.

A senior in drama, Karen Hummel, will be designing the costumes. The play is directed by Alan Cook, associate professor of drama.

AP in brief

Secretary of State Henry Kissinger said in Peking last night that the United States is considering a treaty or some other formal guarantee to safeguard Israeli security if the Israelis withdraw from occupied Arab lands. U.N. truce-watchers moved into Israeli checkpoints on the Cairo-Suez road yesterday as they took the first practical steps toward carrying out the new Suez truce.

The Maryland Bar Assoc. filed a petition with the state's highest court yesterday which could lead to suspension or disbarment for former Vice President Spiro Agnew. The petition seeks a review of Agnew's status following his no-contest plea to income tax law violation charges in U.S. District Court Oct. 10.

House subcommittees yesterday approved a bill to regulate the surface mining of coal. The bill is similar to a measure already passed by the Senate. The House bill now goes to the full House Interior Committee, which will consider it Jan. 27.

The House of Representatives passed the Alaska pipeline bill by an overwhelming margin of 361-14 yesterday and sent it to the Senate, which is expected to approve it today. The House denied a motion that would have broadened the authority of government regulatory agencies.

A bill giving President Nixon emergency powers to deal with the energy crisis was approved by a Senate committee yesterday as Congress grappled with the problem of energy shortages. The emergency powers bill would give Nixon most of the authority he says he needs to handle the energy crisis, including the power to restrict fuel use, limit operating hours of commercial establishments and adjust schedules of airlines and other public carriers.

The head of the Environmental Protection Agency gave his support to a proposal to authorize temporary suspension of clean air standards for individual power plants and factories. Administrator Russell Train said such an amendment is necessary to cope with specific fuel emergencies.

Ford Motor Co.'s 28,000 skilled trades workers have rejected a tentative national contract by a 3-1 margin, sources close to the union said yesterday. They said the over-all vote, including that of maintenance and production workers, was very close and could go either way in subsequent voting.

Defense Department officials said yesterday former U.S. war prisoners have recovered "exceptionally well" from the physical and emotional effects of their captivity, with nearly 80 per cent of them back on duty.

The space agency has called off Thursday's planned launching of the Skylab 3 astronauts because of the discovery of new cracks in the Saturn 1B rocket. An updated launch time was not announced.

William Rentschler, who managed President Nixon's 1968 campaign in Illinois, was named yesterday in a federal indictment charging him with a $1 million fraud scheme involving banks and a New York City credit union. The indictment charged that Rentschler, who unsuccessfully tried for the 1960 and 1970 GOP nomination for U.S. Senator, fraudulently obtained loans from 27 banks and the Aetna Business Credit Inc., of New York.

McCloskey to speak at law conference

Rep. Paul McCloskey, R-Calif., will be the keynote speaker at the fifth annual law conference and ski program scheduled for Jan. 9-12 at Big Mountain ski area near Whitefish.

The program is sponsored by Continuing Legal Education in Montana (CLEM), a cooperative venture of the Montana Bar Association and the University of Montana Law School.

Wilford Lundberg, UM law professor and coordinator of the program, said the four-day conference will examine land use planning problems on the national, state and local levels.

"Land use planning has become a matter of growing concern to the entire nation and this conference is designed to acquaint practicing lawyers with recent developments in this area of the law. The practical implications upon attorneys engaged in land use litigation will be an integral part of the conference," Lundberg said last week.

Topics to be discussed include: national land use legislation; legal devices for planning and land use control; zoning as a tool in land use planning; local government and its role in effecting and enforcing land use control mechanisms, and a discussion of the problems faced by corporate developers.

Conference sessions will be conducted from 8 to 10 a.m. and 4:30 to 6:30 p.m. daily except Saturday, Jan. 12, when there will be only a morning session. The remaining time will be left open for skiing and recreational activities.

In addition to McCloskey, guest speakers include: Roger P. Hansen, executive director of the Rocky Mountain Center on the Environment; Marvin Daring, attorney and visiting lecturer on en-

Traffic Board grants parking permits

Certain food service and University Center personnel were granted special parking permits Friday by Traffic Board. A request for special permits for library workers was denied.

According to University of Montana vehicle regulations, special permits, or "D" decals, are issued to disabled students or University employees with "special parking problems." Vehicles with "D" decals may be parked in reserved spaces in University parking areas.

Traffic Board must approve requests by University departments and agencies for parking permits for employees.

Frellick said requests are considered for University employees who use their own automobiles for official University business and who are not reimbursed for the use of their cars.

Carson Vehrs, food service director, requested "D" stickers for eight food service employees.

Vehrs said the convenience of reserved parking is necessary in order for the food service to provide catering services and meals and snacks for dormitory groups.

Traffic Board unanimously approved the request.

Reserved parking for food service employees will be in the lot directly south of the Lodge.

Don Carlson, UC maintenance superintendent, requested permits for 10 employees, including food service workers, recreation department heads and technicians. He asked that the pit area east of the UC be reserved.

The request was passed unanimously.

