CSD must provide free services to poor

By Lisa Meister

Kaimin Reporter

If UM's Communications Sciences and Disorders department is eliminated next year, the university would have to make up for 11 years of free service that the clinic must still provide, the CSD clinic coordinator said recently.

A provision of the $250,000 Hill-Burton Act grant used to build the clinic in 1979 stated that for 20 years the clinic would offer free services to people who could not afford to pay.

If the department is eliminated next year, the university would have to account for the 11 years that remain, clinic coordinator Beverly Reynolds said.

"I'm not sure how they plan to deal with that," she said. "I don't think they can just default."

Eliminating a medical facility is more complicated than an academic department, she said, and the administration does not seem to be considering that.

According to a program policy notice from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, if a facility is closed within the 20 years, the government could reclaim a "proportionate share" of the value of the facility at that time.

The regulations do not say exactly how much the penalty would be, but do give a formula for figuring the penalty. Using the formula, if the grant paid 15 percent of the clinic construction cost, the penalty would be 15 percent of the present value of the clinic.

Reynolds said she does not know how much the construction cost of the building was, but the grant was for $250,000.

UM also has the option of selling the clinic, and the new owner would assume responsibility.

Also, according to the regulations, if there is "good cause," the government could waive the right to claim a penalty. The term "good cause" is not defined.

UM Assistant Provost Don Spencer, who recommended that CSD be eliminated, said he was "unaware of the details" of the Hill-Burton grant.

UM President James Koch said the CSD department had "never mentioned" the 20-year obligation to him, and he was not aware of it.

"Certainly somebody should know," Reynolds said. "We've made no attempt to keep this a secret."

Reynolds sent information about the grant regulations to central administration when CSD was considered for elimination two years ago, she said.

"We're certainly going to point it out to them again," she said.

Sylvia Weisenburger, the acting vice president for finance/administration, said she knew about the grant because she worked with the clinic four or five years ago to make sure the grant regulations were met. But "in terms of what was done by Provost Spencer and others in making recommendations," she said, "I don't know."

"I can't believe it was overlooked," she added.

James Flightner, the acting dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, said he has asked the CSD department to prepare a list of the regulations for him.

University Legal Counsel Joan Newman would not give an opinion of the regulations. She said she and the administration are waiting for the CSD department to bring them the information.

Koch added, "I had sort of assumed that if it was important to them they'd do it."

ASUM petitioner files complaint about inefficiency

By Bethany McLaughlin

Kaimin Reporter

An organizer of a petition to oust ASUM officials is sending a complaint to the ASUM election committee because the names on the document haven't been verified yet, he said Monday.

Mike Mathison, the former director of the Student Legislative Action center, said the petition he submitted on April 12 required ASUM to hold a recall election in April.

It is now May and ASUM has failed to act on the petition and this shows a "serious inability" of ASUM's officials to act efficiently, Mathison said.

The petition, which was signed by 410 students, states that ASUM must hold an election to determine if a new ASUM election should be held. The petition drive started after the ASUM president and vice president testified against negative funding for MontPIRG in front of the Board of Regents.

The ASUM Senate voted in March to support MontPIRG's funding system and Mathison called the testimonies of the officers a serious breach in leadership.

ASUM President Aaron Aylsworth said he spoke against the negative funding because MontPIRG is required to get signatures from a majority of students supporting the funding and they failed to do so.

MontPIRG's funding was reversed to a positive checkoff at the regents' meeting.

Aylsworth said Monday that Mathison's demands for an April election were ridiculous. ASUM received the petition on April 12 and that is only 16 working days to validate the document and have it approved by the constitution review board, Aylsworth said.

Aylsworth said Mathison should know the demand for an April election is "unreasonable."

Mathison said he hopes his letter to the election committee will spur some action on the petition. If it doesn't, he is prepared to go before the Board of Regents and complain.

Because of a resolution passed by the ASUM Senate, all petition signatures have to be verified by the registrar's office.

ASUM Senator John Pierce, who is on the petition verification committee, said he brought the petition to Registrar Phil Bain for verification last week.

Bain said that he hasn't done anything with the petition because he doesn't know if ASUM wants it verified that the signatures are students or ASUM fee-paying students. ASUM fee-paying students are students registered for seven or more credits.

