Byrne elected, said she didn't run

By Bill Miller
Kaimin Reporter

As Winter Quarter comes to an end, outgoing ASUM President Neil Bucklew says he felt good about the university.

"Looking back on the responsibilites of this office, it has been a good quarte," Bucklew said. "My feeling is morale is good at the university."

Bucklew said the major achievement of his administration this quarter was in implementing the new planning process in January. The aim of the process is to help Bucklew make long-range plans in the face of possible reduced enrollment and resources.

The University Planning Council, which is comprised of faculty and students, was established to assist Bucklew in the planning process. Bucklew said the council is orientating itself to the process and will start receiving the first of four planning from UM's departments and schools next quarter. Decisions will be made this spring for next fall.

Bucklew said he was pleased to be the fund-raising campaign for the Fine Arts-Radio-TV Building get started. ASUM Nominating Board and the UM Foundation are trying to raise money before the building's May 15 groundbreaking date. To meet the deadline, Bucklew said it will take a generous effort from potential donors.

"We don't think it was an easy task," Bucklew said. "I'm an optimist, yet realistic."

Spring Quarter, according to Bucklew, will be an exciting time for his administration.

Bucklew: Winter Quarter was a good one for administration

"Indeed next quarter will be important because the first cycle of planning will be completed (the council's orienation to the planning process) and the Fine Arts-Radio-TV Building campaign will be ending. Much we have done so far is preparation. The conclusions are before us next quarter."

The main problem Bucklew sees for future quarters is decreased financial aid for students because of the proposed federal budget cuts to higher education. "The question is if it will turn into a crisis and I don't take the term 'crisis' lightly," Bucklew said. Bucklew said the UM administration is lobbying the Montana congress for Responsible Government to propose a bill which would make matters even worse.

Progress made amid the 'political nonsense'

By Sam Richards
Kaimin Reporter

ASUM has had its share of problems this quarter, with three Central Board members resigning, one botched primary election, a general election rescheduled once and almost twice, and a president and vice president who didn't get along at the office.

But, even after one burrows through the political nonsense and procedure gone away, some important accomplishments have been made.

Central Board, fairly unorganized when the quarter began, became more so as time went on. CB meetings, always disorganized, became dilatory as the quarter passed. Two main factors in this regression were: the first is the Central Board's inability to work with Marquette McRae's campaign, which was a factor in the rescheduling issue; the second is the ASUM president who didn't get along at the office.

Chair vandalized

By Greg Gabbdery
Kaimin Contributing Reporter

It may be a new low in political dirty tricks. Tuesday night, vandalism entered the office of ASUM Vice President Eric Johnson and unraveled on Johnson's desk chair, an act Johnson says is related to a political feud with UM's departments and schools next quarter. Decisions will be made this spring for next fall.

The rescheduling issue probably made the difference for the Central Board's vice president, Frank Cote. He introduced the procedures to help establish a viable system of having a viable system of having one polling table, which would be scheduled far down on election cheating.

However, such changes should have been made before the election. Also, Cote probably stood to gain from the changes because his campaign wasn't as well-organized as Marquette McRae's and he could have used more time.
Trivial defection

Editor: I was extremely annoyed to open the Montana Kaimin on the 3rd of March and discover that once again the theme of the opinion column pertained to the activities of the members of the Montana University System. The goal of the Kaimin is to provide a forum for the exchange of ideas, and I think that the recent past has shown that this goal is largely being realized. However, I believe that the opinion column is being used too often as a vehicle for personal attacks and criticism.

I hope that everyone who attended had a super time. However, a few of the people who were putting on the party and had put a lot of time and energy into the party itself, did not! After having the house packed with $300 in cash stolen, and the tap literally ripped off the bar, I was wondering if the people at our party were responsible adults or rather immature children.

Some say "There's some in every crowd." Granted, then this party might be an aspect of personality that I would rather, however, that those who read this will sit and reflect on all their interactions with others in the world.

