Montana Kaimin, February 5, 1980

Associated Students of the University of Montana
Student opinion mixed on registration, draft

By MARK ELLSWORTH
Montana Kaimin Reporter

One of the facts of the early '70s -- the draft -- is back in style again.

President Garett is supposed to announce his decision on whether to resume registration for the draft by Feb. 9, and although registration is a long way from an actual draft, it's a step in that direction and the subject is on the minds of draft-age University of Montana students.

Sheri Spurigh, 21, is a junior in business finance and is opposed to the idea of the draft. "We can't get equal jobs or equal pay," Spurigh said, "so why should we be treated equally under the draft?"

She also said that protecting U.S. oil interests in the Persian Gulf is a "stupid idea to fight for."

Leanne Lunde, a junior in general studies, agrees. "I wouldn't want to go over there and fight for oil just so some other rich Houston folks can drive around in their Cadillacs," Lunde said.

But she supports the idea of registering.

"We should have always had one registration," she said. "Then we would have been stronger. The Russians know we're not threat to them now."

"I think we should base our military system on one like Israel's, where everyone has to serve for two years. It would teach people a sense of discipline that they could use."

Freshman English major Bill Miller, 22, said he doesn't like the idea of being drafted, but said he would go to war if necessary.

"I have no qualms about registering," Miller said. "If we can't protect this country, where is the use of going to college?"

As for his opinion on drafting women, Miller said he isn't sure.

"I don't know -- I'm not a woman," he explained. "But it seems that the military has done adequately before without women."

Bob McCue, a junior in economics and sociology, said he can't identify with a woman in uniform.

"You can be sure I'm not going to be on the front line supporting it," McCue, 23, said, referring to the idea of drafting women.

As far as registering himself, McCue said he isn't excited about the idea, but is a "law-abiding citizen" and would register.

Terry Messman, senior in journalism, said he is "totally opposed" to the registration of either men or women.

"Registration is an infringement on everyone's constitutional rights," Messman, 27, said. "It will inevitably lead to another draft."

Messman said if he were drafted, he would "go under­ground or go to jail" rather than go to war.

"Either would be preferable to murdering people," Messman said.

"I think were going to need registration," he said. "The army is not meeting our quota. We wouldn't know where to start in case of a national emergency."
Something to support

At last long, some things to support:

The University of Montana's Student Health Service is asking for a slight increase in health service fees to cover increasing medical costs. The increase would only be $2.50 a quarter, boosting Health Service fees to $15 per school year. If the increase is not approved by the students, the Health Service will be forced to cut some health services.

The first to go probably would be weekend and overnight service, thus eliminating inpatient, overnight stays. A cut like that would be no bargain, especially with the cost of a hospital room hovering at more than $100 a day.

The additional $2.50 would be a good investment. Students concerned with the quality of the Health Service should not hesitate to support the fee increase.

And Day Care, not exactly thrilled about its rent bill, is thinking of moving.

Day Care should not be forced to move. Many students with children don't have transportation, and simply can't use the various ASUM Day Care houses scattered throughout Missoula.

Among the options being considered to ease the burden on Day Care is a "trade-off" in funds between the administration and ASUM.

ASUM currently funds 12 student groups whose activities also allow students to receive academic credit—programs such as the Montana Masons, the Debate and Oratory team and the Wilderness Institute.

If the administration covered all the expenses for those groups, which it could do, ASUM would be able to shoulder all Day Care expenses, including the rent.

The "trade-off" is a possibility that should be seriously considered.

And not offered for your support, just for consideration:

When students meeting with UM President Richard Bowers asked him to take a stand on the strike against the Montana University System, Bowers said he could not do so.

"You're talking to management," he said.

"I'm speaking to you as a person," one of the students replied.

And Bowers said, "You can't speak to me as a person. I'm the president of this university."

Mike McNally

letters

Still delightful

Editor: From 500 miles away, the Kaimin remains as delightful as a telescope as one plots a course and watches the sickeningly bright star. It is true that many ads have sexual undertones, but Key's presentation was a farce.

His method of attack was to find a phallic image in every ad, even if it meant turning it upside down and using a magnifying glass. In his own time, he looks as if he was after a curved mirror in his quest to uncover genital shapes. His tactics to impress the audience were repetitive and transparent, never again and again. "This ad is worth millions."

In the plied places of a Howard Johnson's crab dinner, a man and a woman having a sexual affair. Any image, smut or not, could have been suggested, but Key's presentation was a farce.

And Key's lecture attacking advertising was as irresponsible as an angry child, and equally believable.

