SUMMER COURSE IN TEACHING LITERATURE READING OFFERED BY UM

MISSOULA--

"I read it, but I don't understand it," is a complaint teachers often hear from their students. This summer a special course will be offered by the English department at the University of Montana called "Teaching Reading in the Literature Class." It will focus on how teachers can help their students to be better readers of literature and how to respond to that oft-heard complaint.

The course will be taught by Beverly Chin, UM assistant professor of English, during the first session of summer school. The course can be taken for either undergraduate or graduate credit and will meet Monday through Friday, June 21 to July 16, from 7:30 to 8:50 a.m. in room 233 of the Liberal Arts Building.

For further information about course content, call Chin at 243-2463. For information about fees and registration, call the summer program office, 243-2900.
