UM SCHOOL OF EDUCATION OFFERS BROAD RANGE OF SUMMER COURSES

MISSOULA--

To coincide with the state conference of the School Administrators of Montana, scheduled June 25 and 26 in Missoula, the University of Montana will present a two-day course titled "Professional Education: Purpose and Value," the theme of a full schedule of summer offerings by the UM School of Education.

The two-day course for school administrators and other educators will cover aspects of this theme from the viewpoints of curriculum and teaching, administrative theory, and the practical concerns and goals of the schools in the 1980s.

The speakers include Elliott W. Eisner, professor of education and art at Stanford University and past president of the National Art Education Association; Lawrence Iannaccone, professor of education at the University of California, Santa Barbara; and L. E. "Bud" Scarr, superintendent of Lake Washington School District near Seattle, Wash.

The UM summer program in education also includes a course on "Chronic Stress and Health," to be given June 22-July 17 by Carl Thoresen, professor of education and psychology at Stanford University.

Thoresen is currently collaborating with cardiologist Meyer Friedman, who originated the Type A Behavior Pattern concept, on a five-year clinical experiment with 900 men and women in the San Francisco Bay Area who have had heart attacks.

He is also principal investigator on a National Institutes of Health Study concerned with chronic stress and sleeping problems. In July he will begin a research project on chronic stress in children and adults, which will be supported by a grant from the John and Catherine MacArthur Foundation.

Thoresen has written several books and more than 50 articles in the fields of guidance and psychology. He serves on the editorial boards of four periodicals.

Summer-session bulletins containing information and necessary application forms may be obtained from the Summer Programs Office, 125 Main Hall, University of Montana, Missoula, MT 59812; telephone (406) 243-2900.

Former UM students interested in attending the summer session should contact the Office of Admissions, (406) 243-6266.
