FOR RELEASE SUNDAY, MAY 6

Presentation of the first Olaf J. Bue Memorial Award will be a highlight of the sixth annual Dean Stone Night in the Territorial rooms of the Montana State University Lodge at 6 p.m. tonight. The award will be presented by Prof. Edward B. Dugan of the journalism faculty.

The award for an outstanding reporting performance by a journalism student will be one of several honors and awards to be given at the banquet honoring the memory of A. L. Stone, first dean of the MSU School of Journalism.

Featured speaker will be Clarence K. Streit, internationally known graduate of the Journalism School. Toastmaster will be Harold G. Stearns, editor and publisher of the Harlowton Times and the Eastern Montana Clarion at Ryegate.

Fred J. Martin, publisher of the Park Count News in Livingston, will formally install the late Harry B. Brooks as the seventh member of the Montana Newspaper Hall of Fame.

Other awards, and the persons who will present them, include the Dean Stone Award from the Montana State Press Association, by Martin; the O. S. Warden Award, by Stearns; the Robert Struckman Memorial Award from the Great Falls Newspaper Guild, by Ray Moholt, 1955 MSU journalism graduate and member of the Great Falls Tribune staff, and the A. J. Mosby Award, by Mosby.

The undergraduate chapter of Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalistic society, will award a citation to the outstanding male graduate of the School of Journalism, a certificate to the graduating senior with the highest scholastic average, and a plaque for special service to the Montana Kaimin, student newspaper. These presentations will be made by Roy Cottor, senior from Sidney, outgoing president of SDX.
Initiates into Kappa Tau Alpha, national society honoring scholarship in journalism, will be introduced and presented certificates by Prof. Warren C. Price, Dean Stone visiting lecturer for the spring term. Theta Sigma Phi, national fraternity for women in journalism, will tap pledges at the banquet in a ceremony to be conducted by Judith Rollins, senior from Billings, outgoing TSP president.

Special guests of honor at the banquet will be Mrs. Charlotte Stone Murphy, daughter of Dean Stone, and Mrs. Harry B. Brooks of Great Falls.
