Goals:

Yoga has a long history of transmission that is interwoven with rapid remembering and forgetting. This transmission of knowledge is further compounded by religious systems, geographical preferences, and generational flavors. Today the Yoga industry in the US is worth billions and increasing at a rapid pace. So, what is Yoga? How did it become so popular? Is there an unbroken lineage of Yoga? Why is it so popular?

This class in no sense seeks to provide a single definition to describe Yoga or define its authoritative canon. Instead, it provides the student with a broad understanding of the term beginning from the historical East, to the transmission in the West, and finally looking at Modern Postural Yoga in both West and the east. We will trace the history of yoga from ancient texts like the Yoga Sutra to modern practices developed by innovators like Bikram and Iyengar. We will also examine the forms yoga has taken in contemporary western society and the varied responses its popularity has inspired. Along with readings, lectures, films, and discussions, the coursework will include the actual practice of different styles of yoga led by a certified instructor.

Learning Outcomes:

1. Identify and define the historical contexts and the human actors that have shaped the development of the yoga tradition from ancient India to the contemporary United States

2. Describe key elements of the biography, philosophy, and historical significance of significant figures like Patanjali, Yogananda, and Krishnamacharya and key works like the Bhagavad Gita, Yoga Sutra, and so forth.
3. Differentiate and understand the relationship of the diverse ideas and practice that have gone under the name “yoga” over the centuries.
4. Analyze and describe current and recent debates about what relationship, if any, modern yoga has with Hinduism.

Required Texts:

1. Barbara Stoler Miller, trans. Yoga: Discipline of Freedom: The Yoga Sutra Attributed to Patanjali. Berkeley: University of California Press, 1996.
2. Mark Singleton. Yoga Body: The Origins of Modern Yoga Practice. Oxford: Oxford University Press, 2010.
3. Ed. David Gordon White, Yoga in Practice. New Jersey: Princeton University Press, 2012.

Recommended Texts:

1. Gavin Flood and Charles Martin. The Bhagavad Gita. Norton Critical Editions. New York: Norton, 2014.
2. James Mallinson and Mark Singleton. Roots of Yoga. Penguin classics, 2017.

Course Contract

By signing up for this course and accepting this syllabus, the student understands that this is an historically oriented, academic study of Yoga whose reading and lecture content may sometimes conflict with the present understandings of some contemporary adherents of the traditions’. This is an implicit but also crucial point, as the course’s success will depend largely, if not entirely, upon how effectively we can all create together a “safe space” of intellectual freedom, historical inquiry, and interpersonal honesty. I will do everything in my power to create such a space. By accepting this syllabus, the student agrees to do the same, or at least acknowledges that he or she understands the basic principle of the course. Put metaphorically but not inaccurately, this is a classroom at a secular research university, not a church, temple, mosque, gurdwara, synagogue, or Yoga studio. The rest follows from there.

Expectations:

A. YOURS: As students in a 300-level course, you should expect to do quite a bit of reading—usually around 50 pages a week, sometimes less, sometimes more. I expect you to be present at every class, prepared to discuss the readings.

B. MINE: Here is what you may expect of me: I will return emails promptly (within 12 hours Monday-Thursday and within 24 hours if they are sent any other time). Since I am in Houston (CST), I urge you to write to me to schedule virtual office hours. If it is urgent, please feel free to text. Just remember to add the Class No. or give me some reference point. I have a large student body in University of North Carolina-Wilmington and at Rice University.

Grades:

A. Participation (weighted as 25% of your grade):

1. 5 written “Reflections” (2-3 Pages): Completion of and reflection upon the reading assignment for the week. day, as well as consistent attendance and oral participation in regular discussions.

2. Attendance: Needless to say, you are expected to attend every class meeting unless you have a health or a family emergency. Missed classes will negatively affect your participation grade, even if you turn in all your discussion questions. On the other hand, if you do not do exceptionally well on your discussion questions but you are very engaged in class, it will positively affect your score.

B. Group assignment (25% of your grade): The groups will have two or three members. Since we are a small group, please email me your group composition by October 15, 2018. You will select a topic and present on Nov. 1 (Thursday). The presentation must be emailed no later than Oct. 30 (Tuesday) by 5 PM. Be creative.

C. 2,500-3,500-word Research Paper (50% of your grade): Your paper will be due on or before December 11 at 11:59 PM (MST) via email.

1. Style: You will use Chicago-style footnote citations and include a bibliography with at least three sources from outside class.

2. Topics: Here are three sample suggested topics. But if you have another idea, let me know.

- a. Yogic Ideas of the Body
- b. Critiques of Modern Western Yoga
- c. Yoga in Popular Culture

Yoga section of the Oxford Bibliography Online for Hinduism can be a great source guide.