Pierce said he will get in touch with Bain today and tell him ASUM wants it verified, and that all signatures are ASUM fee-paying students.

Bain said this process could be fairly time consuming.

After this is done the petition will probably go to the constitutional review board, which will decide if an election can be held in May.

Tragedy strikes America's funny pages

A national tragedy equalling, if not surpassing, some of history's greatest goofs is upon us.

A tragedy that will reach far into the future and will touch every American citizen as well as every American pet.

A tragedy that will change our country, our continent and our planet. Perhaps it will even change our solar system.

A great comic strip, tragically, is being slowly, inhumanely put to sleep.

Bloom County's founding father, Berke Breathed, has announced that as of Aug. 6, 1989, he will no longer draw Opus, Milo, Hodge-Podge, Portnoy, Binkley, Oliver, Steve, Bill, Rosebud and the rest of the gang.

Breathed, citing comic stretch marks of all things says his strip is getting old and he wants to bury it before it becomes too "ripe."

More precisely, Breathed said in his announcement Monday in the Washington Post that "A good comic strip is no more eternal than a ripe melon."

"The ugly truth is that in most cases, comics age less gracefully than their creators. 'Bloom County' is retiring before the stretch marks show," his announcement said.

Granted, it's the 31-year-old Breathed's right to stop doodling, but does he have any idea how bad his timing is?

Does he realize that Dan Quayle is still vice president? And that Dan is married to Marilyn? Is he aware that Star Wars is still a reality? Or that Donald Trump still has far too much money? The man is leaving behind classic comic cannon fodder without batting an eye.

More importantly, does he have any idea how many people depend on his cast of characters to keep them humored and informed? How does he expect the average American to survive on a diet of "Garfield" and "Family Circus"?

Most of us are still recovering from the shock of "Far Side" creator Gary Larson's one-year hiatus from our comic pages. Sure his reruns are still slightly funny, but they are just reruns.

Larson, however, will eventually continue creating his one-panel comic.

But next fall we'll no longer be able to watch and read as Opus searches for his mother or Oliver deletes New Zealand's credit rating. We'll no longer be able to follow the Meadow Party in its eternal quest for the presidency or Steve Dallas' eternal quest for the perfect babe.

Even worse, the comic-page society is losing one of its most upstanding citizens — Bill the Cat.

So, with that fine upstanding feline in mind, we selected a quote from "Bloom County" to say our farewell to Breathed.

"AACKTHPTH!"

Abortion: Know the facts

Abortion. Probably one of the most powerful words in the English language. To some this word is synonymous with murder. To others, it is a legal right to privacy. Many of my esteemed peers have tackled this subject in other columns and in editorials, either vehemently defending one side or the other. That is not my purpose today. What I want to do is just open our eyes to this controversial subject and maybe help you make your own decision about how you feel about abortion, away from all of the hype, propaganda and misinformation.

Abortion, as defined by The Merriam-Webster Dictionary, is an induced expulsion of a fetus. Plainly put, there have been millions of these "induced expulsions" since abortion was legalized by the Supreme Court's 1973 decision in the Roe vs. Wade case. This, I suppose, sounds a little sickening, even to pro-choice advocates. But, on the other side of the coin, there were millions of illegal abortions done, often in very poor conditions and often endangering the life of the mother, before Roe vs. Wade.

The number of abortions performed each year in the United States has leveled off at about 1.6 million, or about 30 percent of all pregnancies. But, it is not as if we live in the only country in the world where abortions are performed. In Canada, 14 percent of all pregnancies are terminated, while in Japan 27 percent and in the Soviet Union 68 percent of the fetuses are forcibly expelled. But these are just numbers.

Pro-life forces want all of these abortions to be known as murders, and they want the killing stopped. Pro-choice people want the right to define when the fetus is actually a baby, and they want the woman and her doctor to decide whether to abort the fetus. Sixty percent of the country agrees with them.

We must understand that there is a great difference between beliefs and laws. Although more than 50 percent of people think that abortion is wrong, including some pro-choicers, 62 percent oppose limiting a woman's right to have an abortion. Pro-life activists think that outlawing abortion is not only our moral duty, but will greatly curb the number of abortions being done. Pro-choice people say illegalizing abortions will just bring them back to the alleys.

