Course Purpose: This course is designed to help students increase their knowledge and understanding of Latin American countries and the issues in Latin American politics from both historical and contemporary perspectives.

Course Objectives: Upon successful completion of this course, students should be able to: 1) demonstrate factual knowledge of Latin American politics, 2) analyze issues critical in contemporary Latin America, 3) take a position supported with theory and evidence in a discussion regarding Latin American countries, and 4) prepare a comparative research paper on Latin American politics.

No assumptions are made regarding students' familiarity with Latin America; However, a willingness to work hard to understand Latin American politics is required. This includes that students read all assigned readings carefully and analytically and come to class prepared for discussion.

The major issues that we will be focusing on are democracy, development, political violence, nationalism, and sovereignty. In order to understand the complexity of Latin American politics, we will approach the problems through two dimensions: through its internal politics and its position in the international system.

Required Books:

Thomas E. Skidmore and Peter H. Smith, Modern Latin America. Fourth Edition. Oxford University Press, 1997.

Fernando Henrique Cardoso and Enzo Faletto, Dependency and Development in Latin America. University of California Press, 1979.

Barry Ames, Political Survival: Politicians and Public Policy in Latin America. University of California Press, 1987.

Scott Mainwaring, Guillermo O'Donnell, and J. Samuel Valenzuela, ed., Issues in Democratic Consolidation: The New South American Democracies in Comparative Perspective. University of Notre Dame Press, 1992.

Additional readings are available through the Library's Reserve Room.

Assignments:

1. Read carefully and critically assigned readings and come to class prepared to discuss the issues raised in those readings.
2. One short essay (3-5 pages) outlining and assessing the main arguments of the reading assigned for the day for which students choose to write. This essay must be presented and turned in at the beginning of the class.
3. A mid-term exam. Study questions will be handed out during the class before the day of the exam.
4. A final exam. Study questions will be handed out during the last class meeting.
5. A term paper dealing with issues in contemporary Latin American politics. Students must obtain instructor's approval for the theme of the paper by Thursday, November 5. The paper must be typed, double-spaced, and approximately 15 pages in length, and turned in no later than Thursday, December 3.

NOTE: Please be aware that in order to maintain 'fairness,' late papers will be severely graded down. Specifically, grades will be reduced one-third of a letter grade per day that the assignment is late. For example, an assignment turned in one day late will go from a potential A to a maximum of A-. Two days late will result in a maximum grade of B+, etc. If you have a legitimate reason for not being able to hand in your paper on time, please come to explain to me before the due date why you are unable to do so.

Grading:

	% of Final Grade
Essay and class participation	20%
Mid-term exam	20%
Final exam	30%
Term paper	30%
