FOR RELEASE THURSDAY, JANUARY 9

Awards ranging from $1,500 - $2,700 for graduate study at Montana State University, Missoula, during the 1958-59 school year have been announced by Dr. Ellis Waldron, acting dean of the Graduate School.

Nonresident and academic fees will be waived for recipients of these stipends, Dr. Waldron said. Applications should be received by March 15, 1958, he added.

Forty-eight departmental assistantships, carrying stipends of from $1,500 - $1,800, will be given for graduate study in the College of Arts and Sciences. Recipients will serve 10 to 20 hours a week as research, laboratory, or teaching assistants while they are working toward the master's degree. They may carry up to four-fifths of the normal graduate academic program in one of the following fields: humanities and language arts, natural sciences, physical sciences, social sciences.

Assistantships, with stipends of from $1,500 - $2,400, and fellowships, with grants of from $1,700 - $2,700, will be awarded for advanced work in the professional schools. Students selected may work toward the degrees of doctor of education, master of arts in education, or master of education; master of art or master of music; master of science in forestry or master of forestry; master of science in pharmacy; master of science in wildlife technology or in wildlife management; master of arts in journalism; or bachelor of laws.

Application blanks and detailed information may be obtained by writing to Dr. Waldron at Montana State University, Missoula.
