Clean Air Week starts out with Stage One Alert

By Jim Marks
Kaimin Reporter

Mother Nature must want Missoula to stand up and take notice of Clean Air Week by providing timely atmospheric conditions that have caused the first Stage One Alert of the season.

Scott Church, Missoula City-County Health Department air quality specialist and Clean Air Week coordinator, said yesterday at Clean Air Week's kickoff activities at the University of Montana, that he had nothing to do with setting up the air conditions that prompted Stage One Alert.

"My connections aren't that good," Church said.

The Stage One Alert, which began at 8:30 a.m. Sunday, is expected to continue until tomorrow.

During a Stage One Alert, residents are advised not to do anything strenuous outdoors. The public is requested to stop wood burning, unless it is the only heat source, and to avoid unnecessary driving.

A Stage One Alert goes into effect when the total suspended particulate count reaches 150 micrograms per cubic meter. At 300 micrograms per cubic meter, a Stage Two Warning goes into effect and the County Health Department can issue fines of up to $50 to those who do not comply with requests to stop burning.

These two stages are part of a four-stage public warning system.

The current Stage One Alert has had, at its worst, 189 micrograms per cubic meter.

Clean Air Week — a week in which the City-County Health Department is making a concentrated effort to inform the public about Missoula's air pollution problem and to rally individual help in controlling air pollution — began with a noon forum at the University Center.

County Commissioner Germaine Conrad and Tom Huff, professor of philosophy and member of the Residents Wood Burning Committee, spoke at the forum on "Missoula's Air Pollution Problem and What You Can Do About It."

Booths were set up in the UC Mall to hand out information on air pollution, to sell T-shirts, hats and tickets to the upcoming

"Clean Air Jam," to test people's lungs with lung testing machines and to give away buttons and bumper stickers.

Representatives from government, non-profit corporations and private companies manned the booths.

The message of the forum was that Missoula's air pollution problem is caused mostly by the residents of Missoula — not industry.

"We used to be able to point down or up the valley and say 'they're doing it,'" Huff said.

More than 50 percent of the total suspended particulate in the air during winter comes from wood stoves, he said.

Wood burning can contribute up to 90 percent of those particulates small enough to be carried into the lungs, he said.

To help curb Missoula's air pollution problem, Huff and Conrad suggested the following:

- Do not burn wood during any one of the air pollution warning stages.
- Use mass transit or alternative transportation whenever possible and avoid unnecessary use of your car.

• When you burn wood, burn only well-seasoned wood and keep the fire hot. Dry wood and hot fires reduce particulate emissions.

Yesterday's Clean Air Week activities were co-sponsored by the County Health Department, the Student Action Center and the Environmental Studies Department.

Updates on air quality can be obtained by calling the air quality hotline at 728-2473.

City Council votes to buy river corridor for park system

By Ace Ramel
Kaimin Contributing Reporter

The Missoula City Council voted last night to purchase 10 acres of land for the riverfront corridor park system at a cost of about $295,000.

The council's vote reverses action it took last week, when it offered to buy the land only if real estate broker Bill Coffee's fee was reduced from $25,000 to $15,000.

Councilman Cas Chinske said the final price of the land — with interest accumulated up to Nov. 13 — will be $295,021.76. Chinske said Nov. 13 was the target date to have the transaction completed.

The land is located on the south bank of the Clark Fork River between the Higgins Avenue and Madison Street bridges.

It is owned by a group of 14 area businessmen who set up a secret trust to hold the land until the city could purchase it.

Despite objections from council members Ken Lousen and Rosalie Buzzas, the council voted to buy the land with Coffee's $25,000 brokerage fee intact.

Lousen said it was "unconscionable to allow one person

Federal cuts may cause problems for U system funding

By Greg Gadberry
Kaimin Legislative Reporter

HELENA — The Montana University System will not seek an increase in its $231 million budget during the special legislative session next week even though state colleges and universities face probable cuts in federal grants and increases in student enrollment.

