Monhegan Island, Maine 1918

MONHEGAN ISLAND, MAINE 1918

No ships have passed but the wind hard in from the Atlantic searches out each cave and crevice where light refuses to go.
Here, by these rock cliffs pounded to raw stone
I set my easle up again.
Midday and I have only sketched in the sky,
its undiluted blue.
Still I am content
to let coarse rock remain, to let Manhattan slip like driftwood out of sight.
Only the grass is moved by wind.
On Monhegan at last
my canvas fills,
the ease of my fingers
mixing rock and weathered grass.
For miles the ocean
cleared of barges, pleasure boats that stray north of Gloucester.
I stare out like some tourist in the Louvre.
There is no point in being romantic about this island, the summer that swallows me
in its drafts and warm air.
I paint, that's all. Wind has no color, only the bend of trees, rocks hissing in sun.
In fall I'll return to New York, my blasted studio where city buildings dilate on canvas. But not now, not with the full noon sun about to step down and claim the whole island.