I believe a person is in a very sorry state when he wrongs another person after being involved into his house and being assured of an enjoyable evening.

Please folks, open your eyes. This was supposed to be a gathering of friends. We must begin to think of the other person who our actions may be harming. One human being shouldn't harm you just for the sake of money.

We're going to be having a very large party this spring, "Cham­per Down." I hope to have a huge outdoor, springtime gathering of "really fabulous" people for a beautiful, sunny afternoon blow-out. I ask all those people who aren't "really fabulous" and can't handle respecting their fellow humans rights and proper­ly please not to attend.

Editor: Normally I am a very soft-spoken individual, but I feel something must be said about the wrong that was done to me and the organization I am represent­ing.

On Saturday night, this past weekend, we had a moderately publicized party. It was a real good turnout (approx. 150/200) and for the most part, an ex­cellent event was had by all.

I was there, but I didn't stay for the whole party. I read that the folks there had a bottomless glass of beer, a chance to win one of three large party this spring. "Cham­per Down." Thanks ASUM, fine arts
Editor: I'd like to take this space to thank the ASUM and the fine arts department for their support and funding to the University Dance Ensemble. The Dance Ensemble was able to travel to Salt Lake City in February to participate in the American College Dance Festival with funding from ASUM and fine arts. At the festival, the Dance Ensemble performed "Rain" by Cathy Palise, and won the Northwest Division with their performance. Again, I'd like to thank ASUM and the fine arts department for their continued support of the University Dance Ensemble.

UM ‘lifer’ is dedicated to her job

By Scott Gratton

Montana Kaimin • Friday, March 12, 1982

Very few employees today are dedicated, enough to their work that they remain in the same company or institution their whole career. Free. Margaret McGuire, foreign and handicapped student adviser for the past nine years, a life-long employment at the University of Montana is just fine.

McGuire has been employed at UM since 1943 when she was an administrative assistant for the School of Education. From 1945 to 1946 she worked as an assistant to the Registrar, and in 1964 she was promoted to assistant to the Dean of Women. McGuire has been foreign and handicapped student adviser at the Center for Student Development since 1972.

As of April 1, after 40 years of dedicated service to UM, Margaret McGuire is retiring.

McGuire is a native of Sand Coulee, a small community 20 miles of southeast of Great Falls. McGuire graduated from UM in business administration in 1943. It was at UM that McGuire met her husband Stan, a veteran of World War II. They were married in 1943 in Raleigh, N.C., while Stan was training to become an employee who would be selected for being our eyes, ears and legs.'

McGuire has received numerous awards for her work, but she says the most meaningful and important award she has received is a plaque that reads: “With Love, Handicapped Students Union.”
UM draft eligibles await decisions

By Dan Carter
Kaimin Contributing Reporter

On April 22, the National Football League will get ready to draft college football players.

More than 3,000 players will be eligible, and when it’s all over 2,500 of them will have to look for another job.

The University of Montana Grizzlies had 18 seniors on their team last season, all of whom are eligible for the draft and free agent selection, according to head football Coach Larry Donovan.

Donovan said that each senior has a legitimate chance to be drafted into the NFL, but admitted that it is a little tough to do.

He said that if UM seniors have the talent and the desire to play football in the professional leagues, then the UM coaching staff will do as much as possible to help them.

He pointed out that the coaching staff compiles information about each of the seniors for the pro scouts. Everything from shoe size to number of brothers and sisters is included in the files.

On April 12, the Grizzlies will have a pro timing day, according to Donovan. Seniors who are participating in the NFL combine at the end of the month will be timed in the 40-yard dash.

According to Donovan, the timing is just the start of a long process. He said there are aptitude and physical tests and that even if a prospect is drafted, it doesn’t mean he’s going to play.