That's the word from Irving Dayton, acting commissioner of higher education, who, yesterday with a group of college and university presidents, including University of Montana President Neil Bucklew, briefed a joint legislative subcommittee on the university system's finances.

Bucklew to take part in nuclear convocation

By Pam Newbern
Kaimin Reporter

University of Montana President Neil Bucklew agreed yesterday to a request by ASUM that he take part in the Convocation on the Threat of Nuclear War to be held tomorrow.

Bucklew will introduce the two guest speakers, Dr. Elizabeth Gunderson of the Montana Physicians for Social Responsibility and Professor Edwin Firmage of the University of Utah College of Law, at 2 p.m.

"I'm pleased to participate in the convocation," Bucklew said. "I think it's an important topic for discussion, and I'm glad it's Apparently, it is just as well that the system will not appeal for funds, as several members of the subcommittee made it clear that the system is getting enough money already.

"I was very distressed to pick up a newspaper and see that the university system was underfunded," Rep. Jack Moore, R-Great Falls, said. "The budget is more than fair and adequate."

Dayton told the subcommittee about three areas of concern that could cause funding hassles during the next two years. They are:

- an increase in enrollment in state colleges. According to a recent report, 1,005 more students are enrolled in Montana's universities this fall than last fall. While

UM has seen a .2 percent decrease in students this quarter as compared to this time last year, Northern Montana College has seen a whopping 16.5 percent increase in enrollment. NMC President James Erickson said the increase in enrollment will cause the school to make policy changes, such as hiring more part-time instructors.

Dayton also told the subcommittee that the number of out-of-state students had increased dramatically, particularly since colleges in Washington and Oregon have faced large financial cuts.

• changes in student loan programs. Dayton told the subcommittee that while the state's Guaranteed Student Loan Program was successful, federal loan programs may suffer substantial cuts, causing students to either drop out of school or look elsewhere for cash.

• changes in federal grants and contracts. Dayton said the university system does not rely on large federal "formula grants" to keep schools running. Instead, the schools rely on state funds and apply for research grants and contracts from the federal government.

But the federal government may cut back sharply on the number of research grants provided for schools. Dayton would not predict how much the system would lose if research grants were not offered.

According to Ray Murray, associate vice president of research at UM, the university received $5.7 million last year in federal grants and contracts, for projects ranging from a ground-based study of Mount St. Helens, to a study of salmon migrations, to grants paying for the Montana Repertory Theater.

"Trying to predict the impact (of the federal cuts) is extremely difficult," Murray said. While he would not predict the impact of possible cuts, Murray said the university would probably not make up money that some departments hope to receive from research grants.

occurring on campus."

Bucklew's agreement to take part in the convocation followed a request by ASUM President Steve Spaulding that he or a member of his administration take part in it, especially in the introduction of speakers. Bucklew had earlier refused to cancel classes for the convocation.

"I think there were really two separate issues here," Bucklew said. "One was whether to hold the convocation, and the other was whether it was important enough to cancel classes for."

"I think we have a lot of important topics which are addressed weekly on campus," he said. "I don't think changing the class schedule every time an important issue comes up is the required way to deal with this."

ASUM President Steve Spaulding said he was very pleased that Bucklew would introduce the guest speakers at the convocation.

"I think it's a courageous thing for a new president to do something like this," Spaulding said. "It's more difficult for a new president to take a stand on something like this than for

• Saudi Arabia claimed yesterday that Israeli warplanes invaded Saudi airspace over the kingdom's northwest regions and were driven back by Saudi jet fighters. Israel refused to comment on the incident.

• Provincial authorities balked yesterday at ratifying an agreement to end Poland's biggest regional strike, involving 160,000 workers, since the independent labor movement began, a union spokesman said. He explained that provincial authorities failed to appear at the appointed hour to ratify the agreement, and were trying "to torpedo the deal by reopening bargaining on vital portions of the accord."

