Montana State University Press publishes 1957 and 1958 MSU Tax School Proceedings
MISSOULA---A section dealing with taxation problems in Montana, along with extensive chapters on estate planning, are highlights of the 1957 and 1958 MSU Tax School Proceedings, a 483-page book recently published by the Montana University Press.

The book also includes extensive discussion of pension and profit-sharing plans, a number of talks on problems in income taxation and estate planning, and two typical estate problems with suggested solutions, according to Lester R. Rusoff, director of the MSU Tax School, which is sponsored annually by the University Law School.

Rusoff said the volume is particularly valuable to lawyers, insurance underwriters, bankers, trust officers and accountants of the state.

All material in the publication was prepared by tax experts from Seattle, Salt Lake City, New York City, Ohio and a number of cities in Montana, and was included in talks at the two most recent Tax Schools.

The panel on Montana tax problems included talks given by Tom P. Patterson, vice president and counsel of Western Life Insurance Co. of Helena; Hugh D. Galusha, prominent Helena accountant and attorney, and George Bennett, counsel for the Montana Board of Equalization, Helena.

Orders for the $15 volume can be directed to Rusoff at the MSU Law School, the Tax School director added.
