MONTANA ACADEMY OF SCIENCES SATURDAY SECTION MEETINGS ARE OPEN TO PUBLIC

The 41st annual meeting of the Montana Academy of Sciences, scheduled in Missoula Friday and Saturday, April 3 and 4, includes section programs in nine categories that are open to the public.

Section programs are slated Saturday in the Liberal Arts Building at the University of Montana in the following categories: biological sciences, earth sciences, energy resources, mathematics and statistics, microbiology, physical sciences I and II, social sciences, and teaching of sciences and mathematics.

Friday events will focus on a public symposium on "Montana's Water Future: Decade of the '80s," which will be in session throughout the day and evening at the Village Red Lion Motor Inn and the University Center on the UM campus. The symposium is sponsored by the UM, the academy, and the Montana Water Resources Research Center.

Information about the academy meeting and the symposium may be obtained by calling the following UM faculty members: Dr. Len Porter, academy president, 243-6223; Dr. John Taylor, academy executive secretary, 243-2975; or Dr. Arnold Silverman, Montana Water Resources Research Center representative, 243-5151.
