MISSOULA—The athletic spotlight at Montana State University will switch from football to basketball this weekend, as the Grizzly cagers will play two intersquad games Friday and Saturday evenings in the MSU Fieldhouse.

Coach Frosty Cox said the games will partially determine who will start in Montana's opener Dec. 1 against Idaho at Missoula. "We've got 11 boys of nearly equal ability, and it's been tough deciding who the starters will be."

Listed as starters on the Gold squad are forwards Darroll Dunham, Shelby; and Terry Sorenar, Helena; center Marv Suttles, Chicago; or Duane Ruegsegger, Billings; and guards Dan Balko, Great Falls; and Vince Ignatowicz, Elizabeth, N.J.

White team starters will be forwards Kay Roberts, Newton, Kans.; and Gale Henriksen, Spokane, Wash.; center Dave Shelby, Salem, Ore.; and guards Paul Miller, Newton, Kans., and Mike Allen, Cut Bank.

Cox issued an invitation to western Montana fans to attend the games. University freshmen will play intersquad preliminaries at 6:30 Friday and Saturday nights, and the varsity cagers will take the floor at 8 each evening.
