CUTLINE FOR PHOTO OF MEN AND WOMAN ON EXERCISE MACHINE

MEASURING STRENGTH-- Lonie Stimac, center, a junior in home economics at the University of Montana from Great Falls, exercises her leg in the UM Physical Therapy Program's orthotron exercise unit and measures the progress of rebuilding strength in the leg. Vince Wilson, left, professor of physical therapy, and Larry Ohman, her therapists, monitor her progress. Stimac had been referred by a physician to receive physical therapy treatments from the UM program. Wilson will retire after 38 years at UM in June. Ohman, a senior in physical therapy from Anaconda, recently was awarded by UM Physical Therapy Student Association's outstanding service award.