I guess the group of people who are most concerned that Roe vs. Wade will be overturned are the women in this country who fear "surprise," or unwanted pregnancies. Most of these women — 81 percent of them — are unmarried at the time and 62 percent are under age 25. Do we, as a society, have the right to demand that these women have their babies? Or should we leave this often painful decision in the hands of the possible future mother? Is taking this right away from a woman saying to her that our society cannot and will not trust her judgement?

I'm sure we all have people in our lives who have been faced with this decision, especially living in this college environment. Even as their dearest friends, do you think you would find it easy to tell them what is the right thing to do, or even feel you are in any position to say anything at all? Or do you feel that it is your duty to tell them what is right?

I definitely do not have the answers, and it seems to bother me that so many people think they do. I hope I have just cleared up the air a little by presenting a few facts and asking some questions that I feel must be asked. For once my column was not made to offend my reader but to demand of him that he think before he is absolutely sure.

Ex-committee member to file grievance

By Lisa Meister
Kaimin Reporter

A UM graduate student says the decision to remove her from UM's retrenchment committee was "inappropriate," and she plans to file a grievance with UM's student complaint officer.

"I was judged on entirely different standards than the rest of the committee," said Lynn Israel, a graduate student in public administration.

Israel was dismissed from the committee because she has an undergraduate degree in religious studies, one of the programs targeted in UM President James Koch's retrenchment plans.

But philosophy department chairman Albert Borgmann and Professor Burke Townsend were allowed to remain on the committee, although religious studies Professor Paul Dietrich would be transferred to philosophy under the retrenchment plan.

The faculty contract states, "No member (of the retrenchment committee) shall be from any unit affected by the President's retrenchment plan."

A contract compliance committee comprising members of the University Teachers Union and UM administrators decided that Israel's degree made her "from" the religious studies department.

"I have a problem with the interpretation of the language," Israel said.

The retrenchment would have "absolutely no effect on me whatsoever because I'm already a graduate student" in a different program, she said.

"I think in a lot of ways they just don't want someone who asks questions," Israel said.

Debra Cox, a graduate student in law and a member of the retrenchment committee, attended the contract compliance committee meetings as a student representative.

"I think there's no doubt in anyone's mind that everyone on campus is affected" by the proposed program cuts, she said. "But we need to start with a (retrenchment) committee as close to the appearance of unbiased as we can have.

"Even though Lynn could be unbiased --and I have every reason to believe that she is --there is the potential for the appearance of bias," Cox said.

The compliance committee also decided that the philosophy department would not be affected by the addition of one faculty member.

"I wouldn't have had any problem if everyone had been treated the same," Israel said. But "if I'm being judged on my past records, I think the same standards should apply all the way around."

UM Legal Counsel Joan Newman, who is a member of the compliance committee, said, "My original position ... was that the retrenchment committee is looking at people to be terminated."

But after discussion, she said, the committee decided that 'affected' could mean positively or negatively.

And "with the philosophy department there would be no effect," she added.

"The fact that a student is in Lynn's position is too bad," Newman said, "but she really doesn't have an objection."

ASUM President Aaron Aylsworth, said "we'll have to see if her appeal is successful." If not, Galen Hollenbaugh, a sophomore in political science, would be appointed in her place.

UM may acquire island mansion if funds can be found

By Bethany McLaughlin
Kaimin Reporter

UM may become the proud owner of an island mansion if someone can be found to purchase the home for the university at a reduced rate, UM President James Koch said Monday.

Koch said that Dr. Bruce Vorhauer, the inventor of the contraceptive sponge, is willing to sell his Salmon Lake island property to UM at a reduced rate if the university can find a buyer.

The 10-bedroom, 14-bathroom house, which sits on an island in Salmon Lake, is worth between $5 and $7 million, Koch said.

Vorhauer may be willing to sell the home to a buyer who will donate it to the university for about half of the appraised price, Koch said.

But, UM will acquire the home only

"It can be used by a small group of guests who want to think great thoughts in a lovely area."

— James Koch

if a plan that is not financially penalizing to Vorhauer can be found.

No one has yet offered to purchase the home for UM although Koch said he is looking for interested parties.

Without buyers, the plan is "still in the great thoughts department," Koch said.

