FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Joseph A. Mussulman, assistant professor of music at Montana State University, has received a Danforth Foundation grant to attend the summer session at Syracuse University, according to Dean Charles W. Bolen of the MSU School of Fine Arts.

Mussulman will continue work toward a doctorate, which he began at Syracuse University under a Danforth grant awarded for the 1961-62 academic year, the dean said.

Before joining the MSU faculty in 1957, Mussulman taught at St. Cloud State Teachers College, Ripon College and Northwestern University. He holds a bachelor of music and master of music degrees from Northwestern.

As director of choral organizations at MSU, Mussulman is conductor of the Jubileers and other groups that have performed frequently for the public. He has served often as a music festival adjudicator and has published articles in music journals.
