Course Description

This course introduces students to the issue of ethics and government. It is suggested that every public servant has a moral obligation to strive for excellence in the performance of their public duties. The question is, should this moral obligation also involve ones personal life? This course focuses on developing an understanding of ethics and applying that understanding to work-life situations. The course introduces the concepts of ethics and morals; integrity; compromise; ethical citizenship and civic virtue. All of these concepts are essential when discussing the ethical challenges in public service. This course provides a basis for developing an understanding and applying the theories of ethics to the role of a public administrator.

Course Objectives

1. To acquire substantive knowledge and understanding of the theories of ethics, compromise, and integrity and their importance to the field of public administration.
2. To develop the ability to recognize and apply this understanding to relevant issues and situations facing public managers in their daily operations.

Required Texts

- 1) The Ethics Challenge In Public Service, Carol W. Lewis and Stewart C. Gilman, Jossey-Bass, Second Edition, ISBN 0-7879-6756-4
- 2) Splitting the Difference: Compromise and Integrity in Ethics and Politics, Martin Benjamin, University Press of Kansas, ISBN 0-7006-0455-3

Course Requirements

This course requires active student participation. This is an upper level course and assignments and discussion should reflect an upper level of thought and effort. Students are required to read all assigned readings, be prepared to discuss them in class, take three (3) exams, and submit two (2) writing assignments. Each exam is worth 100 points and the writing assignments 50 points each. The two (2) writing assignments are short writing assignments and are to be two-to-three pages in length, double-spaced. Place your name in the upper left hand corner of the paper. Assignments will be assessed (graded) based on your presentation of your knowledge and understanding of the concepts being presented. This includes your ability to interpret, comprehend, analyze, apply and explain these concepts.

A = 372-400 points	B- = 320-331	D+ = 268-279
A- = 360-371	C+ = 308-319	D = 252-267
B+ = 348-359	C = 292-307	D- = 240-251
B = 332-347	C- = 280-291	F = 0-239

Sources for Writing Assignments: The availability of potential sources for student use in developing writing assignments will be discussed in class. Students are encouraged to utilize sources provided in and through the Mansfield Library.

Special Assignment for Graduate Students: Graduate students are required to complete a graduate increment. This will be arranged with the instructor.

PSC 400: Students enrolled in this optional one-credit, co-requisite course will write a ten page essay on a course-related topic approved by the instructor. Students may rewrite the essay and submit it for a new grade. The important facets of writing must be discussed with the instructor prior to writing the essay (style, organization, sources, and method of citation and documentation). The essay is worth 100 points and will be graded based upon content (clarity and validity of argument) and writing (grammar, diction, syntax, and logical development).