THE NATION

• The 100 B-1 bombers President Ronald Reagan wants to buy would cost $39.8 billion, congressional budget watchers said yesterday, a figure that includes inflation as well as additional equipment not included in the Air Force's estimates. The Air Force has estimated the cost at $19.7 billion in 1981 dollars.

• States and local communities cannot shut down stores or theaters displaying sexually explicit materials before getting a court ruling that the materials are obscene, the U.S. Supreme Court ruled yesterday. By a 6-3 vote, the justices upheld rulings that a Washington state law that in some cases would allow such closings without a court hearing was an unconstitutional "prior restraint" on free speech.

• Yes, you've seen it here before, but space officials gave the go-ahead yesterday for a second, abbreviated countdown to start this morning and leading to the shuttle Columbia's curtain-call flight. The clock is to start at 8 a.m. EST (6 a.m. MST), aiming for a 7:30 a.m. Thursday launch. However, it appears the weather will be touch and go, with a storm front heading toward Cape Canaveral. Light rain is forecast for Thursday morning.

• Mr. Bill is going to court, and for once it is his creators — not the clay character abused on "Saturday Night Live" — that are torn apart. Vance Degeneres of New Orleans claims he and his one-time pal Walter Williams, who has copyright on the character, worked together to devise Mr. Bill, his dog Spot, villain Mr. Sluggo and the pair of live human hands called Mr. Hands. Degeneres wants half the take from the "artistic property known as Mr. Bill" — at least $200,000 from a videotape, a book and T-shirts.

MONTANA

• State Agriculture Director Gordon McOmber has announced his appointments to the Pesticides Advisory Council that will study the use of endrin and other pesticide problems. The endrin problem is on the agenda when the council meets in Helena next Monday and Tuesday, McOmber said. He added that he would consider recommendations from the council before conducting public hearings on proposed pesticide rule changes in Miles City and Helena next January and February.

UM law teams places second

By Deb Thiele
Kaimin Reporter

For the second straight year, a moot court team from the University of Montana will compete in the national moot court competition, which will be held in January in New York City.

The team, composed of third-year law students Robert Brown, Gary Walton and Peggi Gilliam, took second in the 16-team regional competition held in Eugene, Ore. last week.

The team submitted the best written brief of the competition, but was defeated in the oral competition during the finals by the team from Gonzaga University, Spokane, Wash.

During moot court competition, teams of law students argue cases as if they were before the U.S. Supreme Court. The teams present their cases both in written briefs and oral arguments.

This is the third time the UM moot team has qualified for nationals. The first time was in 1957, and the second time was last year, when UM won the national competition.

The moot court competition is sponsored by the Young Lawyers Committee of the Association of the Bar of the City of New York and the American College of Trial Lawyers.

THE PRIVATE LIFE OF HENRY VIII

Hungarian-born British film mogul Alexander Korda loved making discreet fun of great historical figures whose "private lives" were shown to be in sharp contrast with their historical images, and never was he more successful than with Henry VIII (1933). The first British film to conquer the American and world markets, Henry VIII is a humorous retelling of the Bluebeard myth with Charles Laughton in his most delightful role as the henpecked monarch who rids himself of the problems of marriage by ordering the beheading of his various wives. Laughton's bravura performance earned him an Oscar and it is testimony to the skill of his performance that we don't pause to consider what a monster the monarch must have been. In the most famous of its great scenes Laughton, enraged, devours a whole chicken one joint at a time. "Manners are dead," he mutters, "no consideration for anyone," throwing the bones over his shoulder. Among Henry's wives are Merle Oberon as Anne Boleyn and Elsa Lanchester as Ann of Cleves (who delightfully tricks the king). Henry VIII suffers from none of the slowness of costume dramas of the period and its comedy is still highly enjoyable today.

Six incidents reported over weekend

Six fairly serious incidents occurred last weekend on the University of Montana Campus, according to Ken Willett of Campus Security.

