FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

A visiting lecturer and four instructors have been appointed to the Montana State University English faculty, MSU President H. K. Newburn announced.

Andor H. Gomme, visiting lecturer at the University of Glasgow, Scotland, since 1958, will lecture at MSU this year, Dr. Newburn said. Gomme, a native of England, is a graduate of Cambridge University and in 1958 was elected a Fellow of Gonville and Caius College. He has lectured at the Universities of Bordeaux and Toulouse, France, has published essays in Cambridge Review, and has written articles for the Times Literary Supplement and other publications.

New instructors in the English Department are James H. Bowden, Dexter M. Roberts, W. Ross Winterowd and Louis Zuck.

Bowden earned a bachelor's degree at the University of Minnesota in 1955 and a master's degree at the University of Louisville in 1959. Since 1961 he has been an instructor in interdisciplinary studies at the University of Minnesota, where he began work on a doctorate in 1959. He is the author of a poem published in Prairie Schooner and of short stories in other little magazines.

Roberts comes to MSU from Stanford University, where he has been teaching and working toward the doctor's degree since 1958. He took a bachelor's degree at Colgate University in 1953. He taught for a year at Edison High School, Rochester, N. Y., and worked for a year as a reporter for the Utica (New York) Daily Press.

Winterowd has taught at the University of Utah, where he has been working for a doctorate, and at Carbon College and Kansas University. Following graduation from Utah State University in 1952, he studied at the University of Vienna. He has written for professional journals and is the author of an essay for the Saturday Review's "Phoenix Nest."