Donovan quoted from a 1977 survey taken in the NFL that said there were 3,500 players eligible for the draft, and of that number 350 were drafted and another 150 were signed as free agents. He said that of those 500 players, 150 made it all the way to the regular season without being cut and of those, only six started in all regular season games. The survivor said that in six years, only 20 of the 100 survivors still will be in the NFL.

“It’s tough mentally and physically,” Donovan said, “but the mental aspect is the toughest.

He said there are players who have more experience who will try to “psych you out.”

Three ex-Grizzlies who will be trying to impress the scouts in the next couple of months are Rich Burtness, Rocky Klever and Pat Curry.

Burtness, a six-foot-four-and-one-half-inch, 235-pound offensive lineman, said his chances of playing in the NFL all depend on what happens in the next few months.

He said he is working through an agent, and that his agent is trying to find teams “who need offensive linemen, and then he promotes me through those teams.”

Burtness said he has been contacted through the mail by interested NFL teams such as the Dallas Cowboys, the Atlanta Falcons and the Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Many players who don’t get drafted or picked up as free agents sometimes play in the Canadian Football League. Burtness said he would have no reservations about playing in Canada.

It is difficult for American players to play in Canada, however, because Canadian teams have a rule that allows only 15 Americans per team.

Klever, a six-foot-two-and-one-half-inch, 215-pound tailback, said that even though his agent said he could possibly “go” in the fifth through seventh rounds, it may be better for him to be a free agent.

“If I were a free agent, then I could pick the team that might need a fullback or a tight end,” Klever said.

He said the Kansas City Chiefs and the New York Giants are two teams that his agent said are looking for that type of player.

According to Curry, a six-foot-five-and-one-half-inch, 255-pound defensive lineman, much of the chance of being drafted depends on the player’s senior season.

He said he thought he had a good senior year and that, according to some people he’s talked to, he could be drafted in the “lower middle rounds.” He said he is physically stronger now than at the end of the year and that his speed is good, so his chances are good.

Curry also said he wouldn’t mind playing in Canada. “It doesn’t really matter to me where I play,” he said.

All three seniors said that playing pro football has been in their minds for a while, but, as Klever said, playing pro ball won’t run his life.

“If I get the chance to play I’ll do my best,” Klever said, “but I won’t base my entire life on pro football.”

It was a warm August day in 1979 when scouts from the Milwaukee Brewers came to Butte to hold a baseball tryout camp. About 80 aspiring athletes took the field, but only one can claim that camp to be the beginning of his professional baseball career. Scott Orlich burlched only 10 pitches and the scouts made him an offer to play ball with their organization.

"It was a pretty good day," he said.

Orlich, a 22-year-old junior in microbiology, says he doesn't think of baseball as a career. He only wants to see how far he can go in the sport.

Little League and Babe Ruth League were the beginning of Orlich's playing days. He took part in American Legion summer baseball during his high school years in Butte and was named all-state right-handed pitcher in 1978.

Summer ball took its toll on Orlich and he decided not to play the next year. "I was just plain sick of baseball after the long summer," he said. He turned down a baseball scholarship from the University of Nebraska and attended Montana Tech for one year.

Orlich called the coach at North Idaho College and was offered a scholarship there. He pitched for one year at North Idaho, and transferred again, this time to Central Arizona College, for the 1978-80 school year.

The scouts at the tryout camp set him up with a scholarship to Central Arizona so he could play under the Brewer's rookie coach, who worked there in the off-season. Orlich, was Milwaukee's number one draft pick in January, but finished the second semester at Central Arizona before he signed a contract. It was then back to Butte to play with the Copper Kings, Milwaukee's "A" farm club.

Orlich played for the 1980 Copper Kings and later enrolled at the University of Montana in September. He attended school for one quarter, then went to a California training camp in January. Spring training followed that, and Orlich was reassigned to Butte.

The assignment upset Orlich since he thought he should have been playing on a higher level. An injury to his ulcer nerve (funny bone) hampered him in the previous season and Brewer officials told him the shorter schedule in Butte would be better for his arm.