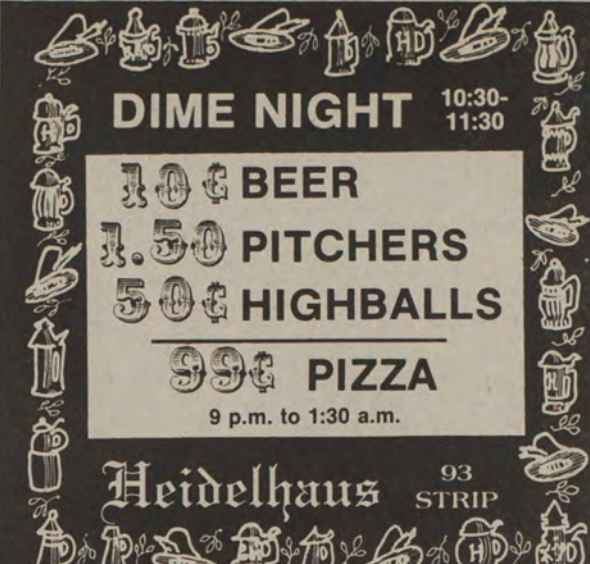

Saturday incidents were:

- 2:50 a.m. Fire alarm tripped in Knowles Hall - false alarm.
- 10:58 a.m. BB gun shot breaks a window in Knowles Hall - investigation continues.
- 4:38 p.m. A power line is spotted down along campus drive. Investigation reveals that it was a hit-and-run incident. The pole was apparently struck by a blue-greenish vehicle. Investigation is continuing.
- 8:51 p.m. Fire alarm tripped in Craig Hall - false alarm.
- 8:52 p.m. Fire alarm tripped in Elrod Hall - false alarm.

The only incident that occurred Sunday was at 3 a.m.

- Officers discovered a forced entry into the Lodge. Nothing is missing, but the investigation continues.

The time to relax is when you don't have time for it.

to dip into the public treasury for $25,000." He said voters did not approve the $500,000 conservation bond — which will be used to purchase the land — "so this realtor could gouge into their hard-earned money bank."

Buzzas said "the trustee (Coffee) has the city over a barrel and he knows it." She said she felt the brokerage fee was too high and offered a substitute motion to make an offer to the trust to buy the land for $10,000 less than the original price. Only Buzzas and Lousen voted in favor of the substitute motion.

Councilman John Toole said he didn't think the council should be discussing the brokerage fee and that the land should be purchased immediately.

"If we fool around this way, we may break the trust (that is holding the land) and no one knows what will happen to the land then," Toole said.

He said that if the council lets someone else acquire the land, "none of us are ever going to be able to look ourselves in the face again."

Chinske and councilmen Leon Stalcup and Francis Superneau also spoke in favor of buying the land with the $25,000 brokerage fee.

In other action, the council also voted to fill in a bike underpass below the abandoned Milwaukee Railroad tracks, near the entrance to Jacob's Island Park.

Buzzas, who introduced the motion, said after the meeting that University of Montana officials requested that the underpass be filled in because it creates a public safety hazard and is expensive to maintain.

A Public Works Committee report about the underpass stated that the university may request to have a paved foot and bicycle path through the area. City Engineer Tom Crowley suggested the city to build the path if the university pays for the asphalt.

someone who has been here for a few years and knows the area."

E. W. "Bert" Pfeiffer, UM zoology professor and coordinator of the nuclear convocation at the UM, said he was very happy that Bucklew had agreed to make the administration part of the convocation.

"I'm pleased that President Bucklew is joining other academic leaders across the country to assist the UM in our participation in the nuclear convocation," Pfeiffer said. "The threat of nuclear war is a pressing, difficult problem that is facing everyone."

Kent Spence, Central Board member, said he also was happy to hear that Bucklew was willing to participate in the convocation.

"I think that President Bucklew has been caught between the faculty and students on one side and the Board of Regents on the other," Spence said. "I think it's pretty neat to have the president participate."
