INFLATION AND REAGAN ECONOMICS ANALYZED AT UM SUMMER SESSION

MISSOULA--

Inflation and Reagan economics will be analyzed in two courses included in the summer offerings of the University of Montana economics department: "Introduction to Economic Theory II" and "Money and Banking." The courses, each carrying three credits, will be given the first session, June 22-July 17.

The courses, designed for social science teachers, the business community and the general public, will critically analyze the problem of inflation and the many cures offered. In the process, the inner workings of the national economy will be described.

The series of courses offered, or part of it, is required by most of the University's professional schools and many of its departments. For instance, the "Introduction to Economic Theory" series satisfies the economics requirements of the Schools of Business Administration, Pharmacy and Allied Health Sciences, and Forestry.

Summer session bulletins may be obtained from the Summer Programs Office, 125 Main Hall, University of Montana, Missoula, MT 59812: (406) 243-2900. The bulletin contains all necessary application forms.

Former UM students should contact the Office of Admissions, (406) 243-6266, for information about re-application.
