Walter F. Murphy and C. Herman Pritchett, Court, Judges, and Politics, 4th ed., 1986

Class Work

The purposes of this course are to provide an introduction to the workings of the judicial branch of government and to explore the role of the federal judiciary in the American political system. Students will be expected to read approximately 15 pages in the text for each class meeting and be prepared to participate in discussion. The class format will be discussion rather than lecture. The instructor will act as discussion leader.

Term Paper

Each student is required to write a term paper of no more than seven double-spaced pages of actual text. Suggestions for term paper topics are attached; the instructor must approve each student's selection. The introductory paragraph of the term paper is due on February 27. It should include a thesis statement, overview of the paper's organization, and discussion of the research method and sources to be used. Because PSc 370 is a "writing" course, the instructor will correct the introductory paragraph and return it for revision and inclusion in the final paper, which is due on April 29. Documentation of sources used can be included in parenthetical text notes tied to the bibliography, footnotes and a bibliography, or end notes and a bibliography.

Examination

There will be two examinations, a midterm and a final. The final examination will cover course material from the midterm examination to the end of the quarter. Both examinations will use definitions and short essays. The midterm examination will be held on March 13, and the final examination is scheduled for Monday, May 12 at 8:00 a.m.