Tim Springer

108 W. Broadway

New vocabulary needed

Editor: "Why don't you kiss my ass" is a frequent expression. It makes me wonder how many more such vulgarities remain unbeknownst to the public at large.

Janice Brown

Letters editor
Track

The University of Montana men's and women's track teams competed in the non-scored Mountain States Invitational Saturday against Big Sky Conference, Western Athletic Conference and several other schools.

Individual placers for the men's teams were: Tim Fox, second in the 60-yard high hurdles, 7.49; Guy Rogers, fifth, 600-yard run, 1:13.19; Tom Raunig, fourth, three-mile run, 4:12.77; Brad Sheldon, eighth, 1,000-yard run, 2:17.72; Larry Weber, second, 1,000-yard run, 2:12.16; Billy Johnson, fifth, triple jump, 46-9s.

Those placing for the women's team were: Linda Becker, third, mile, 5:26.05; Debbie Sager, fourth, pentahalon, 2,978 points; Louise Bruce, fourth, three-mile run, 19:25.11; Jill Warner, fifth, 1,000-yard run, 2:30.73.

Wrestling

The University of Montana women's tennis team opened the season over the weekend at the Great Falls Invitational Tournament and was "very successful," according to UM Coach Paul Larsen. The Grizzlies had two women in the finals of the tournament, which was open to all women tennis players in the state. The two UM finalists, Brittie Glaser and Diane Wortman, both defeated top-seeded players on their way to the championship round.

Glaser beat Wortman for the championship, 6-1, 6-1. Earlier, Glaser, a sophomore transfer student from Oslo, Norway, defeated first-seeded Marsha McCarthey from Great Falls, 6-3, 6-0, 6-2. Meanwhile, Wortman beat second-seeded Delise Albrecht from Great Falls, 6-4, 6-4.

In the doubles competition, Glaser and UM partner Cathy McDonell took second place, losing to McCafferty and Albright, 7-6, 6-2.

Men's basketball

Defense was the name of the game as the University of Montana defeated the University of Nevada-Reno and Northern Arizona University last week.

Thursday, the Grizzlies mounted a strong defensive stand against UNR in the last few minutes of the game to defeat the Wolf Pack 56-55 on a free throw by Tim Knight with one second remaining.

Saturday, UM turned back NAU, 66-56, outscoring the Wolves 38-28 in the first half.

Wrestling

The University of Montana wrestling team returned from PacWest Conference in Los Angeles, Calif., with two conference wins and two losses over the weekend, making its record 4-5-1 for the year.

Against Idaho State University Friday, the Grizzlies scored a 38-15 win. However, the next night, UM lost to both Weber State College, 28-12, and Boise State University, 30-13, while registering a 25-6 win over Northern Arizona University in a triangular meet.

Heavyweight Myke Miller led the grapplers with three wins and one tie. Those placing for the men's team were: Mike Miller, second, 142-pound Brad Benn, 158-pound Kelly Morton, 177-pound Neil Freitas and Scott Morton, a 190-pounder.

Women's basketball

The University of Montana women's basketball team went on the road last weekend to play the league's two best teams, the University of Oregon and Oregon State University, and came home with two lopsided losses.

On Thursday, Oregon beat the Grizzlies 75-51, as last year's conference champions pulled out an easy lead and coasted to the win. UM's leading scorer, Jill Greenfield, missed the contest with the flu.

Saturday's game against Oregon State was much the same as UM fell behind early and was unable to catch up, losing 82-62.

The Grizzlies' record is now 4-4 in conference play, while Oregon is 9-6 and Oregon State is 6-6.

UM's next game is tomorrow night at home against Rocky Mountain College. The contest will start at 7:30 p.m.
It's a wild, hilarious $200,000,000 scavenger hunt.

He was a poor black sharecropper's son who never dreamed he was A HOME!

THE BEST AMERICAN MOVIE OF THE YEAR!

Chinese crack down on free expression

PEKING (AP) — Senior Deputy Prime Minister Deng Xiaoping has called for a crackdown on freedom of expression and urged a tightening of party discipline in China. Chinese and diplomatic sources said recently. One diplomat called it "turning the screws" on intellectuals who do not toe the line. The sources, who requested they not be identified, said Deng delivered the major policy speech two weeks ago in Peking before 10,000 Communist Party officials.

In the speech, Deng urged that China's "big four" freedoms — to speak out freely, air views fully, hold debates and write wall posters, be abolished, the sources said.

He also said China's 36 million-member Communist Party had become cumbersome, inefficient and undisciplined. Its members should obey party rules, be well-trained and retire when they get too old, the sources quoted Deng as saying. Deng is 75.

