FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Dr. Gordon B. Castle, Montana State University zoology professor and director of the MSU Biological Station, has been invited to participate in the Rocky Mountain Assembly on National Goals, MSU officials announced.

The assembly will meet Sept. 7 to 10 at Estes Park, Colo., under the sponsorship of the University of Colorado and the American Assembly, Columbia University.

Theme of the conference will be "Goals for Americans," the report of President Eisenhower's Commission on National Goals. The meeting will bring together 60 leaders in business, agriculture, labor, government, education and the professions to examine specific areas of national endeavor. The delegates will organize in round-table discussions and on the last morning will meet in plenary session to approve a report of findings and recommendations.
