FOR RELEASE SATURDAY, AUGUST 9

Dale Lumsden of Fresno, Calif., winner of one of four $1,000 scholarships awarded by the National Restaurant Foundation, will use the scholarship to work toward a degree in food service management at Montana State University, Missoula, according to Dr. Lendal H. Kotschevar, director of food services at the University.

Dale decided to attend MSU after visiting the campus and learning about the courses and facilities available at the University in the field of food service management, Dr. Kotschevar said.

The 1958 NRF scholarships were awarded on the basis of aptitude and interest in food service, scholastic record, leadership qualifications, character, professional promise, and financial need.

Dale attended the Roosevelt High School, Fresno, where he was a three-year letterman in football and track and served on the school senate as Senator of Publicity. He developed an interest in the quantity food industry while working part-time in a Fresno restaurant.

The National Restaurant Foundation's scholarship activities are patterned after the "Careers for Youth Program" co-sponsored by the National Restaurant Assn. and the H. J. Heinz Co., Dr. Kotschevar said. Fifteen college students are now equipping themselves for future management positions in quantity food service as a result of Heinz awards.

The foundation, established in 1951, launched its scholarship program to aid in the education of college students in the field. Under the program, two young men have completed two years of college at Florida State University.

Other 1958 foundation scholarship winners are Antoinette Miller, Watertown, Mass.; June Panknen, Chicago, Ill.; and James Hyman, Barnet, Tex.
