FOR RELEASE TUESDAY, JUNE 16

The Industrial College of the Armed Forces has assigned four of its instructors as lecturers at the National Aviation Education Workshop, to be in session at Montana State University June 29-July 31, Prof. E. A. Atkinson, director of the MSU summer session, announced Monday.

Other guest lecturers at the workshop will be Col. Harmar D. Denny, Civil Aeronautics Board member; Oscar Bakke, director of the CAB Bureau of Safety, and Col. Carlos Tosti, special assistant to the commander of the USAF Air Research and Development Command.

An added attraction for the some 500 educators and Civil Air Patrol members expected at the workshop will be a series of lectures on the missile industry by Dr. Howard F. Dunholder. He is assistant chief engineer for development of Convair Astronautics and a veteran of the development program for the Air Force's Atlas intercontinental ballistic missile.

Dr. Mervin K. Strickler Jr., CAP chief of aviation education, is director of the workshop, which is sponsored by the Montana Aeronautics Commission, USAF, CAP, and the University.
