Montana's Cub football team will be out to avenge a 28-7 loss to Montana State's frosh last weekend when they meet the Boise State Colts in Grangeville, Ida. Saturday evening.

Boise State is 1-1 on the season, defeating the Eastern Oregon JV's, 48-0, and losing to the University of Idaho Vandals in Moscow. Montana is 0-1.

Cub coach Reid Miller said Boise State is what he termed "loaded." "Several of the Colts compete in non-conference varsity games and have a lot more experience than we do." A Big Sky ruling last spring allowed Boise State and Northern Arizona, new conference members, to play freshmen in non-conference games in 1970. Next year, the two schools will not have freshmen competing on varsity football or basketball squads.

Miller said the team is more confident going into the Boise State game. "Against Montana State we weren't sure of ourselves and we have worked on our weak points. We know Boise State is talented, but so are we."

Miller said the game will be at 7:30 p.m. PDT in Grangeville. The Montana coach said Dave Manovich and Butch Allinger will definitely be out for Saturday's game and may be the remainder of the season.

He said quarterback Jay Baumberger and backs Jim Olson, Ken Read and Jerry Cooley ran well against Montana State and have looked good in practice this week. "It takes a while to adjust to the Texas option and I think they are picking it up better now."

The Cubs have a return date with the Bobkittens in Missoula on Friday, Oct. 30 at Dornblaser Stadium.

Miller plans to start (offense) Rob Stark, tight end; Dick Stuart or Bryant Loving, split receiver; Ben Surwill and Doug Cleveland, tackles; Keith Lindstrom and Mike Simmons, guards; Doug Brager, center; Jay Baumberger, quarterback; Jerry Cooley, fullback; Ken Read and Jim Olson, halfbacks.

Defensively, Miller will go with Doug Nakoa and Steve Taylor, ends; Doug Cleveland and Rick Anderson, tackles; Kit Blue, Dennis Doyle and Mark Bullock, linebackers and John Stark, Dan Bain, Kevin Flagler and Bryant Loving or Bill Lefler, defensive backs.