The Copper Kings are involved in a "short season," which begins in June. They play a 70-game schedule, compared with 140 games in other minor leagues. This was not a surprise because players drafted from college graduate in May or June. These rookies can then play together rather than trying to phase into a club that has been playing since April.

Although Orlich felt his arm was healed and could handle a 140-game schedule, he returned to Butte. The Copper Kings won the 1980 Pioneer League championship, defeating the Calgary Expos three games to one in a best-of-five series.

Orlich's friends urged him to come back to UM and he has been enrolled for the past two quarters.

But what about spring training this year? Orlich won't be there for a while. About 10 days ago he turned down this year's contract. He said he didn't think the pay raise was enough and felt the Brewers "weren't showing me respect for my past year's performance."

The California Angels and the New York Yankees have talked with Milwaukee about Orlich, but neither has come with an offer.

Meanwhile, he is waiting for a letter from the Brewers that will tell him what their plans for him are. Some of the possibilities are that he will be deactivated, released or placed in semi-retirement. If he isn't picked up by another club, Milwaukee still has interest in him, he said.

A lack of breaks sometimes discourage players, but Orlich said he tries to accept it as part of baseball.

"The sun will come up the next morning," he said. "You must take it in stride or it will carry over and hurt your performances in the future." Orlich. He said he still wants to move up in the baseball ranks and hopes to do so by improving his consistency in games. "That's the thing that's going to make you or break you," he said.

WANT TO CUT YOUR REGISTRATION TIME IN HALF?

Why not take advantage of PRE-QUARTER ADVISING? There are about 6,000 students on campus who will be required to meet with an Advisor before sectioning into classes during Spring Registration, March 29th and 30th. All those who are identified as freshmen, sophomores, juniors, and seniors have three asterisks (') printed on their registration forms. If you entered the University anytime beginning Autumn Quarter, 1979, you must show an Advisor stamp to enter the Fieldhouse.

BUT—save yourself the hassle of looking for your Advisor half an hour before you are due to register! Make an appointment to meet with your Advisor by March 19th and be PRE-QUARTER ADVISED! Pick up your copy of the "Spring Schedule of Classes" available now in the Lodge at Registrar's windows. Take the "Schedule" with you when you meet with your Advisor. At the conclusion of the meeting, have your Advisor stamp the worksheet in the "Spring Schedule." Then, on your registration day, take that worksheet along with your registration form to the Fieldhouse. The stamped worksheet will serve to admit you to the sectioning tables without also having to have a stamp on your registration form.

DECLARED MAJORS: Call and make an appointment with your major Advisor before March 19th. If you have forgotten who your Advisor is, call your department's Advising Chair and ask (see campus directory).

GENERAL STUDIES (EXPLORATORY) MAJORS: If you have been assigned to a General Advisor and cannot recall your Advisor's name, look for your own name on the list that was printed in the Tuesday, March 9th edition of the "Kaimin" (copies of this list are posted on bulletin boards all over campus). Across from your name will be that of your Advisor. Call him or her and arrange to meet before March 19th. Don't forget to take your "Spring Schedule of Classes" with you and have its worksheet stamped before you go!

If you have questions about this process—or if you can't find your name on the list!—call the Academic Advising Office, 243-8355.

preparing for the election. Cote could well have been done in because voters picked up on this. The elections were ASUM's biggest gaffe of Winter Quarter. ASUM did accomplish several noteworthy things this quarter, though. The ASUM Legislative Committee picked John Hefferman to be an ex-officio (non-voting) University of Montana student on the Missoula City Council, a move which can only help improve UM relations with the city.

Also, the ASUM Prison Committee was formed to help bring inmates things they can use while in prison, like books, athletic equipment, and musical instruments.