The speech was not reported in the official press but its contents have gradually become known. Several Chinese sources said they heard a tape recording of it and that Deng was applauded several times.

Since Deng reportedly delivered the speech, the official press has run a series of commentaries stressing the importance of unity and stability as China works toward becoming a modern industrial nation by the turn of the century. "Socialist democracy" was upheld, while "bourgeois democracy," "unrestricted freedom and individualism," was denounced.

The speech appeared to rule out any return to China's recent period of free-wheeling open discussions, the sources said. One diplomat called the current atmosphere "frosty" and compared it to the 1967-1968 anti-rightist campaign that followed a brief period of free expression known by the slogan "Let a Hundred Flowers Bloom."

Free speech and putting up wall posters are something guaranteed in China's constitution. However, authorities in December closed the year-old "Democracy Wall" on Peking's main street and said posters could be hung only at another site in a small park. China's tiny group of activists has dubbed the new wall "Bureaucracy Wall" because persons wishing to put up posters must first register with authorities.

Scholarships

Kappa Kappa Gamma Rehabilitation Scholarships, undergraduate—$500 to $1,000. Graduate—$1,000 to $2,000. Contact: Speech Department. Write: Dr. Martha Barron, Speech Pathology Services, Institute of Rehabilitation Medicine, 400 East 34th St., New York, New York 10016. Deadline: Feb. 15, 1980.

As one of our living writers puts it—the tyrant is nothing but a slave turned inside out.
—Herbert Spencer

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Friday, February 5, 1980

THE BEST AMERICAN MOVIE OF THE YEAR!

WOODY ALLEN DIANE KEATON
MICHAELE MURPHY MARIEL HEMINGWAY
MERYL STREEPER ANNE BYRNE

THE BEST AMERICAN MOVIE OF THE YEAR!

MANHATTAN

TUES, through SAT.
SHOWS 7:00 & 9:15

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Friday, February 5, 1980

THE BEST AMERICAN MOVIE OF THE YEAR!

WOODY ALLEN DIANE KEATON
MICHAELE MURPHY MARIEL HEMINGWAY
MERYL STREEPER ANNE BYRNE

THE BEST AMERICAN MOVIE OF THE YEAR!

MANHATTAN

TUES, through SAT.
SHOWS 7:00 & 9:15

DOONESBURY by Garry Trudeau

Friday, February 5, 1980

THE BEST AMERICAN MOVIE OF THE YEAR!

WOODY ALLEN DIANE KEATON
MICHAELE MURPHY MARIEL HEMINGWAY
MERYL STREEPER ANNE BYRNE

THE BEST AMERICAN MOVIE OF THE YEAR!

MANHATTAN

TUES, through SAT.
SHOWS 7:00 & 9:15
Doc Watson cures Missoula blues

By STEPHANIE DAVIS

At last, a cure for the blues. After a two-hour dose of Doc Watson and the boys, many Missoulians were ready to run the Benton-Banana Marathon. Or at least sprint up Mount Sentinel. And they were also convinced that Doc Watson really is the gig promised; "good for what ails you."

The Thursday night sell-out concert in the University Center Ballroom was nothing short of wonderful, although there were a few sound and lighting problems. (By the way, I sure would like to get ahead of whatever the lighting crew was on. That combination of green and purple for spotlights was something else.)

Anyway, Doc and his son Merle and their band Missoulienne a real treat with clean, hot licks and a wide variety of tunes. Their blues tunes, particularly "Spike Driver Blues" and "Gittin' on Top of the World" had every foot in the house tapping.

Doc grew just about every style of music from his wide musical experiences into the pot, from the lovely unaccompanied Appalachian ballad, "Pretty Santa," to a medley of '50s rock and roll tunes, "Cold, Frosty Morning." Anyway, Doc and his son Merle have played with Doc and Merle for seven years, tastefully and always without upstaging the band. And, since good bass players are rare, unsung heroines, and poor bass players are numerous, obnoxious ego-manics, Colemon deserves respect and credit.

The other band member, Marty Stuart, rounded out the sound with the voice of the century. His flat-picking, finger picking and slide guitar licks were worth the ticket price alone. His clawhammer banjo playing was evenly twice, he said. Doc sounded and acted just like he was leaving on the back two legs of a straight-back chair, pickin' his guitar on the porch of his Deep Gap, N.C., home. Doc is Real Folk and it shows, from his soft-speaking, to his to his guttural, no-scroll hands.