If people are found to purchase the

UM career fair helps teachers find jobs

Future teachers and their prospective bosses meet during the Educators' Career Fair in the Adams Field House. School districts from 19 states were represented Monday and will also meet today.

CSD graduates may get 10 to 12 job offers

By Tina Madson
Kaimin Reporter

The fourth annual Education Career Fair will help 15 to 20 percent of the teachers who attend find jobs, UM's director of career services said yesterday.

Don Hjelmseth said the fair, which started Monday and will end today, has representatives from 150 school districts and 19 states. "There are only 10 fairs in the nation that are this large," he said.

Hjelmseth added that 1,200 teachers from around the country registered for this year's fair, which is being sponsored by UM's Office of Career Services.

Teachers with a degree in communication sciences and disorders will get from 10 to 12 job offers, he said.

Teachers who are fresh out of college, unemployed or want to relocate are the mix of candidates who attend the fair, Hjelmseth said.

— Don Hjelmseth

"Montana has got some real money problems," he said and there are a lot of Montana teachers who want to relocate because they've been underpaid for years.

He said California school districts offer starting salaries of $25,000 or more, while Montana has an average starting salary of only $15,800.

Last year 120 school districts and 1,100 teachers with degrees from 400 different universities attended the fair, Hjelmseth said.

Home searched in tree-spiking case

By Philip C. Johnson
Kaimin Reporter

U.S. Forest Service and law enforcement officials searched a house and three vehicles at 834 Sherwood St. last Saturday afternoon in an attempt to uncover evidence in a tree-spiking case.

Bill Haskins, a graduate student in environmental studies and a member of the EVST Advocates, which co-sponsored a recent tree-spiking event at UM, said some of the residents at that address are UM students, but he refused to give their names.

Haskins said his name appeared on the warrant, but he hasn't lived at the house for several months and hasn't been contacted by any law-enforcement officials.

John Larson, the U.S. magistrate who signed the search warrant, said federal investigators have "sealed" the warrant and until it is returned to the federal clerk's office, the warrant isn't public information.

According to a Missoulian article, Tom King, director of law enforcement for the Northern Region of the Forest Service in Missoula, said officers obtained a search warrant to check the house and vehicles at 834 Sherwood St.

King would not say what tree-spiking incident the search was related to, but he acknowledged that the Idaho County sheriff from Grangeville, Idaho, participated in the search along with Missoula County sheriff's deputies and Missoula police officers.

Forest Service officials received a letter last week say-

Science fiction convention begins Friday

By Matt B. Walen
for the Kaimin

It's time for area science fiction gamers to gather, swap tales of exciting adventures of the past year, and exhibit some of their gaming ability.

Yes, once again it's time for the Missoula Science Fiction Convention, now in its fourth year. Miscon 4 will be held this weekend, May 5-7 from 10 a.m. to late at night in the Holiday Inn, 200 S. Pattee St.

Miscon 4 will offer four distinct themes at this year's convention, including writing, art, fans and gaming.

Writing workshops and book signings will be included because Science Fiction and Fantasy books are now accepted in the literary world. They have experienced a popularity boom in the last 30 years, and have been popular areas at past conventions.

A number of authors from the Northwest will be attending Miscon 4. The guest this year is Vonda N. McIntyre, who wrote the novel versions of the screenplays for three of the Star Trek movies: "The Wrath of Khan," "The Search for Spock" and "The Voyage Home."

One of her recent works, "Dreamsnake," won both the Nebula Award and the Hugo award for best science fiction novel.

The art portion will include science fiction and fantasy art in varied forms, and there will be a number of artists at the convention.

One art guest is Dan "Monster Man" Reeder, a high school math teacher in Seattle, Wash., who makes paper and cloth mache sculptures of monsters.

The fan events are general fun for convention-goers. There will be 17 hucksters selling their goods, ranging from new and used books to jewelry, swords and armor. The fan guest is Glen "Scruffy" Hammer, a native Montanan who will add local flavor to Miscon 4.

There will be dances held both nights. Another attraction will be the 24-hour video room, which will be showing old and new movies. If the action gets to be too much, just step into the hospitality room and take a breather.

Gaming events are the major reason sci-fi conventions are held, and it's a good opportunity for gamers to get together and exchange ideas. Convention gaming takes many forms, from role playing to strategic and computer gaming. During Miscon 4, there will be various role-playing tournaments. The gaming guest is local gamer Ray Beauvais.

