PSC 395.01: Comparative Legal Systems

Louis Hayes
University of Montana - Missoula, louis.hayes@umontana.edu

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi
Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Recommended Citation
https://scholarworks.umt.edu/syllabi/7092

This Syllabus is brought to you for free and open access by the Course Syllabi at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in Syllabi by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mso.umt.edu.
All civil societies govern themselves by some form of law. The philosophical foundations and methods of application of these laws vary widely around the world. The system of law found in the United States is not the standard by any means. This course explores two different approaches to the subject of law. The first of these is Islamic law. While there are important differences among Islamic countries in their approaches to the law, they all have one thing in common. Law is derived from religion, that is, the Koran. The other system to be considered is that of East Asia. Here the common ingredient is the Confucian tradition that serves as a broad philosophical basis for ordering the social and political worlds.

Case Studies

Country case studies will be drawn from each of these two areas. The meaning of law in Islamic countries is fundamentally different from that of the west. It is this difference that explains, in part, the strain in relations between western countries and the Islamic countries of the middle east. In this category, there are many countries to study, from Morocco to Indonesia.

The legal systems of Asia are hard to define, at least from the American perspective. They appear either amorphous or authoritarian. We are accustomed to the law as an independent structure. In East Asia, law is an integral part of ethics and culture. Modern Asia, however, has been forced, out of necessity, to incorporate western approaches to law in order to cope with the demands of the contemporary world. Additionally, some countries combine elements of all three legal systems (Western, Islamic and Confucian) such as Malaysia and Indonesia.

Given that the amount and quality of information available is uneven, it is impractical to try and focus upon one single country in each of the geographical areas. Instead, the areas as a whole can be considered in order to gather data on the subject matter categories listed below.
Subject Matter Categories

Each of the geographical areas listed above will be examined in terms of four subject matter categories. Given that material is not available for all countries on all topics, not all subjects can be considered in detail. Not much is known, for example, on law enforcement and corrections practices in the Islamic world.

I. Constitutional foundations
   A. What is the historical background of the constitution?
   B. What is the philosophy of “law”?
   C. What is the authoritative basis of the political system?

II. Essential features of the courts and judicial process?
    A. Organization of the courts
    B. What is the role of the legal profession?
    C. Training legal professionals
    D. Legal procedure

III. Philosophical and practical aspects of civil rights
     A. Civil liberties
     B. Gender and disabilities issues
     C. Substance abuse
     D. Victimless crime

IV. Essential features of the systems of law enforcement and corrections
     A. Organization and structure of the police
     B. Police-community relations
     C. Corrections philosophy
     D. Corrections methods
     E. Law and morality

Requirements

The course grade will be based upon two essay/research papers focusing on the two legal systems. Each paper will address the four topics listed above. Each of these essays counts for 30% of the grade. An additional 20% will be based upon class reports and 20% on participation.
Note the sections of each paper will not necessarily be of equal length due to availability of information. The first paper is due in final form on March 18. The second on May 11.

Attendance is mandatory. Three absences will be allowed. Additional absences will result in a 5% grade reduction per absence.

Calendar

Part 1

January 30 - February 1  The Study of Comparative law

The first week will be devoted to gathering bibliography and exploring different data sources

Part 2

February 6 - 27  Islamic Law

Reports on article and book assignments

March 6 - March 15  Islamic Law

Presentations of research findings

Part 3

March 27 - April 17  Asia

Reports on articles and book assignments

April 19 - May 3  Asia

Presentations of research findings

Part 4

May 8-10  Comparative review
COMPARATIVE LAW

Bibliography

"Abortion" Social Science and Medicine October 1998, 1089

"Allegory of the Rule (Hukm): Law as Simulcrum in Islam?" History of Religions August 1998, 1

"Islamic Fundamentalism" Political Science and Policies March 1998, 52

Alford, William P. "Law, What Law?" Modern China October 1997 398-420

Al-Khalifa, "Religiosity and Islam," American Journal of Islamic Social Sciences Spring 1994

Angle, Stephen C. "Did Someone Say Rights?" Philosophy East and West October 1998 623-52

Bielefeldt, Heines. "Muslim Voices in the Human Rights Debate" Human Rights Quarterly Nov 95

——. "Qur’an, Justice, Gender: Internal Debates in Indonesian Islamic Jurisprudence," History of Religions August 1998, 52

Chan, Adrian. "Confucianism and Development in East Asia" Journal of Contemporary Asia March 1996 28-46

Feinerman, James V. "The Rule of Law ... with Socialist Characteristics" Current History September 1997 278-82

Fields, Lanny B. "The Ch'in Dynasty: Legalism and Confucianism" Journal of Asian History Spring 1989 1-25

Fox, Russell. "Confucian and Communitarian Responses to Liberal Democracy" The Review of Politics Summer 1997

Halliday, Fred. "Relativism and Universalism in Human Rights" Political Studies Annual 1995

Hood, Steven J. “The Myth of Asian-style Democracy” Asian Survey February 1998 177-

Kian, Azedeh. “Gendered Occupation and Women’s Status in Iran” Middle Eastern Studies July 1995, 407

Komiya, Nobuo. “A Cultural Study of the Low Crime Rate in Japan” British Journal of Criminology Summer 1999 369-
Kozlowski, Gregory. "Islamic Law in Contemporary South Asia," Muslim World July-October 1997, 221

Lee, Seung-hwan. "Liberal Rights and/or Confucian Values" Philosophy East and West 367-80

Marfording, Annette. "Cultural Relativism and the Construction of Culture: An Examination of Japan" Human Rights Quarterly May 1997 431-

Mazrui, Ali. "Islamic and Western Values" Foreign Affairs October 1997,

Mutalib, Hussin. "Islamic Revivalism in ASEAN States," Asian Survey September 1990,

Pye, Lucian. "Civility, Social Capital and Civil Society" The Journal of Interdisciplinary History Spring 1999 763-

Radetski, M. "From Communism to Capitalism in Laos: The Legal Dimension" Asian Survey September 1994 799-806

Sellmann, James D. "The Origin and Role of the State According to the Lushi Chunqui" Asian Philosophy November 1999 193-

