ADLERS RECEIVE FULBRIGHT AWARDS TO NEW ZEALAND

Richard R. Adler and his wife, Carol Adler, have both received Fulbright awards to New Zealand, but one will be on North Island and the other on South Island.

Richard Adler, professor of English at the University of Montana and co-director of the Montana Writing Project involving English teachers throughout the state, will be a Fulbright professor at Victoria University, Wellington. During his stay, from March to August, he will teach Victoria University faculty in all disciplines how to help students improve their writing.

He is currently on sabbatical leave to write a book on the teaching of writing.

Carol Adler, a member of the staff of Lewis & Clark School, received a Fulbright award to do research on the development of writing skills in 11- and 12-year-olds. She will leave for Dunedin at the end of the school term this spring.