The Board denied unanimously a request from Earle Thompson, library services director, that library staff working after 6 p.m. be allowed to park in the lot directly behind the building.

The Board also denied library personnel special parking next quarter in the lot next to the new library.

The special permits issued are valid until the beginning of the next academic year.

Traffic Board is composed of one faculty member, one staff member and one student. Members this year are chairman Mike Frellick, assistant director of admissions, William Patton, lecturer in business, and Clay Collier, senior in history and philosophy.

Auditors position may be available to UM personnel

If the University of Montana cannot find a new internal auditor from outside the University, it should look within the University system, according to Zana Powell, secretary at the business office.

She said, "It would be to our advantage to hire from within because the person would already be familiar with the internal workings of the University."

However, she said, before the University can hire from within, it must advertise to persons not presently working here. The reason, Powell said, was because the Department of Health, Education and Welfare checks to make sure that those most qualified get the job, rather than those who are merely available.

"If they then can't find anyone," she said, "I feel they should look around campus." Powell said there are quite a few qualified men and women presently working at the University who would make competent auditors.

Environmental law at the University of Washington School of Law; Richard Chapin, attorney and chairman of the Washington State Land Planning Commission; Richard F. Babcock, attorney; Donald G. Hagman, professor of law at the University of California, Los Angeles, and Charles R. Collins, president of Environmental Systems International, Inc.

The registration deadline is Dec. 15 and should be made through the UM School of Law, Missoula. The registration fee of $100 does not include lodging or lift tickets. Reservations for lodging should be made through Big Mountain Ski Resort by Dec. 15.

Lundberg said the conference is open to all practicing attorneys or interested lay persons on a "first registered and paid basis." Anyone desiring additional information may contact the UM Law School in Missoula.

Grizzlies close with a win

The Grizzlies ended a losing season on a winning note Saturday as they blanked Weber State 10-0.

Montana ended its losing streak of 14 road games to give themselves a 4-6 season record and a 2-4 conference record.

Saturday's game was basically a defensive battle. Neither team could score in the first half and only one field goal, kicked by Montana, was scored in the third.

Finally in the fourth quarter, Grizzly quarterback Van Troxel ran in the only touchdown scored in the game.

Weber gained 87 yards passing while Montana gained only 7 yards with their air attack. The ground game however, was a different story. The Grizzlies rushed for 307 yards compared to 160 yards rushing for Weber State.

The Grizzlies have beaten the Wildcats 9 of the last 12 times including the last 5 games in a row.

Grizzly Head Coach Jack Swarouth

said that although he is never happy with a losing season, he feels that his team performed well and retained a good attitude through a season plagued with budget and injury problems.

Swarthout said that the Montana team is losing 15 seniors this year but he feels there still remains a good nucleus for next year's team.

Swarthout said a few good recruits in key positions should round out a good squad for the Grizzlies next year.

Harriers relinquish conference crown

Boise State and Weber State tied for first place honors in taking the Big Sky cross country title from Montana at the Conference meet held Saturday on the UM golf course. UM finished fifth in the final team standings.

Boise State's Bob Walker crossed the finish line first and set a new record on the UM course with a time of 24:57.

Cross country coach, Harley Lewis said the poor Grizzly showing was due to a combination of injuries, mishaps and illness.

Lewis said losing one of his top runners, Doug Darko, because of a case of mononucleosis was the main cause of Montana's poor showing in the race.

Grizzly runner Scott Carvey received a deep spike wound in the ankle after he had covered only one half mile of the five mile course. He finished the race but he came in 40th.

Harold Horn also had unexpected troubles in the race. Someone stepped on his foot and his shoe came off. He ran back, picked up his shoe, untied it, put it on and reentered the race. Horn finished 38th.

Lewis said he thought his runners were too tense and tried too hard.

He added that because of lack of funds the Montana team did not travel to enough meets where they would receive quality competition which would prepare them for a championship meet.

Lewis said Montana has no seniors on the squad and with a little recruiting should have an exceptional team next year.

Lewis said track will continue indoors at UM but there will be no meets held in Missoula because Program Council has reserved the Field House every weekend for tentative, Program Council functions.

Montana will send some athletes to out of town meets according to Lewis.

Football tourney begins

The intramural football playoffs began in the Clover Bowl yesterday.

Yesterday's game scores were: Fups won 26-14 over the Uncouth Bastards, Sigma Chi beat Sigma Nu 14-8, The White Water Lillies rolled over the Blue Mountain Bush Apes 20-8, IVCF beat the Cunning Ringlits 12-8, SPE Nads were edged out by Ebony Omega 14-12 and SPE blanked SAE 7-0.

In the women's football tournament, The Kappa Killers beat the Mama Bears 14-8.

Today's games will start at 4 p.m., and the pairings will be Acorn's Marauders vs. Army ROTC, Hershey's Squirts vs. Fups, Sigma Chi vs. The White Water Lillies and The Varsity Virgins vs. Jekyl's.