And ASUM committees continued to run pretty smoothly. With the exception of the Budget and Finance Committee, which had a high absentee rate at meetings toward the end of this quarter, committee operations, under guidance of the ASUM Vice Presidential Committee chaired by Johnson, was the most effective its been in years.

With luck, ASUM hasn't lost too much credibility with the administration. ASUM has had problems, but most were centered on the actions of a few individuals. The administration was disturbed about the voided elections, but the election reform, drawn up by Cote and others, will go a long way towards solving future problems if CB adopts the changes next quarter.

Two student positions on the ASUM Auxiliary Board, created this year when the board was restructured, are another accomplishment of this year's student government. It should be evident to the administration that ASUM is trying to be responsible by getting students on a board that deals directly with student services, as the Auxiliary Board does.

ASUM's other problems apparently haven't bothered the administration too much. UM President Neil Bucklew said he had a "limited, but good" relationship with ASUM this year, his first at UM.

He said relations with Spaulding have been strained, but any problems were quickly worked out. He is also looking into establishing a third vice presidential position at UM, which, among other duties, would serve as an official liaison between ASUM and Main Hall.

Despite its slip-ups, ASUM is a good student government with an effective structure. The administration should know this, and be watching for individuals who are causing problems.

As for ASUM, it could help itself—and the students—by keeping closer tabs on itself.

Chair...

Chair responding to telephone calls complaining about the drinking at ASUM—checked the offices. Johnson said he had nothing to do with the phone complaints: Cote said he did.

"There's no doubt in my mind that Johnson called Security," Cote said.

The Kaimin was not able to gain access to Security logs late yesterday to check whether the Security officer had been sent or what he had found at ASUM. After the visit from the Security, Johnson said, somebody got his chair.

Cote dismisses Johnson's charges as absolutely false. "I hadn't even heard about it (the vandalism) until 10 o'clock," Cote said.

THE WORLD
• Guerrillas in El Salvador attacked a government patrol in a village 30 miles south of San Salvador, government sources reported Wednesday. The Tuesday night attack at Tachchico in the province of La Libertad was the latest in a flurry of armed clashes in El Salvador this week and brought to more than 80 the number of persons reported killed since Monday.

THE NATION
• The United Auto Workers union's 290-member General Motors council voted overwhelmingly yesterday to revive contract concessions talks that collapsed six weeks ago with General Motors Corp.
• Harrison Williams, D-N.J., resigned from the Senate yesterday in the face of almost certain expulsion by his colleagues for "ethically repugnant" conduct in the FBI's Abscam investigation of political corruption.

MONTANA
• A report prepared for the lieutenant governor's office says Montana gives its cities and counties much less tax money per capita than do three neighboring states.
• For decades, the Dumas Hotel in Butte had been operating as a brothel. Now, the historic house of prostitution is closed. Butte-Silver Bow Sheriff Bob Butorovich says he will "not condone prostitution" in Butte. The brothel has been closed since it was robbed last October and Butorovich told Lee Arrigoni, madam at the brothel, to "close down and move out."

University of Montana intramural basketball leagues finished up their seasons over the last two weeks.

In the men's league, the 10-2 Syndicate defeated Russsero 75-57 Wednesday night in the Dahlberg arena to win the 1982 championship. The Syndicate made it to the final game by defeating the Dunkteens Tuesday night at the Dahlberg arena, while Russsero beat Exciting later the same night to win the right to face the Syndicate.

Wednesday night at Dahlberg, Ben's Babes edged the Wild Runiers 26-21 to win the women's championship. The night before, Ben's Babes advanced to the championship game by beating NWCBC, the Runiers made it by edging out Birk's Jerks the same night.

In the under six-foot league, the Rim Wreckers beat the Dental Floss Tycoon 73-57 Wednesday night at Dahlberg arena to win the championship. Earlier, Dental Floss Tycoon beat the Excitable Boys, and the Rim Wreckers beat the Skywalkers, setting up the final game.

