Capitalism and Democracy in the Americas

Instructor: Professor Paul Haber 243-4862  haber@selway.umt.edu
Political Science Department, course #595
Autumn 2001
Meets Tuesday 11:40 – 2:00
Office Hours: LA 355  TR 2:10 – 3:30

Overview: This graduate seminar critically examines the politics of capitalism and democracy in the United States and Latin America from a variety of perspectives.

Course Expectations and Assignments: The success of this seminar depends on members' careful attention to the readings and active participation in weekly discussions. The format of the class discussion will vary and is amenable to changes and experimentation over the course of the semester. We will hold a preliminary discussion of format and expectations on the first day of class. All students will be required to hand in written work although the specific requirements will vary from student to student depending on individual student needs. For example, a student at work on a thesis project might want to propose the writing of a chapter. Students who are required to write a series of substantive papers as part of the requirements for graduation might want to submit such a paper. Other students might prefer to write a series of five page long critical essays on the readings.

All students will submit to me a typed proposal for writing requirements no later than February 13th. Each student is also responsible for discussing the proposal with me (at the same time you bring it to my office is fine).

There are two primary goals of this class. First, to introduce students to one of the most important political questions of today: the relationship between capitalism and democracy. We ground our conceptual deliberations of this relational concept in the history and current affairs of the United States and Latin America. The second goal of the class is for each student to make substantial progress in their ability to think critically about complex political questions, in both written and oral forms.

Since class participation is so important in this class, and because the class meets only once a week, students should make every effort to attend class and to arrive on time. If you miss a class, please write me a note telling me why you missed, and hand it in the day of your return. If you are late, make sure that you let me know at the end of class so that I will not mark you absent.

The following books are available at the bookstore. Some of the books are also in the Mansfield library. If people are going to plan on using some of the library copies, perhaps we should figure out a share system.

Schedule of Class Meetings and Reading Assignments: Please remember that the reading assignments listed here are subject to change and new items may be added as our discussions evolve over the course of the semester. Thus, it is imperative that you check with a class participant if you miss class to be sure you will be on target for the next class.