For more information about the writer workshop, call John Wilson at 549-9591. For information about the art show, contact Kim Robertson at 728-4255 or Scott Whitmore, the head publicist, at 549-9621.

Cost is $20 for a weekend pass or $12 for a one-day pass.

Richie Cole brings hot jazz to Missoula

By Karl Rohr
Entertainment Editor

Piston-powered saxophonist Richie Cole brings his high energy jazz show to the Northern Pacific tonight and Wednesday.

Cole, who calls his live shows "Alto Madness," has recorded more than 20 albums for a variety of labels, and he has been a sideman for Tom Waits, the Manhattan Transfer, Nancy Wilson, Boots Randolph, Buddy Rich and Eddie Jefferson.

Since his last Missoula appearance in 1985, he has been featured on the covers of "Down Beat Magazine," "Jazz Times" and "Swing Journal."

Cole is obtaining international fame, and he recently performed in Russia at the Leningrad Jazz Festival. He has been international host for the Kajanni Festival in Finland for the past six years.

His live shows feature jazz standards and his own compositions, including "Missoula Blues," an impromptu and comic song about life in our beautiful city. Cole is an entertainer as well as a great musician, and he includes humor and energy in his live performances.

Cole's backup band will be the Bozeman-based Neil-Roberty and Edwards trio, the "house band" for the Missoula Blues and Jazz Society's jazz shows. Tickets each night are $8 for Blues and Jazz Society members and $9 for the general public.

Basketball cage camps still have openings

Stew Morrill's Grizzly Cage Camps will feature three sessions in 1989 — the 15th season for the annual basketball camps.

The first session is the 50-50 camp from June 18 to 23; followed by the Competition Camp from July 6 to 9 and the Day Camp from August 7 to 11.

The camps will feature UM's coaching staff, along with numerous coaches from the region.

Several former Grizzly standouts will be on hand, including last season's seniors, Nate DuChesne, K.C. McGowan, Tony Reed and Wayne Tinkle.

Each camper will receive a Baden regulation-size basketball, a t-shirt and a poster.

The 50-50 camp is the traditional overnight camp and consists of competition and instruction. It is for boys entering grades seven through 12.

The cost is $215 for full room and board and $130 for commuter campers.

Competition Camp was a huge success in its first attempt last year and featured the best players in the state. While primarily geared toward upper classmen, it is open to boys entering grades eight through 12.

There are numerous individual and team competitions, and awards will be given in each competition. Cost ranges from $105 to $155.

Day Camp is geared for younger players entering grades three through eight. Boys from grades three through five will attend from 8:30 a.m. to noon, while grades six through eight will be in session from 1:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Cost of the Day Camp is $59.

For further information call 243-5331 or write: Grizzly Cage Camp, Adams Field House, University of Montana, Missoula, MT, 59812.

you miss her sparkling sense of humor. She misses you and your jokes. Even the bad ones. That's one good reason to call long distance. AT&T Long Distance Service is another good reason. Because it costs less than you think to hear your grandmother start to giggle before you even get to the punch line.

So whenever you miss her laughter, bring a smile to her face with AT&T. Reach out and touch someone.*

Schmitt triumphs again

By Mark Hofferber
Kaimin Sports Reporter

For UM senior hurdler Kris Schmitt, winning has become a habit.

Last weekend at the Pelleur Invitational track meet in Spokane, Schmitt picked up two more first places, winning the 100-hurdles and the 200-meter race.

Teams from Montana, Idaho, Eastern Washington, Community Colleges of Spokane, Whitworth, Gonzaga and North Idaho competed in the non-scoring meet.

Schmitt ran the 100-hurdles in 14.38 to set a meet record and ran the 200 in 24.86 to capture that event.

UM would have been in good position to win the meet if it had been scored. UM placed first in 10 events.

Cristi Weyer won the 400 with a personal best time of 58.85; Michelle Barrier won the 800-meter race in 2:16.42; Vonda Harmon won the 1,500 in 4:42.3 and Amy Williams set a meet record in the 5,000 with a time of 17:47.2. UM also won the 1,600 relay in 3:56.7.

In the field events, Kaipo Wallwork won the discus, Mindy Johnson won the long jump and Holly Maloney won the triple jump.

