FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

The Montana State University School of Business Administration's first Institute on Accounting will be conducted on campus June 14, 15 and 16, Dean Paul B. Blomgren announced.

The institute will acquaint members of the accounting profession in Montana and surrounding states with the latest developments in advisory services to management, the dean said.

Topics to be covered include profit control for small business, capital budgeting, current trends in management services by certified public accountants, long range tax planning, evaluation of internal control, electronic data processing, work simplification of clerical activities and operations of a service bureau.

E. L. Kohler, accounting consultant from Chicago, Ill., will be the speaker at the banquet Friday, June 16, at the Florence Hotel, Dean Blomgren said.

The institute will be staffed by MSU faculty members, Montana accounting practitioners and out-of-state specialists, including K. S. Axelson, CPA, New York, N. Y.; Robert Jaedicke, Harvard Graduate School of Business Administration; George Ross, system and procedures manager, Mountain States Telephone and Telegraph Co., Denver, Colo.; Sig Joraanstad, CPA, Seattle, Wash.; G. E. Gorans, CPA, Seattle, Wash., and George J. Fleming, planning administrator of data processing, Boeing Airplane Co., Seattle, Wash.

Registration forms are available from Dr. Jack J. Kempner, School of Business Administration, Montana State University, Missoula.