Bassist T. Michael Coleman, who has played with Doc and Merle for six months, performed Saturday, Feb. 9, at 8 p.m. in the Wilma Theatre. The Texan Opera Theater will also be performing "The Barber of Seville" Friday, Feb. 8, at 8 p.m., at the Wilma.

Midwinter Sale

Up To 40% Off on ALL CROSS COUNTRY SKIS & BOOTS

POLES, BINDINGS

UP TO .......... 30% Off

Alfa, Bonna, Fischer, Dynastar, Fels, Astrups, Excel, Liljedal

WINTER CLOTHING 40% Off

Monday Broccoli Quiche

Tuesday Baked Vegetable Casserole

Wednesday Egg Plant Parmesan

Thursday Spinach Crepes

Friday Stuffed Cabbage Rolls

$1.35 Each

Includes vegetable du jour

Served From 11:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m.

UC Foodservice University Center

Introducing Copper Commons Vegetarian Specials

Monday

- Broccoli Quiche

- Baked Vegetable Casserole

Wednesday

- Egg Plant Parmesan

Thursday

- Spinach Crepes

Friday

- Stuffed Cabbage Rolls

$1.35 Each

Includes vegetable du jour
If you think you don’t like opera . . . THINK TWICE!

THE BARBER OF SEVILLE
Friday, February 8

MADAME BUTTERFLY
Saturday, February 9

University Center
ph. 543-7212 or 549-9417
1106 W. Broadway
Hours: Mon.-Fri., 5 p.m.-Sun., Noon-Midnight
Sun., Noon-11 p.m.

Lasagne special
2.95
with salad
GARLIC TOAST
Ph. 543-7212 or 549-9417
1106 W. Broadway
Hours: Mon.-Fri., 5 p.m.-Sun., Noon-Midnight
Sun., Noon-11 p.m.

Happy Hour
9-11 p.m.
Drinks 2-for-1
Every Tuesday
145 W. Front

Open Mic Night
9-2 a.m.
Wednesday
145 W. Front

and So Goes the Saga
of the Falling Pins:

Varsity:
Kent Taylor 201 game
Scott Brocaw 221 game
Debbie Lieb 572 series
Colleen Barcus 650 series

League:
Lynn Grant (Spangers) 462 series
Rick Larson (Open Sores) 181 game

SPECIAL OF THE DAY
Pool — $1.00 an hour
Until 4

classifieds

MANN THEATRE GROUP
Activities Tickets Available at — U-M CREDIT UNION . . . Good for Admission Thru June 25, 1980

YOUTH MUSICALS

PERSONNEL

18-40. I believe in one thing only, the power of the human will.
—Joseph Stalin

Happy Hour
9-11 p.m.
Drinks 2-for-1
Every Tuesday
145 W. Front

SPECIAL OF THE DAY
Pool — $1.00 an hour
Until 4

I believe in one thing only, the power of the human will.
—Joseph Stalin

There’s a new area for Law School books — No need to search the store or the UC for your materials! Come to the Old Supply Dept. office in the Bookstore.

C Bookstore
Hrs. — Monday-Friday, 6 a.m.-5:30 p.m.
Man freed after spending nearly 10 years in prison for fatal 1970 anti-war bombing

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — Karleton Armstrong, who spent most of the past decade behind bars for a deadly stabbing in 1970, left a free man Thursday.

Arrested in 1970, he was on trial for the murder of his college roommate when he was shot by a fellow student. Armstrong was acquitted of murder and was convicted only of second-degree murder. He was sentenced to life in prison.

In 1980, he was released on parole after serving 10 years. However, he was rearrested in 1981 and was charged with violating parole.

He was rearrested again in 1982 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole.

He was released again in 1984 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 1985 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 1986 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 1987 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 1988 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 1989 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 1990 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 1991 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 1992 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 1993 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 1994 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 1995 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 1996 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 1997 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 1998 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 1999 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2000 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2001 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2002 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2003 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2004 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2005 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2006 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2007 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2008 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2009 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2010 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2011 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2012 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2013 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2014 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2015 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2016 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2017 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2018 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2019 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2020 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2021 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2022 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2023 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2024 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2025 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2026 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2027 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2028 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2029 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2030 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2031 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2032 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2033 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2034 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2035 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2036 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2037 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2038 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2039 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2040 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2041 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2042 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2043 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2044 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2045 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2046 after serving two years.

He was arrested again in 2047 and was charged with violating parole again. He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again.

He was released again in 2048 after serving two years. However, he was rearrested again in 2049 and was charged with violating parole again.

