UM OFFERS COMPUTERS IN EDUCATION SEMINAR

A computers-in-education seminar designed for persons interested in teaching with microcomputers will be offered by the University of Montana mathematics department beginning Jan. 16.

The seminar will discuss ways in which microcomputers are being used in western Montana school systems, including smaller schools with tight budgets.

Topics will include "How to Set Up a Computer Literacy Class with No Machines and No Books," "Apple Computer Lab" and Copyrights and Other Legal Issues."

Sessions will be held on Mondays at 4 p.m. in Room 305 of the Mathematics Building. The seminar is free for those not wishing to earn university credit.

For further information call UM mathematics department Professor Johnny Lott, 243-2403, or the math department office, 243-5311.
