COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES

Using a diverse selection of readings representing more than two thousand years of human experience and numerous cultures, we will explore rational/quantitative, relational/sympathetic, sensory/empirical, and narrative/mythological ways of knowing. In the process we will become acquainted with some of the great ideas about the divine, the natural world, and the self in solitude and society. We will be alert for cracks in our apparent certainties and consolations in the midst of our doubts. As we look into these texts, we will also consider the ethical implications that flow from their various perspectives. Informed by class readings, plenary lectures, and discussions, students will work toward a deeper understanding of their own ways of knowing.

REQUIRED TEXTS

The Book of Job. Trans. Stephen Mitchell, Harper Perennial

Tao Te Ching. Trans. Stephen Mitchell, Harper Perennial

Lysistrata by Aristophanes. Trans. Douglas Parker, Signet

Three Dialogues by Plato. Trans. F. J. Church, Library of Liberal Arts

Discourse on Method by Rene Descartes. Trans. Laurence Lafleur, Libr. of Lib. Arts

Assignments and Grades

Attendance and Active Participation: In a seminar your attendance and active participation is vital to the other students and the educational process and therefore expected. If you must miss class, notify the instructor in advance by email or in person. Unexcused absences will affect your grade (5 or more unexcused absences result in course failure).

Written Assignments: Ways of Knowing is a writing course (W). This requires that you pay attention to the quality of your writing and the thinking that underlies it. Therefore, you will write four (4) essays, one of which will be your final essay. You will receive prompts for these essays well in advance that will address some of the most challenging themes of the course. You also have the option of re-writing one (1) of your first two essays with the goal of receiving a higher grade. The re-write must be arranged in advance with your professor.

Ways of Knowing Grades

Your grade will rely on the quality of your writing and critical thinking in response to the four essay questions and one re-write. In the event that your grade hovers between one grade and another, your active and insightful participation in class and noticeable signs of improvement over the course of the semester will influence your final grade. Each essay, including the final one, will carry equal weight (4 x 25 points = 100 points).

Papers are due in class on or before the date listed in the syllabus. Unless you have made a prior agreement, we will take off one grade level (A becomes A-) for each class day an assignment is late.

Students with Disabilities

Students with disabilities may request reasonable modifications by contacting me. The University of Montana assures equal access to instruction through collaboration between students with disabilities, instructors, and Disability Services for Students (DSS). "Reasonable" means the University permits no fundamental alterations of academic standards or retroactive modifications. (For other options see <http://life.umt.edu/dss/>). Students with disabilities may obtain assistance with the registration process and the relocation of classes through Disability Service in Lommasson Center 154 (406)243-2243 VOICEITDD.

Academic Honesty and Plagiarism

All students must practice academic honesty. Academic misconduct is subject to an academic penalty by the course instructor and/or disciplinary sanction by the University. All students should be familiar with the Student Conduct Code, avail for review at http://life.umt.edu/vpsa/student_conduct.php. We define plagiarism as representing another's work as your own. It is strictly forbidden; students must always remain careful to acknowledge another person's wording and ideas in written work.
