

2000

A Guide to Writing Letters to the Editor: Expressing Your Opinion to the Public Effectively

Tom Seekins Ph.D.

University of Montana - Research and Training Center on Disability in Rural Communities

Stephen B. Fawcett

University of Kansas

University of Montana Rural Institute

scholarworks-reports@mso.umt.edu

Let us know how access to this document benefits you.

Follow this and additional works at: https://scholarworks.umt.edu/ruralinst_independent_living_community_participation

 Part of the Demography, Population, and Ecology Commons

Recommended Citation

Seekins, Tom Ph.D.; Fawcett, Stephen B.; and Rural Institute, University of Montana, "A Guide to Writing Letters to the Editor: Expressing Your Opinion to the Public Effectively" (2000). Independent Living and Community Participation. 19.
https://scholarworks.umt.edu/ruralinst_independent_living_community_participation/19

This Guide (how-to document) is brought to you for free and open access by the Rural Institute for Inclusive Communities at ScholarWorks at University of Montana. It has been accepted for inclusion in Independent Living and Community Participation by an authorized administrator of ScholarWorks at University of Montana. For more information, please contact scholarworks@mail.lib.umt.edu.

2000

A Guide to Writing Letters to the Editor: Expressing Your Opinion to the Public Effectively

One way to express your opinion publicly is through a letter to the editor in your local newspaper. While every letter may not be published, editors pay attention to well-written letters. This is especially true when there are many letters written on the same topic. In turn, elected officials are also influenced by letters newspapers have chosen for publication.

This guide will help you prepare an effective letter to the editor that expresses your opinion on an issue. It includes two letters about a controversial issue and specific guidelines on how to prepare a successful letter yourself.

After you read the guide, prepare a letter yourself. Let a friend read it for clarity. Be sure to sign the letter and list your address – newspapers will not publish anonymous letters.

Your letter can be positive, negative or informative in tone. It can also be emotional or objective. But it should be simple and short – rarely more than 300 words. And, of course, it should reflect your true opinions.

Here is an example of a letter supporting a proposed program

Dear Editor,

The big jump in the cost of heating a house has me concerned. I just got my utility bill in the mail, and I was shocked. Even though the weather has been mild, this bill was as high as any I have seen. I'm worried that some of my friends won't be able to pay their bills when it gets really cold. If I'm not lucky, I may not be able to pay my bill. I want to praise our elected officials for having the courage to try to do something about this problem when other cities and the state government won't because they're afraid of politics. The life-line utility program is a good idea whose time has come. It's getting cold now. We can't afford to wait for every legal opinion in the state. I believe the city should act before it's too late.

Sincerely,
John Doe
Anytown

The University of Montana Rural Institute

RTC
RURAL

Research and Training Center on Disability in Rural Communities

RTC:Rural
52 Corbin Hall
The University of Montana
Missoula, MT 59812
Toll Free: 888.268.2743
Fax: 406.243.2349
TTY: 406.243.4200
rtc rural@ruralinstitute.umt.edu
rtc.ruralinstitute.umt.edu
Alternative formats available

Here is an example of a letter opposing the same program

Dear Editor,

The City Commission is considering increasing everyone's gas utility bills to create a subsidy program for the poor. I am able to pay my own way on a small, fixed income. I haven't used my furnace yet this winter, preferring to wear three woolen sweaters. I am saving so that I can pay the proposed 38 percent increase in gas bills when it REALLY get cold.

I called City Hall to protest and was told, ever so gently, that I was one of those who would be helped by the subsidy. Absolutely not! No self-respecting oldster would accept a dole extorted from other struggling citizens. The churches have prime responsibility in this area. Churches are close to the source and are in a position to locate those actually suffering in the cold.

I am outraged by the proposal to the City Commission.

A.B. Tony
Anytown

Letter Preparation Guide

This guide is designed to help you write a letter to the editor on some issue that concerns you.

- Tell why you are writing the letter. State the problem or issue that concerns you. Example: "The big jump in the cost of heating a house has me concerned. I just got my utility bill in the mail, and I was shocked. Even though the weather has been mild, this bill was as high as any I have seen."
- Tell why this is important. Tell how the problem or issue affects you or others, or tell what will happen if something isn't done. Example: "I'm worried that some of my friends won't be able to pay their bills when it gets really cold. If I'm not lucky, I may not be able to pay my bill."
- Praise or criticize what someone has said or done about the issue. Make a positive or critical statement about a public action related to the issue. Example: "I want to praise our elected officials for having the courage to try to do something about this problem."
- Tell why this is good or bad. Explain your view about why the particular action or comment is good or bad. Example: "Other cities and the state government won't face the problem because they're afraid of the politics."
- State your opinion about what should be done. Explain what you think would work. Example: "This life-line utility program is a good idea whose time has come."
- Make a general recommendation. Say what should be done, by whom and when. Example: "I believe our elected officials should do something."
- Sign the letter. Sign your full name and write the name of the town where you live.
- Send the letter my snail mail or by e-mail.

© 1984, Tom Seekins and Stephen B. Fawcett, Research & Training Center on Independent Living, University of Kansas; funded by a grant (#G008006928) from the National Institute on the Handicapped. Reproduced in 2000 with written permission from the RTC/IL under a grant (#H235K000002) from the U.S. Department of Education's Rehabilitation Services Administration.

For more information, contact:

Tom Seekins, Director, Research and Training Center on Disability in Rural Communities
The University of Montana Rural Institute
52 Corbin, The University of Montana
Missoula, Montana 59812
888-268-2743
406-243-2349 Fax

The University of Montana
RURAL INSTITUTE
*Center for Excellence in Disability Education,
Research, and Service*

The University of Montana