Philosophy 252/History of Modern Philosophy

Spring 2001

Professor Deborah Slicer

L.A. 148/ 243-2527/ O.H.: M.W. 2:10-3, and by appointment

Philosophy 252 covers philosophical figures and movements from roughly the 16th century through the 18th century. We give special attention to debates in metaphysics and epistemology and somewhat less attention to politics, ethics, and religion. I have three primary goals in this course. First, I want to provide you with an historical context for the philosophical debates that characterize the modern period. Second, I want you to appreciate how the modern period significantly shaped the contemporary Euro-American worldview. And, third, you will learn to closely read and to thoughtfully critique philosophical arguments.

Please be advised of the following: (1) I don't accept late papers, unless attached to a doctor's excuse. (2) I consider group efforts plagiarism, unless I've specified the project a group one, e.g., the presentation debate. Please see me if you have any questions about plagiarism. (3) Class starts at 3:40 and ends at 5:00. Please come on time and don't leave early, unless you've notified me of some special need. Thanks. Let's be considerate of each other.