He was sentenced to life in prison for violating parole again. He was released again in 2050 after serving two years.
Weather or not

The doc and I had just returned from the annual ground hog watch and were beat. Outside the skies remained just lethargic enough to keep the air stagnation advisory in effect. There would be variable cloudiness through, Wednesday, highs in the lower 30s and a low of 20.

Tempest flourished his kerchief and emptied the glossy bulb that supported his bifocals. "Looks like the same thing that's going to give us an early spring gave me a runny nose," he said.

I knew the doc meant. The rodent surfaced just before noon and because of the air pollution, he hadn't seen his shadow. I guess all clouds do have a silver lining after all.

Funding . . .

- Cont. from p. 1.
- funded, formula or not. Bowers said, "The most important thing is the level of funding of the system. We feel we are underfunded."

Commissioner of Higher Education John Richardson said that "a new formula alone won't solve the funding problems of the Montana University System."

"The basic problem is that the university system is significantly underfunded for the instructional, research and public service functions it is expected to perform."

Richardson cited a study which shows Montana ranked 44th among the 50 states in 1978-79 in appropriations to higher education per FTE student, and said that to move Montana to the national average would require an additional $15 million a year.

Richardson continued, "Unless the Legislature is prepared to significantly increase the resources provided higher education in our state, it is relatively immaterial what type of formula you use; the end result will be the same—an underfunded system."

Dennis O'Donnell, associate professor of economics representing UM faculty, said the Legislature should ensure that any formula agreed upon is "funded at the appropriate level and that the level accounts for inflation."

Several other speakers mentioned that a new formula should allow for the "issuance of an extraordinary permit" if the shipper applies to the City Council and provides information as to the type and quantity of radioactive material or waste, the proposed date and time of shipment, starting point, scheduled route, destination and "any other information required by the council."

The council would then hold a public hearing on the request and grant the permit if the shipper is "of a non-recurring nature," if the shipment is in the public interest and does not violate public policy, and if the transportation of the material does not threaten the health and safety of Missoula citizens.

Boggs stressed that the ordinance addresses only the "health and safety aspect" of transporting nuclear material. It is not a "moral statement" on nuclear power in general, he said.

"If we were interested in making a moral point as a comment, we would have to be much more conservation-oriented than we are now," he said. "Until we make a serious effort to cut down our energy use, it would be hypocritical in the extreme to condemn nuclear power."

Bowers also said that recently published Department of Transportation regulations concerning the transportation of nuclear waste "changes the legal situation very little."

The new DOT regulations would, in effect, prohibit local governments from regulating the transportation of nuclear material through their communities. Assistant City Attorney Mae Nan Ellingson said yesterday, she had previously said Missoula's ban would probably be challenged in court, and the suit would likely be based on the contention that federal laws would preempt local bans.

However, Boggs said the proposed DOT regulations would not go into effect until November, and until then "they have no regulations" that would pre-empt the local ban.

Boggs also said the Judicial Review Committee had discussed various ways of enforcing the ban and arrived at "actual provisions," but refused to say what those provisions are. He said the provisions "by their nature can't become public at the present time."

Apparently, the provisions are so secret the police don't know about them.

Assistant Police Chief Roy Hughes said the police department had not yet considered enforcement of the ban. Members of the police department will meet with the city attorney to discuss enforcement within the 30-day period before the ban goes into effect, he said.

Nuclear . . .

- Cont. from p. 1.
- the health and welfare of the public."

The ban will:
- make the transportation of radioactive material through the city a misdemeanor punishable by "a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment of not more than six months for each offense."
- exempt the transport of "small amounts" of radioactive material used for medical, research, educational or industrial purposes.
- ban the transport of "small amount" as "any discrete quantity of radioactive material, the aggregate total activity of which does not exceed six curies." A curie is a minute unit of radiation.
- allow for the "issuance of an extraordinary permit" if the shipper applies to the City Council and provides information as to the type and quantity of radioactive material or waste, the proposed date and time of shipment, starting point, scheduled route, destination and "any other information required by the council."

The council would then hold a public hearing on the request and grant the permit if the shipper is "of a non-recurring nature," if the shipment is in the public interest and does not violate public policy, and if the transportation of the material does not threaten the health and safety of Missoula citizens.

Boggs stressed that the ordinance addresses only the "health and safety aspect" of transporting nuclear material. It is not a "moral statement" on nuclear power in general, he said.

"If we were interested in making a moral point as a comment, we would have to be much more conservation-oriented than we are now," he said. "Until we make a serious effort to cut down our energy use, it would be hypocrisy in the extreme to condemn nuclear power."