University of Montana schools overwhelmingly favored the use of current student building fees to apply to the cost of the new Fine Arts/Television Building in UM's student election.

The resolution passed 1,024 votes to 282 votes. A private fund-raising campaign has been launched by the university and the goal of the campaign is to raise $1.5 million towards construction of the building. UM President Neil Bucklew said this is the largest fund-raising project in UM history.

Part of these funds may come from building fees but Montana Board of Regents policy requires an indication of student opinion before the funds may be used. The student vote is in no way binding.

Bucklew is prepared to ask the regents' approval to use up to $500,000 of the building fees.

"It's difficult to yell at a professor over a test grade, but in basketball you can yell at your teammates, your opposition and the referees.

"There are no fines in this league."

Alan Haley, graduate in business administration who played for the 10-2 Syndicate, said he enjoyed basketball and organizing with his teammates.

"You have to try and break up the quarter instead of studying all the time," he said.

Montana comes home to few fans

By Renata Birkenbuel

Tonight, written by Rob Quist, Montana's hit single, "The Shoe's on the Other Foot," was delightful on the home turf. Bergerson, a lead vocalist and harmonica player, lent humor and talent to the show with his soul-burning harmonica pieces.

The five-piece group romped and stomped to bluegrass classics like "Railroad Pickin' Blues," "Orange Blossom Special," and "Turkey in the Straw." Victor Gotesman, ASUM Programming manager, said the low turnout was due to a combination of things; Montana, a Whitefish-based band, has played in Missoula several times before, ticket prices may have been a factor (tickets were $6.50 in advance, $7.50 at the door) and scheduling the concert the week before finals could have been a bad time for college students to make time for the concert.

Ticket sales for Wednesday's concert totaled 89 and 209 tickets were sold for today's concert in Bozeman, according to Gotesman. He added that a "couple hundred" tickets were given out for the Missoula concert.

Gotesman said Programming will not book the band again for at least two years.

"We can't chance the financial risk on a show that sold only 89 tickets," he said.

"When you've done your hometown...you can't generate a lot of excitement because it's old hat," Gotesman said.

Montana tore into their most famous song, "Take a Whiff on Me," twice, once during the show and again during the first encore, to the delight of the satisfied crowd.

Montana plays in Kalispell on Saturday and then won't be back in the state until sometime this summer. Robinson said the group has a few days' rest and then leaves for Canada for a two-and-one-half-week tour.

Time should fly for Montana this spring, but it's going to be a long, dull wait until summer for Missoula foot-stomping fans.

Spend Spring Quarter in the woods

By Yvonne Lucero
Contributing Reporter

A special program is being offered Spring Quarter which will allow students to spend four weeks in the Flathead National Forest.

The program, known as the Camping and Outdoor Recreation/Education (CORE) Program, is being offered by the School of Forestry. Its main focus is outdoor recreation leadership, according to forestry professor Joel Meier.

He said the program is designed for forestry students majoring in recreation management, but added that it is "open to students at large who are interested in the development of background skills in this area.

Petition for Toole

During registration for Spring Quarter, University of Montana students will be asked to sign a petition sponsored by the K. Ross Toole Committee.

The committee wants to tack $2 onto the activity fee each quarter to fund the establishment of the K. Ross Toole Distinguished Visiting Professorship.

The committee wants to bring in a person each year from outside the university to uphold the tradition of the late Professor Toole, who died of cancer last summer.

The committee hopes to bring the first visiting professor here during the 1983-84 academic year. It hopes to get 5,000 signatures at Spring Quarter registration and will take its petition to the Montana Board of Regents in September.

The committee to select the visiting professor will consist of the following:

• at least eight students, five of whom are undergraduates.
• one member of the Toole family or a representative.
• one member of the UM Alumni Association.
• one university staff member.
• two faculty members.
• two members of the university administration.

The regents will have final approval of candidates.
