

Class Section

A new addition to the curriculum? No, but the University does offer courses in everything else from Anthropology to Zoology.

U of M students frequent the grill for the Friday-at-Four programs, to study, for a cup of coffee, or for conversation. For many Missoula students the grill provides daily lunches.

Mail from home helps to keep Rosella Voiles and Sue Velde in touch with family and friends while away from home. U of M coeds live in one of four women's dorms—Jesse, Turner, Knowles, or Braniff. Men students may live in Craig-Dunaway, Elrod, Miller, or Aber.

The high enrollment Fall Quarter indicated that every day 6,302 students attended classes. This year on campus there were 2,111 women and 4,191 men. The class breakdown was: 2,094 Freshmen, 1,314 Sophomores, 1,118 Juniors, 1,098 Seniors, and 780 Graduate Students.

Juniors

Still practicing ABC's ?!

The library almost becomes a second home to U of M students. Juniors study even longer hours and classes become more interesting to them as they progress in their respective majors.

Sophomores

A Sophomore's position on campus changes. He is no longer the naive Freshman, but instead has achieved a new sophistication. Yet the Sophomore still seems to be at the end of the line, slowly progressing to the front.

U of M Spars hosted the Region One Convention October 13 and 14. Converging on the Missoula campus were Spars from Montana State, Eastern Montana, College of Great Falls and Jamestown, North Dakota. The girls gathered to share ideas and discuss common problems.

Freshmen

One of the hardest things for a freshman to realize is where his money goes. Quarterly money is paid for that very necessary part of education—books.

The annual fall whitewashing of the "M" is one of the glories of being a freshman. Two beauties model their new white-washed attire.

... and after everything settles down a student takes time for thought.