PSU application to be discussed

Boise AP
Portland State University's application for membership in the Big Sky athletic conference will be considered next Monday and Tuesday at a conference meeting in Boise.

Commissioner John Rohing said the Portland State application will be brought up at a meeting of the presidents' council Tuesday.

Booters lose, maintain lead

The UM soccer team lost 2-0 to Idaho Saturday in Moscow, but maintains the top position in the Northwest Soccer League.

Montana bounced back on the two-goal effort of Tim Cochrane to beat Washington State 2-0 Sunday in Pullman.

Montana and Idaho have identical 4-2-1 league records, but UM holds down first place on the basis of having scored more goals than the Idaho team.

Player-coach Ralph Serrette said, "It is extremely difficult for a coach and the players to play against such tough teams as Idaho and Washington State when seven of 11 starting players are sidelined with injuries."

Intramurals

Today's volleyball schedule is:

7 p.m.
WC 1 Phi Delta Theta 1 vs. Sigma Chi
WC 2 Phi Delta Theta 11 vs. Teen Angels
FH 1 Mama Bears vs. Alpha Phi

8 p.m.

WC 2 SPE Nads vs. Theta Chi
FH 1 Mother Fups vs. Craig Crew

Spikers capture fourth

The University of Montana women's volleyball team captured fourth place in a six team tournament at Washington State University in Pullman Friday and Saturday.

Montana defeated Central Washington State College of Ellensburg 16-14, 15-13, and Spokane Falls Community College 15-0, 15-4. UM's losses came at the hands of tournament winner Eastern Washington State College of Cheney, Eastern Oregon College of LaGrande, and Washington State University of Pullman.

Next weekend, the UM team travels to Bellingham, Wash., for an invitational meet hosted by Western Washington State University.

Montana, while playing all its matches on the road this season, has a record of 7 wins, 11 losses and 3 ties.

Correction

There will be a men's racquetball tournament December 23, not basketball tournament as reported in the Montana Kairin Friday.

Recreation

A seminar on fly tying and fly fishing will be given tomorrow night in WC 203 at 7 p.m.

Jim Handley, a professional fly tier will be the speaker.

Keith Glaes, assistant to the director of campus recreation said Handley will be offering a fly tying course in the University Center during Winter Quarter.

High school students meet to simulate United Nations

About 300 Montana high school students arrived on campus yesterday to participate in the ninth annual Montana Model United Nations Conference (MMUN).

During the three-day meet, to be held in the University Center Ballroom and Montana rooms, delegates will simulate United Nations operations. Each of the 16 high schools attending the conference has been assigned to represent one or more countries.

During the meeting delegates will debate current world problems, conference coordinator Kathleen Sullivan, junior in journalism, said. She added that at one point during the meeting MMUN sponsors would declare a world crisis, for which the delegates would have to propose solutions.

The conference is being sponsored by University students who are members of the MMUN coordinating group. This group will judge each national delegation and select the top 10 delegations attending the conference.

The delegates are scheduled to debate whether to admit North and South Korea to the MMUN Security Council and possible resolutions to the conflict in the Middle East, as well as other issues.

All meetings during the conference are open to the public without charge. The MMUN General Assembly will meet tonight from 7 until 10 and tomorrow from 8 a.m. until noon in the UC Ballroom. Committee sessions will be held all day today in the UC Montana rooms.

Program Council sets dance festival

A folk dance festival, featuring authentic dances and costumes from five nations, will be held Wednesday in the Copper Commons from 7:30 to 9 p.m.

Bob Speare, Program Council social recreation coordinator, said yesterday the dance exhibition will include Greek, Bulgarian, Israeli, Norwegian and Scottish dances. The Scottish dancers will perform to the music of local Scottish pipers.

Speare said there will be no admission charge.

Fabric sculptures displayed in UC

Three-dimensional fabric sculptures by Nancy Erickson, a Missoula artist and University of Montana graduate, are on display through Nov. 21 in the University Center Art Gallery. The display began Monday.

Erickson, who received her M.A. in painting at UM in 1968, has experimented with fabrics and related media during the past five years. According to gallery information, Erickson has exhibited oil paintings, water colors, prints, drawings and fabric sculptures throughout the country.

Leroy Berven, gallery publicity director, said a fabric sculpture uses different fabric materials to make a specific design statement.

Berven said some of Erickson's works are environmental pieces that attempt to convey her interpretation of herbicidal defoliation in Vietnam.

The gallery is located in the University Center Lounge and is open to the public at no charge from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. and 7 to 9 p.m. Monday through Friday and 7 to 9 p.m. Sundays.

The "One-Two" of Diamond Buying

When selecting a special diamond, why not follow the example of the cognoscente? First the gem, then the mounting! This way, your ring reflects your own personality, and you have the added confidence of choosing your diamond under ideal conditions. An unmounted diamond cannot hide minute flaws or variances in cutting quality that affect value. In our store, you also have the educated guidance of a jeweler whose knowledge is proven by membership in the American Gem Society. Come in soon and enjoy this special service.