The men's team also fared well in the meet, winning four events. Joe Beatty won the 800 in 1:52.19; Leif Larsen won the 5,000 in 14:49.6; Blane Mortensen won 110-hurdles in 15.28 and John Reed won the triple jump with a leap of 46-3.5.

UM track teams will travel to Pullman next weekend to compete in the Washington State Invitational.

Ceramics artist to visit UM

By Heidi Pullar
for the Kaimin

The UM Art Department is mixing up 600 pounds of clay and roasting a turkey in a kiln to welcome a visiting ceramics artist who will give a workshop Wednesday and Thursday at UM.

Don Reitz, honored in 1983 by "Ceramics Monthly" magazine as "one of the 12 greatest living ceramic artists worldwide," will demonstrate throwing and hand building large platters, vases and household dishes.

The demonstrations, sponsored by the UM Art Department, and funded in part by the Jim and Jane Dew Guest Artist Fund, will be held in the UM Art Annex 10 a.m. to noon and 2 to 4 p.m., Wednesday, and 9 a.m. to noon Thursday.

A slide lecture of Reitz' works will also be presented Wednesday at 8 p.m., in Social Science room 356.

The workshop is free for UM students. General admission is $10 Wednesday and $5 Thursday.

Reitz, who shows his work internationally, taught art at the University of Wisconsin from 1965 to 1988.

The UM Art Department will end the two-day workshop with a free potluck featuring the kiln-roasted turkey and live music at 7 p.m., Thursday at the Art Annex.

For more information, contact UM Art Professor Beth Lo at 243-6476.

home for the university, an additional $1 million would be needed for the upkeep of the facility, Koch said. It will take a substantial amount of money to keep the house in shape and to pay the servants living in the complex, he said.

Koch said he has spoken to Vorhauer about donating the $1 million endowment if the house is purchased, but nothing is firm yet.

If the home is purchased for the university, Koch said, it would be used for departmental retreats and other university conferences.

"It can be used by a small group of guests who want to think great thoughts in a lovely area," Koch said.

Koch said Vorhauer let university officials use the home in the past and it has provided a very relaxing atmosphere for conferences. Based on this, it would be nice property for the university to own, he said.

Vorhauer has been very generous to the university in the past, Koch said, and he is extending another courtesy to the university with this offer.

The home, which is about one hour northeast of Missoula, was built by Vorhauer after his contraceptive device hit the market in 1983. According to a July 1987 issue of Forbes magazine, Vorhauer's invention was the top selling contraceptive on the market in 1986.

Missoula.

An investigation by the Forest Service determined that many trees in the proposed sale area had been spiked, some as high as 150 feet off the ground.

No further search warrants are anticipated, King said, and evidence collected will be turned over to the U.S. attorney in Idaho.

If enough evidence is collected, the U.S. attorney could convene a federal grand jury to determine if charges should be filed.

Idaho's timber industry has contributed over $4,000 for a reward fund to find the people who spiked the trees.

The Intermountain Forest Industry Association has pledged a minimum of $4,000 to the fund and the Clearwater National Forest has donated $1,000.

Company gives $11,000 to Mansfield center

UM's Maureen and Mike Mansfield Center will receive an $11,000 gift from the Tokyo-based International Education System on Wednesday.

Tsuyoshi Ogura, executive director of IES, will present the gift during a public presentation at 1:30 p.m. on the fourth floor of the Mansfield Library. The gift is the first of many, Mansfield Foundation President Frank Dale said.

The private organization has told the Mansfield Center it is going to make more contributions, but there hasn't been a commitment as to how much, Dale added.

IES is giving money to the Mansfield Center to further international understanding through its conferences, he said.

IES promotes international understanding through college student exchanges, as well as academic programs.

Dale and Mansfield Center Director Paul Lauren will accept the gift.

Retrenchment suggestion notice

The Retrenchment Review Committee is soliciting ideas and suggestions from students, staff and faculty concerning President James Koch's proposals for reorganizing and eliminating some UM departments.

The committee has less than 40 days left to evaluate Koch's proposals and submit its own recommendations to the Board of Regents.

Suggestions and comments should be submitted in writing to Ron Perrin, Department of Political Science, no later than Monday, May 8.
