FOR RELEASE FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 13

MSU ZOOLOGY STAFF INCREASED

The addition of two assistant professors to the Montana State University Zoology Dept., Missoula, was announced Thursday by President Carl McFarland.

Dr. Clyde M. Senger will teach parasitology, teach classes in elementary course work and biological science, and develop additional upper-division and graduate courses in zoology. Dr. Barbara J. Howell will teach mammalian physiology and assist in elementary zoology courses.

Dr. Senger received the Ph.D. degree from Utah State Agricultural College, Logan, in September. He holds a B.A. from Reed College in Oregon and an M.S. from Purdue University in Indiana. He did graduate work at the MSU Biological Station at Flathead Lake during the summer of 1953, and at Montana State College, Bozeman, 1954-55. He spent two years as research assistant with Naval Research in Oregon and two years working in the Montana Veterinary Research Laboratory.

Dr. Howell was awarded a Ph.D. by the University of Illinois in June. She received a B.S. from Kent State University, Ohio, and an M.S. from the University of Illinois. While doing graduate work at Illinois, she was a research assistant in field study of survival rations for the U. S. Air Force.
