MISSOULA---A four-man Montana University cross-country team will go to Bozeman Saturday for their first meet of the fall, a non-league encounter with Montana State College harriers.

Grizzly coach Harry Adams said he will use Gary Wojtowick, Phil Dwight, Glynn DeVries and Marv Miller against the Bobcat runners. Adams said he had "no idea" of MSC's comparative strength, but felt that veteran Bobcat runner Terry Jensen will be one of the strongest entrants. Wojtowick beat Jensen by about 15 yards in a mile race last spring in Missoula, but Adams cautioned that a cross-country race is a different type of competition.

The Grizzly runners had their first full-scale race of the season last week on the MSU golf course, and Adams said results of the three-mile run were only average.

The Grizzly team will be prepping for the Skyline cross-country championship, slated Nov. 5 at the campus of Colorado State University.

MISSOULA---Tickets for the Grizzly-Bobcat football clash in Missoula Nov. 5 are going at a brisk pace, and MSU ticket officials have predicted a virtual sellout of reserved seats by this weekend.

So great has been demand for ducats for the 60th annual MSU-MSC game that MSU authorities said they may have to erect temporary bleachers in both end zones for the contest. This decision will be reached early next week.

About 1500 general admission seats will not be released for sale until the morning of Nov. 5.
